ACTION IS SEEN AS SIGNIFICANT

Political Importance Is Attached to Move of Ambassador.

(Associated Press.)

America's picturesque statesman, Charles Gates Dawes, of the underslung pipe and vibrant language, is to retire as Ambassador to Great Britain.

His resignation will take effect after completion of "general work" as chairman of the American delegation to the arms conference in Geneva. As he puts it, he does "not expect to remain for the technical work" there.

The conference is not expected to take very long in disposing of general discussion and getting onto its technical problems after it opens February 2.

Ends Years of Service.

Just before leaving last night for Chicago, his home, he announced his plans to return to private life after years of almost constant service in the Government.

A former Vice President and often mentioned before the 1928 primaries as a possible candidate for President, Gen. Dawes will retire on the eve of another national election.

The name of Dawes already has been mentioned in speculation over this year's Republican presidential nominee. He has put aside this speculation as "nonsense." However, the first reaction in political circles was to regard his resignation as significant politically.

Makes No Comment.

Dawes' announcement was given to newspapermen gathered at the National Press Club by E. Ross Bartley, who was his secretary while he was Vice President.

The typewritten statement was distributed without further comment as to Dawes' plans.

He was appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James in 1929 by President Hoover after leaving the Vice Presidency the preceding year.

Gen. Dawes early entered public life and his colorful utterances upon public occasions are almost as well known abroad as in this country. He had hardly reached London before he startled staid diplomatic circles by his disregard of formalities.

Dawes served through the World War and in the post-conflict days returned to Europe to help draft the reparations plan that bore his name.

Sent to Naval Parley.

His international experience was again called upon by the Nation in 1930 when President Hoover appointed him a delegate to the London Naval Conference.

Prone to strong language at the most unexpected times, his public utterances have been a gift to the Nation's headline writers.

Chuckles still are heard over the time recently when upon returning to Washington from London newspapermen inquired about his personal dress abroad and were told to "go plumb to hell."

Through his service as Vice President in command of the Senate, the same blunt language kept him continually in the public eye. He had hardly taken the gavel in hand before he told the Senate he intended to do something about its wrangling and seek a change of rules. The affront which the Senate took at this remark, however, was forgotten and he left the dais as one of the most popular Vice Presidents.

Text of Statement.

The full text of Dawes' statement follows:

"I shall be in Chicago only for a few days, as I must be in Washington to discuss with the other members of the American delegation to the dis-

HOOVER PLEADS ANEW FOR CUTS IN U.S. EXPENSE

Asks Advocates of New Projects to Withhold Pressure.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

In an earnest appeal to "their sense of patriotism," President Hoover yesterday called on advocates of increased Federal expenditures to withdraw their pressure upon public officers for extravagant money bills in the reconstruction Congress.

The spirit of reckless public spending obviously is on the wane throughout the country, he said, in recapitulating recent developments on Capitol Hill, but there still exists in some quarters a stubborn agitation for the advancement of group of sectional projects at the expense of the delayed economic recovery.

"We can not squander ourselves into prosperity," he said.

Enormous Total of Bills.

Since Congress assembled a month ago, the President pointed out, bills have been introduced which, if passed, would call for expenditures aggregating more than $40,000,000,000 during the next five years, or an average of something like $8,000,000,000 a year over and above the going Federal budget of about $4,000,000,000 annually.

There is no suggestion, of course, that anything like this sum of money might be authorized, or even seriously considered in Congress, yet the bills "represent a spirit of spending in the country which must be abandoned."

"Rigid economy is the real road to relief, to home owners, farmers, workers, and every element of our population."

Precedes Smith's Appeal.

Apparently by coincidence, the President's new appeal for a balanced budget was voiced, in his regular Friday afternoon press conference, only a few hours before former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee, launched a vigorous plea before the Jackson Day dinner, for a new Federal bond issue to finance extensive public works. Mr. Smith's supporting arguments for such a program were in the main those which have been nationally publicized

TOKYO REFUSES TO DROP POLICY ON MANCHURIA

Promises U. S. Rights Will Be Protected, However.

KOREAN ATTEMPTS TO BOMB EMPEROR

(Associated Press.)

The United States' intervention in the Manchurian conflict failed to alter Japan's stand yesterday as she reaffirmed her position toward China.

An official spokesman in Tokyo promised that American trade rights in Manchuria would not be infringed, but reiterated that Japan could not deviate from her military policy.

An attempt by a Korean to assassinate Emperor Hirohito led to the resignation of Premier Inukai's government as a formal gesture. A bomb was thrown at the emperor's carriage, but no one was injured. The governmental situation again was placed in the hands of Prince Saionoi, the last elder statesman.

Official Washington marked time while waiting for Japan's reply to Secretary of State Stimson's note invoking the peace treaties, and expressed the hope no further steps would be necessary. It was expected other nations signatory to the Nine-Power Treaty would follow the United States' action.

Japanese Military Offended.

The vice minister of foreign affairs in Nanking said in an address that China would invoke article 16 of the league covenant at the next meeting of the council on January 25. This article provides for sanctions of a military and economic nature against an offending nation.

Japanese military leaders in Mukden expressed some surprise and resentment at America's move. Informally, they maintained that the operations of the army were entirely consonant with the Nine-Power Pact.

International quarters in Europe were gratified at the American stand The governments of Great Britain, France and Italy were considering their future course. League circles in Geneva saw new hope on the horizon for an end to the controversy.

Urgent Cabinet Meeting.

Tokyo (Saturday), Jan. 9 (A.P.).—Susoshi Inukai, who resigned yesterday as premier, was summoned to the palace today for an audience with the emperor, and later he called an urgent meeting of the cabinet. It was decided that the entire cabinet will remain in office.

An attempt yesterday to assassinate the emperor was the incident that led to the resignation of the ministry.

America's representations over the occupation of Manchuria failed to swerve Japan in her attitude toward China.

An official spokesman, replying informally to Secretary of State Stimson's note invoking the nine-power treaty, the pact of Paris and the open-door policy, pledged that American commercial rights in Manchuria would not be harmed, but reiterated that Japan can not change her military policy.

Japan recognizes China's sovereignty over Manchuria, he said, but maintains the national government has never exercised authority over Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's regime. If this view be accepted, he added, the administrative integrity of China has not been destroyed by Japanese

POLICE ASSERT MAN CONFESSES MURDER

Slew Woman Because She Barred Him From House, Captors Allege.

A signed confession that he beat Mrs. Jeanette Hendricks, 45 years old, to death yesterday with a poker in the basement of her home at 2318 Eighteenth street northwest was made early this morning by Warden L. Tilburg, 52, a plumber by trade, and a veteran of the World War, according to police.

The man was arrested only a short time earlier at 604 Massachusetts avenue northwest by members of the homicide squad led by Sergt. H. K. Wilson. They had received information that the man had been taken there last Saturday in an intoxicated condition.

Sergt. Wilson said he and Sergt. Floyd Truscott and Dennis Murphy walked in the man's bedroom and found him asleep. When they awakened him, Sergt. Wilson said, he jumped from the bed and exclaimed: "Yes, I did it, and I'll tell you all about it!"

The confession was signed at

Cardenas Is Named Spain's U. S. Envoy

Minister to Japan Chosen to Replace De Madariaga, Shifted to Paris.

Madrid, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Juan Cardenas, now minister to Japan, today was appointed Spanish Ambassador to the United States in succession to Dr. Salvador de Madariaga, who has been transferred to Paris.

Senor Cardenas is a career diplomat and served as counselor to the embassy in Washington from 1917 to 1923. While in that office he married Miss Nano, sister of the then minister from Roumania.

He was born in 1881 of a distinguished family and obtained a law degree early in his youth. He began his diplomatic career as an attache at Lisbon in 1904 and returned to the foreign ministry here in 1906, remaining until 1910. He was charge d'affaires in Havana and Mexico City from 1910 until 1917, and then went to Washington.

HUGE COMMISSIONS ON LOANS REVEALED

Senate Learns of $415,000 Paid to Son of Former President of Peru.

(Associated Press.)

The payment of a $415,000 commission to the son of the man then president of Peru, in connection with negotiations for a $100,000,000 Peruvian bond issue, was revealed to the Senate finance committee yesterday by a New York banker.

Frederick Strauss, of J. & W. Seligman, told how his company had paid the money to Juan Leguia, as one of a group of promoters who arranged the loan.

Flotation of the bond issue in America was handled originally by F. J. Lisman & Co., Strauss said, and his own concern did not know of Leguia's connection until after it had taken over the loans.

He told also of a $40,000 commission to S. A. Maginnis, former American Minister to Bolivia, for helping in the negotiations.

The bonds, most of which were sold in America at about 90, are now in default and current quotations are in the vicinity of 7.

Only three or four members of the committee were present as Strauss related the story as a witness in its investigation of the flotation of foreign securities in this country.

Strauss revealed Leguia's connection with the deals, and then sat back with his head resting on his hand, his elbow on the arm of the chair, while an associate, Henry Breck, finished the tale.

Before leaving the stand, however, he told Senator Johnson (Republican), California, who did the questioning, that "business methods that

BRIAND RESIGNS POST TO LAVAL; HEALTH FAILING

PREMIER IS PLANNING GOVERNMENT CHANGE

French Cabinet May Dissolve Tuesday if Another Group Is Selected.

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Sick and weary, Aristide Briand today asked Premier Laval to name a new foreign minister. The grizzled veteran of the war reconstruction period informed the premier he considered it his duty, because of bad health, to place the portfolio he has held for seven years in M. Laval's hands.

The news of M. Briand's decision came first in a short semiofficial note, later confirmed by the foreign office.

"It is assured," the note said, "that M. Briand informed the premier during the day that because of the state of his health, which imposes certain precautions, he thought it his duty to put the portfolio of the ministry of foreign affairs at the premier's disposal, to the end that another can be named in his place."

Coming in the midst of a cabinet crisis, M. Briand's action was considered of the highest importance.

Laval's Reply Awaited.

M. Laval has not said what reply he will make, but developments tonight indicated the premier himself would succeed his old political teacher, and M. Briand, with whose influence and statesmanship M. Laval is believed unwilling to part, would be retained as minister without portfolio.

This would leave the "apostle of peace" free to represent France at the League of Nations as soon as his health permits. In addition to his post as foreign minister, M. Briand has served as the permanent French delegate ot the league.

The foreign minister is understood to have told M. Laval several times he was willing to resign, notably after his defeat for the presidency at Versailles last May. In quarters close to the premier it was said M. Laval has decided to resign January 12, providing a new cabinet, which he would head, is agreed upon in advance. Negotiations have been started for a new government with a tendency toward the left in place of the rightist leanings of the present ministry.

Briand Offered Ministry.

It was understood that at the request of M. Lavc' the cabinet yesterday voted to give M. Briand a ministry without portfolio. The foreign minister, who had dreamed of playing a leading part in the disarmament conference which opens February 2 at Geneva, has been attacked bitterly by a portion of the Nationalist press as "too international" and something less than 100 per cent French.

Despite these attacks he has unflinchingly pursued a policy of European collaboration, especially cooperation with Germany, believing that this best served the lasting interests of France by consolidating world peace.

His Thoiry talks with the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann, following upon the Locarno pact guaranteeing peace on the Rhine, were an epoch-making move to establish Franco-German friendship. Premier Laval and he again tried to promote that end by their visit to Berlin last fall.

His Geneva utterance—"whilst I remain in power there will be no more war"—was recalled in connection with information that, during the past year, M. Briand has received numerous letters from various countries thanking and blessing him for his efforts to organize peace.

DEMOCRATIC HOST DINES AND HEARS PLAN FOR VICTORY

SMITH DEMANDS U. S. BONDS FOR RELIEF OF UNEMPLOYED

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Two thousand jubilant Democrats gathered in the Mayflower Hotel last night and consecrated their party to victory in 1932.

The occasion was the traditional Jackson Day dinner, and the orators were the three men who have been the Democratic standard bearers in the last twelve years.

Alfred E. Smith, the nominee in 1928, heaped ridicule on President Hoover. He recalled the golden promises that Hoover made in the last campaign, and accused him, or the Republican party, of taking credit even for the increased birth rate.

Inasmuch as the Republicans took credit for the rain (prosperity), Smith said, they will have to take credit for the drought (the depression).

Davis Excoriates G. O. P.

John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee in 1924, said that the last twelve years of Republican rule will go down in history as the "era of dark betrayal, the era of smug complacency, the era of wild dismay."

James M. Cox, the nominee in 1920, made what was regarded as an appeal to the South to show consideration for the North in the present prohibition controversy.

"May we not," he said, "respectfully ask that you call political ecclesiastics back to their pulpits that truth may go to your people."

This statement provoked the noisiest demonstration of the evening.

All Attack Prohibition.

All three of the nominees attacked prohibition.

"Think of the billions we are kicking away from us that would come in taxation," shouted Smith. "Why, rum, gin, booze and beer are running all over the United States untaxed, and the only man that is going to be safe during March, when you have to make all those income tax figures up, is the bootlegger."

Former Gov. Smith said that private relief is not sufficient to take care of America's jobless citizens, and he proposed a big Federal bond issue to raise money for public works that would provide additional jobs.

Ritchie Given Ovation.

The big banquet hall at the Mayflower was crowded last night as it never has been before.

And, as Claude Bowers, the toastmaster, said, victory seemed to be "in the air."

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war President, sat between Mr. Smith and Chairman John J. Raskob at the banquet table.

When Smith concluded his speech she grasped his hand and pumped it vigorously.

Gov. Albert Cabell Ritchie of Maryland, who the night before had announced his candidacy for the presidential nomination, was cheered lustily as he entered the banquet hall.

So, too, was Speaker of the House John N. Garner, of Texas, who is being boomed for President by the Hearst newspapers.

Hoover Confidante Present.

Ray Benjamin, of California, confidante of President Hoover, sat in the balcony and followed closely the oratory at the victory feast.

At the speaker's table, in addition to those mentioned, were Speaker Garner, former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia, Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming; James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic national committee; Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the national committee, and Frank Hague, Democratic boss of Jersey City.

The orators last night studiously avoided any mention of candidates. Today, however, there may be a test of the strength of Gov. Franklin D.

INDIA'S REBELS FACE DEATH BY COURT DECREE

Summary Powers Given Tribunals in Dealing With British Foes.

Bombay, India, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Great Britain stiffened its policy in India still further today by promulgation of a new ordinance empowering judges to pass any sentence, including the sentence of death, upon any person convicted of disobeying the series of emergency orders recently enacted.

The courts may pass sentence in the absence of the defendant and by recording only the substance of the evidence.

The roundup of nationalist leaders continued and the ordinance outlawing the Congress party was extended to Delhi Province and the Presidency of Madras. Dr. Ansari, acting president of the congress, and Dr. Chokasey, another prominent leader, were among those arrested during the day.

Warning by Hindus.

Meanwhile, the powerful Bombay Cotton Brokers Association, which usually sets the pace for other important business organizations, drafted a resolution condemning the government's policy. It will be acted upon on Monday.

The Hindustan Republican Society, a secret organization standing for independence through violent methods, plastered some sections of the city with flaming posters of warning.

"Beware, demons of a vanishing empire!" the posters read, "we warn British officials to go about always armed. On orders, the soldiers of our society will kill any officer. Therefore, beware! We also warn all Nationalists not to interfere with our solemn duty."

The cotton brokers' resolution described Viceroy Lord Willingdon's refusal to grant Mahatma Gandhi's interview before his arrest as "an insult to the whole nation."

"Despotism" Attacked.

"The unheard-of ordinances enacted by the government deprive all classes of their elementary rights by placing them virtually under a regime of unbridled despotism," says the resolution, "in their far-reaching effects they are worse than martial

Culbertson Defeats Lenz By 8,980 Points in Battle

Forcing System Team Wins 77 of 150 Rubbers in Bridge War; Vanquished Refuse to Admit Foes' Play Is Better and Point to Cards.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Ely Culbertson triumphed tonight. He ended his month's contract bridge match with Sidney S. Lenz in a test of rival bidding systems 8,980 points ahead, having won 77 rubbers to 73 for Lenz.

Mrs. Culbertson finished the match as her husband's partner, as she started it. And right up to the last rubber there was doubt whether there would be a Culbertson plus for the rubbers in which she took part. But she was the big factor in the gain of 210 points for her husband's side on the last night, and this increased the lead for the 88 rubbers of the series in which she had played to 365 points.

Lenz and his partner for the last 47 rubbers of the series, Commander Winfield Liggett, jr., won three of the six rubbers of the last session, but failed to gain through inferior bidding.

Nevertheless for Liggett's share of the match Lenz's side was 7,860 points ahead, a fact which gave followers of the "official" system of bidding much cause to rejoice. They feel that had Liggett been Lenz's partner throughout instead of Oswald Jacoby, the result might have been different.

"We lost, that's all," said Lenz. "I am making no alibis."

He was asked if the match proved the Culbertson system better.

"There is very little difference between the two systems," he said. "One is simpler, that's all. In all twenty sessions, Culbertson only made two of his demand bids. We made four of our three bids. Only on those two points do the systems differ. So it will be readily seen that, with the exception of those six bids, all the players used the same system.

"I think the cards will speak for themselves."

Commander Liggett would make no statement other than to say, "what I said all along, it proves nothing."

Commander Liggett bid two diamonds and made four on the first

Saunders Elected To Virginia Senate

Miss Johnson, Socialist, Fails to Carry Her Own County.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Incomplete returns tonight indicated the election of W. Conway Saunders, Democrat, to the Virginia State Senate from the Thirty-fifth District. His opponent, Miss Eunice Johnson, Socialist, of Chesterfield County, failed to carry her own county, and received only a flurry of widely scattered votes.

Incessant rains throughout the district, together with the general lack of interest in the election, resulted in one of the smallest votes on record, political leaders said. The vote was well under 1,000.

Skeleton of Washingtonian Who Sought Mine Found

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The mystery of the disappearance six months ago of Adolph Ruth, 66-year-old retired Government clerk and amateur prospector, of Washington, D. C., appeared to be solved today when Deputy Sheriff Jeff Adams sent word he had found Ruth's skeleton in the Superstition Mountains. Ruth had sought the fabled Lost Dutchman Mine.

Adams and W. A. Barley, cattleman of the Superstition Range, went into the mountains a week ago, after a skull had been brought into Phoenix by an archeological party.

The deputy sent word to Sheriff J. R. McFadden that Barkley had identified the skeleton as that of Ruth from bits of clothing found with it. The body, the message said, had been ravaged by wild animals.

Barley became acquainted with Ruth when the retired clerk, with ancient Spanish maps purporting to locate the famous lost mine, based at one of his ranches while preparing for his foray into the mountains.

The headless skeleton was found in the open on the side of a rugged ridge. It was approximately three-quarters of a mile from the canyon point where the skull was discovered and 5 miles from the mountain camp of Mr. Ruth.

"All his papers remained in the shredded remnants of his clothing," Adams reported. His watch, his unfired gun, his medicine kit, and a supply of emergency condensed food rations were there."

Adams said he believed the aged man had been overcome by heat and exhaustion, dying as he climbed the ridge that led back to his camp.

A telegram was sent this afternoon to Earl A. Ruth, a son, in Washington, D. C., asking instructions for funeral arrangements. The skeleton will be brought to Phoenix tomorrow.

Essay Test Draws Praise Of Bicentennial Leader

Mrs. Speel Lauds Example Set by The Post in Helping Children to Know of Washington's Life; School Official Also Pays Tribute.

That she could not be too emphatic in her commendation of The Post Washington Essay Contest was stated last night by Mrs. Virginia White Speel, prominent club woman and member of the District of Columbia George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

"The special purpose of the bicentennial celebration," declared Mrs Speel "is not only to observe the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, the founder of this Republic, but to bring the people back to a realization of the principles on which this country was founded by George Washington and his compatriots, and to create in the Americans of today the same degree of loyalty and patriotism which characterized George Washington and his associates."

"It is also greatly to be hoped," continued Mrs. Speel, "that such contests as that inaugurated by The Washington Post will start a revival of interest in Washington among the children of the city and nearby territory. It will surely be of great value in bringing the life and accomplishments of George Washington to the knowledge of the children The Post Washington Essay Contest has real significance along this line and will be far-reaching in its effect.

"Federal and State commissions for the bicentennial are making a special effort to interest school children in the life and character of George Washington. If all States follow the example set by The Post in Washington the purpose of the celebration will have been achieved and its influence will extend far beyond the bicentennial year itself."

Mrs. Speel, who is State director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs as well as holding other civic offices of importance, comes from a distinguished Pennsylvania family and one which gave of its man power to the American Revolution, she being a leading member of the Daughters of the American Revolution in this city.

SENATE GETS MOONEY CASE ACCUSATIONS

WITNESSES COACHED DURING TRIAL, CLAIM

(Associated Press.)

Charges of violations of California law by police and prosecution in the famous Mooney-Billings case reached the Senate yesterday in an hitherto undisclosed document prepared by three experts of the Wickersham Commission.

From Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, one of the authors of the resolution under which the Senate called upon President Hoover to produce the volume, came the statement that the report would be "properly referred to the judiciary committee for possible consideration of legislation to avoid similar miscarriages of justice in the future."

The document was submitted to the Wickersham Commission last June by three of its experts as part of a study of "lawlessness in law enforcement," but was not accepted, the commission holding it had no right to review State cases.

Many Irregularities Charged.

Since then its existence has often been hinted at and its revelation fulfilled advance notices of its spectacular contents.

From the arrest of Mooney and Billings through their trial and conviction to their unavailing requests for new trials, irregularities on the part of police and prosecuting authorities were charged.

The volume bears the names of Zachariah Chafee, jr., Walter H. Pollak and Carl S. Stern, described as "consultants" to the commission, and Thomas A. Halleran, "assistant."

Until yesterday Attorney General Mitchell had reported himself unable to lay hands on a copy as it was not in the commission's archives, although printed at Government expense.

Says Witnesses Were Coached.

In a brief letter of transmittal he explained that it had "just been received from the Honorable George W. Wickersham," chairman of the commission.

The charges contained in a concise statement of "conclusions" at the end of the book included the assertion that "witnesses were coached in their testimony to a degree that approximated subornation of perjury."

"There is a strong inference," it continued, "that some of this coaching was done by prosecuting officials and other evidence points to knowledge by the prosecuting officials that such coaching was being practiced on other witnesses."

Other charges included:

Raps Identification Methods.

"There were flagrant violations of the statutory law of California by both the police and the prosecution in the manner in which the defendants were arrested and held incommunicado, and in the subsequent searches of their homes to procure evidence against them."

"The investigation" of the crime "was turned over to a private detective, who used his position to cause the arrest of the defendants" while "the police investigation was reduced to a hunt for evidence to convict the arrested defendants."

"Witnesses were brought to the jails to 'identify' them and their 'identifications' were accepted by police and the prosecution despite the fact that these witnesses were never required to pick the defendants out of a line-up."

Mooney Is Jubilant.

San Quentin, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Tom Mooney was jubilant and confident of ultimate vindication of complicity in the San Francisco preparedness day parade bombing of 1916, when informed of the report to the United States Senate subcommittee on the case released today.

"At last it seems as though justice is to be done," he said. "The report confirms the suspicion I have always held that complete revelation of the facts can not but result in complete vindication of myself and codefendant (Warren K. Billings), who is serving a life sentence in Folsom Prison."

He did not know what the report contained until newspapermen told him of it today, he said, although he had an intimation that it was favorable. He said he knew nothing of the subcommittee's investigation until after the Wickersham report was filed, but charged that the portions favorable to him were withheld until today by "interests inimical" to his cause. He said he made every effort to obtain a copy to complete his own record of the case, but failed.

Committee Meets Today.

Today the Democratic national committee meets to select a city and set a date for the next national convention. It is understood that the Roosevelt people favor Kansas City, Mo., as a convention site. Last night, however, a determined fight was on to take the convention to San Francisco. In view of this situation, the balloting today may be significant.

There is a general disposition to go along with Chairman Raskob, and pass his "home rule" liquor plan on to the national convention without a fight.

The banquet last night ended at midnight, whereas the last Jackson Day banquet here ran on until about 3 o'clock in the morning.

Hoover's 1928 Words Quoted.

Chairman Raskob introduced Claude Bowers, the toastmaster.

The former New York World editorial writer convulsed his audience simply by recalling statements made by President Hoover in 1928.

"Republican prosperity," he quoted President Hoover as saying, "has reduced the hours and increased the earning capacity, silenced discontent, and put the proverbial chicken in every pot."

When Bowers turned to Speaker Garner and referred to him as a "two-fisted cavalier of the Texas plains," the Speaker was cheered lustily.

Former Gov. Smith was the first speaker presented by the toastmaster. He spoke without the aid of a manuscript. He had prepared one, but he forgot all about it when he rose to speak, as he indicated he might before the gathering was called to order.

"Forget Politics," Smith Says.

Gov. Smith reviewed the promises made by the Republican leaders in 1928, quoting them as saying that the Republican party was the sole custodian of prosperity.

"The last straw to be laid on the camel's back," he said, "came when the Republicans took credit for the increased birth rate." The audience laughed.

Perhaps, Mr. Smith said, President Hoover wasn't altogether to blame, but he quoted the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, New Jersey Republican, as saying that any one who took credit for the rain ought to be willing to take blame for the drought.

"The Democrats," the titular head of his party said, turning to international affairs, "are in favor of any reasonable plan for working out the problem of reparations and debts.

"I believe this is a time when we should forget politics. We are in a state of war—war against unemployment, war against sickness, war against disease—and I say that the results of the stress of these times are taking untold toll."

Attacks Dry Law Costs.

Mr. Smith's advocacy of a Federal bond issue to raise money for a program of "necessary" public buildings and roads did not arouse any great enthusiasm.

"What about prohibition?" the Happy Warrior said, and the crowd yelled and applauded.

"We are spending $100,000,000 a year to try to enforce an unenforceable law," he said. "Who says that? Do I say it? No." The Wickersham Commission, appointed by the President himself, says it." The audience liked that and liked it even better when he said that not one single piece of legislation had been initiated by the President or the Republican party as a result of the recommendations of the Wickersham Commission for relief of existing conditions incident to prohibition.

Smith said that the only way to solve the liquor problem was to turn it over to the people in the States. He was mildly cheered when he concluded. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson grasped his hand, and so did Chairman Raskob and Boss Hague.

John W. Davis excoriated the Republicans for not acting to forestall the depression and charged that they fostered it.

With the advent of the Hoover administration, Davis said, "we broke out in a rash of commissions," and the audience interrupted with laughter. He denounced the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill as "the most outrageous and iniquitous" tariff bill ever enacted, and this, too, brought interrupting applause. He also attacked the Federal Farm Board, and his hearers laughed and applauded when he said that the Federal Farm Board had been discovered by the farmers to be "just another gold brick of the purest brass."

Like Gov. Cox, who followed him, Davis eliminated himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination at the forthcoming convention, saying that he was speaking as a "private in the ranks" who hoped, expected and wanted no more exalted rank.

Cox's Sallies Applauded.

Gov. Cox, third and last of the former candidates to speak, frequently was interrupted in the course of his address. He scored with his audience when he reminded them that the plea of the Republicans to forget politics and party and work together came with bad grace from a party which had refused to work in harmony with President Wilson and had persistently refused to accord to the war-time President any honor since his death.

When he said that the Republicans intended that Wilson's body should lie in the unmarked grave of an unknown soldier there were shouts of "Never," "No," and frequently he was interrupted in his eulogy of the war-time Executive.

Cox denounced the Republican administration for its failure to act to forestall the depression. He attributed that to the refusal of President Hoover to deal forthright with the required reduction of Government expenditures to balance the budget. His hearers cheered.

Several times he was interrupted by cheers and applause, as when he said that "the practice of privilege and preference is the mainsail of the Republican ship."

There was such a spontaneous outburst when he asked the South to call into their pulpits their "political ecclesiastics," that he had to divide his sentence in three parts.

"Greatest Chance in Generations" Faces Democrats, Bowers Says

Predicting the "triumphant election of the nominee of the Democratic convention," Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer and Democratic keynoter of other years, last night told his party it faces its "greatest opportunity in generations."

Claude G. Bowers.

"Never has the party of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson been in better position or in more militant mood than it is today," Bowers told colleagues attending the Jackson Day dinner. His forecast followed a bitter attack on the Republican party and the administration.

"Thus we are today in possession of the House, just as twenty years ago," he said, "and just as twenty years ago it was the prelude to victory, so it is today."

He paid tribute to Speaker John N. Garner as "that two-fisted fighting cavalier of the Texas plains;" lauded House Leader Henry Rainey as the "champion of the rights of the average man," and declared the Democratic board of policy "as radical as justice and as conservative as common sense."

The Democrats, he said, present "a united party—militant, eager, sinking personal differences in the good of the common cause."

"And there before them the most solemn duty and greatest opportunity in generations which it would be criminal to compromise or throw away—the restoration of the Jeffersonian concept of the State; the purging of the Government of privilege; the return of power to the people; the checking of the drift toward centralization, unregulated monopoly, autocracy and bureaucracy; the preservation of democracy; the substitution of the political economy of science for that of Mr. Grundy, and the sympathy and cooperation of men and women of all political persuasions, the triumphant election of the nominee of the Democratic convention to the presidency of the republic."

Atlantic City Bid For Session Secret

Mayor, Starting Here, Is Confident of Getting Party Convention.

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Mayor Harry Bacharach, heading a delegation to Washington today with Atlantic City's bid for the 1932 Democratic convention, was determined not to take a chance of being outbid by revealing beforehand how much he was prepared to offer.

"What we are prepared to offer must remain unrevealed until the proper time arrives," he said shortly before leaving. "Talking too much once before let Chicago win the Republican national convention by raising our bid $50,000." He would neither confirm nor deny that Atlantic City had pledged $175,000, but it was known the minimum of $150,000 was guaranteed.

"We have the best chance of landing the gathering," Mayor Bacharach declared. "I have an amount fully pledged right now, but no one except Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and myself know how far we are prepared to go in our bidding."

Women Ask Half Of Delegate Seats

Members of Democratic Body Demand Equal Share With Men.

(Associated Press.)

Democratic national committeewomen from 30 States and two Territories yesterday voted a demand for more women delegates, and a larger feminine voice in plan making at the next Democratic national convention.

Crowded informally into the small office of Nellie Tayloe Ross, the committeewomen agreed on a threefold campaign:

1. To circularize party leaders in the States with the 1928 resolution of the national committee recommending to the States that half the delegates at large be women.

2. To place before the whole committee today a resolution declaring the committeewomen "desirous of a larger representation of women in the State delegations" and asking the aid of men members to that end.

3. To advise party leaders of the committeewomen's desire "that women be not overlooked in the naming of the arrangements committe to prepare for the convention."

John W. Davis Pours Scorn Upon 3 Regimes Since Wilson

An appeal for harmony within Democratic ranks and a bold party attack upon "the great unsettled problems of the hour," was made last night by John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, at the Jackson Day dinner.

John W. Davis.

Professing to speak as one of his party's "humble privates who wishes no higher post," Mr. Davis reviewed every administration since Wilson's, and declared the present state of the country "directly due to the folly and unwisdom of men in high office and their obstinate refusal to face the inexorable facts."

He urged upon his party the Jeffersonian prescription of a "wise and frugal government that will not take from the mouth of labor the bread that it has earned."

"When taxes come to be imposed," he said, "as apparently they must, to meet past extravagances and failing revenues, let us see that the burden is fitted to the back that must bear it. It is wise and right that the strong should carry at all times a heavier load than those who are weak."

He urged that the tariff policy of the country be so adjusted "as to give free reign once more to American energy and American enterprise in the markets of the world."

The former Democratic standard bearer declared the country has gone through three sharply defined periods since the Wilson administration. These he designated the "Era of Dark Betrayal," the "Era of Smug Complacency" and the "Era of Wild Dismay."

The Farm Board he branded a "mad adventure," and the Republican tariff act he declared "threatens now like Frankenstein's monster to destroy not only the farmer but the very industries at whose beck it was called into being."

End of Power's Centralization Is Demanded by James M. Cox

James M. Cox.

Criticizing the Republican party as reactionary and devoted to special privilege, the 1920 presidential candidate of the Democratic party called for an end to the centralization of control in the hands of the Federal Government and a national economic program which would bring social justice to all.

Prohibition, he said, concerns each section of the country in its own peculiar way and pleaded with his party to leave hypocrisy to others in dealing with the question. Most of his comment on prohibition was directed at the dry South, which he reminded had not through its own efforts alone put an end to the horrors of the reconstruction period following the Civil War, but had been aided by determined Democrats of the North.

"May we not now," Gov. Cox appealed to the South, "respectfully ask that you call your political ecclesiastics back to the pulpits that truth may go to your people?"

He took a whack at Republican efforts to attribute the depression to world-wide conditions, saying that regardless of what might be said on that score, "there must be something radically wrong at home when a nation of 125,000,000 people with an unprecedented supply of the necessities of life finds itself faced with an unprecedented fiscal deficit and unprecedented poverty and want."

"We hear it said," he continued, "that if we could extract fear out of our psychology, things would be better. Washington suggests many expedients. Almost daily new remedies are announced, intended to soothe our wearied spirits, but words have ceased to be reassuring. The patient is too ill for mental suggestion."

Economies which "cut deep" are required to balance the budget, he said, adding that "oppressive taxation will not do it."

"The practice of privilege and preference is the mainsail of the Republican ship. Because it seemed for the time to pay politically, it has lived a surprisingly long time. It is based upon the idea that if a favored class is made prosperous, enough of that prosperity will dribble back to keep the mass content. The privileged have discovered that they are impoverished because of that poverty of the poor which privilege has caused."

Criticizing the Republican tariff policy, Gov. Cox referred to establishment of many American branch factories in foreign countries as a result and said that the "governmental attempt at fixing prices by tariff subsidy proved just as fallacious as the effort directed by the Farm Board."

He said that capital and labor should get together, jointly to provide "for the same rainy day that comes to both."

Smith Asks Big Bond Issue And More Federal Construction

Appealing for a Nation-wide program of Federal construction financed by a great issue of Government bonds, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York called upon the Democratic party at the annual Jackson Day dinner held here last night, to forget party lines in the common cause of combating unemployment.

Creation of the post of Federal director of all Federal construction activities with power to "slash and dig through all the red tape" was urged upon Congress by Smith.

"The bonds can be offered by the Government direct to the people with the same patriotic appeal that was put behind the Liberty bonds, appealing to their loyalty, their devotion and their patriotism."

Vast U. S. Rentals Cited.

New highways, tunnels, bridges, buildings to house Government activities now quartered in rented quarters would be built with the proceeds of the bond issue, under the plan advanced by the Democratic standard bearer of 1928.

"This Government is paying $20,000,000 a year rent for the operations of its business. There is neither economy nor efficiency in that," said Mr. Smith. "Permanent buildings required for regular prosecution of the public business should be built by the Government and be under its ownership."

Mr. Smith called attention to the reported postal deficit of $120,000,000, pointing out that the Postmaster General had recently stated that a large part of the red-ink figures were caused by antiquated properties and methods with which the Government was forced to carry on its postal business.

"Certainly the rehabilitation of this property, the construction of proper facilities, not only helps the present situation but looks to a greater efficiency and a greater economy in the future operation of the Government."

Opposition to increased tax levies was expressed by the former New York governor.

"One of the depressing things in a time like this is excessive taxation. It retards business and holds back progress and lays a burden on the individual. * * *."

Near the conclusion of his address, former Gov. Smith assailed "the useless, senseless, fruitless attempt" to enforce prohibition by the Federal Government.

Enforcement Called "Flea Bite."

"While we are talking about the deficit, what about prohibition?" he said. He decried the expenditure of $100,000,000 annually for prohibition enforcement, characterizing that sum as a "flea bite" in the effort to enforce the dry law.

"Think of the billions we are kicking away from us that would come in in taxation. Why rum, gin, booze and beer are running all over the United States untaxed, and the only man that is going to be safe during March, when you have to make all those figures up, is the bootlegger."

"Now, all my life I was a great believer in the theory that the cure for all the ills of democracy is more democracy, and the way to handle it is to pass it back to the people and let them make their disposition of it."

'VICTORY' PLATFORM IS OFFERED BY REED

Former Senator of Missouri Tells 7 Points on Which Democrats Can Win.

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—James A. Reed, former United States senator, who has said he would consider it a compliment to have the Missouri delegation support him for Democratic presidential nomination, submitted tonight a seven-point "victory" platform for the party.

Simplification of government at home and a "hands off" foreign policy were the keynotes sounded at a Jackson Day banquet here by the man who was Missouri's favorite son aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928.

"These beneficient objectives will never be accomplished by the present Republican body," said Reed in a prepared address, holding the Hoover administration answerable for a government which "has its nose in every kitchen and its finger in every enterprise."

"The remedy fundamentally must be a return to the old ideas of government," Reed asserted.

Demands Decentralization.

"First: Decentralization should be the order of the day. We should begin that by withdrawing the United States from every European controversy in which we are not directly and immediately concerned. We should provide for our own protection, always remembering that while the largest and most powerful nation on earth, we are, nevertheless, unless prepared, an easy victim to the avarice and cupidity of greedy enemies.

"Second: We should repeal every Federal statute which imposes upon the Federal Government powers or duties that can as well be performed by the several States.

"Third: We should wipe out innumerable boards and bureaus and discharge an Army of spies, snoopers and tax-eaters.

"Fourth. We should cease attempting to either promote, regulate or destroy the business of the United States. By that I do not mean we should repeal the laws against combinations in restraint of trade, for such laws are themselves protective of trade. Upon the contrary, those laws should be strengthened, and every attempt at monopoly or unfair trade practices should be, in the interests of fair trade, strictly prohibited and punished.

Hits "Stock Gambling Hells."

"Fifth. We should demand that the Federal Reserve banking system should no longer be made the agent and banker of the stock gambling hells of the Nation, and the fraudulent practices of those institutions should be prohibited and punished.

"Sixth. We should immediately lower tariff exactions, and as rapidly as the revenue exigencies of our Government will permit, wipe them out. This must be accomplished in order:

"(a) To relieve the present burdens of our people.

"(b) In order that our manufacturing industries may be able to compete in the markets of the world, thus furnishing employment for American labor.

"Seventh. The laws regulating the habits and lives of the people, insofar as such laws should ever be passed, should be left to the several States. Such doctrine of State sovereignty in its high and proper sense should be restored."

Mr. Reed assailed entry of Government into the cotton and wheat markets through the Federal Farm Board, "resulting in a general paralysis in the markets for farm products."

Boy, 15, Admit Murder Of Farmer to Get Auto

Doylestown, Pa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A confession that he shot to death Elmer D. Bartholomew, Bedminister Township farmer, for the purpose of taking his automobile to drive to see his sick mother was made today to District Attorney Arthur Eastburn, by Stanley Wismer, 15-year-old farm hand.

Eastburn said the boy admitted shooting the 28-year-old farmer three or four times with the .22 caliber rifle when Bartholomew entered his barn early today.

2 Boys Now Deny Cremating Eight

Say They Made Confession Because of Craving for Tobacco.

Gallipolis, Ohio, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Two youths who confessed they fired an Ohio River log cabin in which eight persons were burned to death today repudiated their stories because they feared murder charges.

The boys, Albert Ramer, 15, Gallipolis, and Elsworth Moyer, 17, Bucyrus, told officials that a craving for tobacco, denied inmates of the Lancaster Boys Industrial School, where they are serving terms for auto theft, led them to make the fake confession. The youths said they had believed if officials would accept their story they would be sent to the Mansfield Reformatory, where greater liberties are allowed.

Both were held in jail tonight on first degree murder charges, but officials indicated the charges would be dropped and the boys returned to Lancaster.

DEMOCRATS REPORT SPENDING $1,030,486

Treasurer Gerard Submits Statement to Clerk of House, as Required.

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic national committee yesterday reported its expenditures in 1931 totaled $1,030,486, and contributions, loans and other receipts amounting to $1,032,267.

In a report filed with the House clerk by James W. Gerard, reasurer, in compliance with the Federal corrupt practices act, outstanding obligations totaled $787,747.

Of this, $345,250 is due John J. Raskob, chairman, for loans, and $433,766 to the County Trust Co. of New York for borrowed money.

Unpaid bills were listed at $8,731. The report showed a balance of $6,466 at the beginning of 1931 and $8,247 on January 1, 1932.

Among the large contributions listed were Pierre S. du Pont, $12,500; Vincent Astor, $25,000; Percy S. Straus, $5,000; M. F. Reddington, $5,000; R. R. Young, $2,000; Charles Sabin, $2,000; Morton L. ought not to have obtained" had arisen among international bankers in recent years.

He agrees his firm had participated in competition with other banks for South American loans to a degree "which was in one respect wholly wrong," and said he would favor some method of stopping it, if one could be found.

Johnson said he was seeking a way "to put a stop to that sort of thing and protect American investors."

"You agree that should be done?" he asked Strauss.

"I agree, but I have my doubts whether it can," Strauss replied.

Once while Breck, who looked no more than 30, was telling the story, the gray-haired Strauss interrupted to say:

"We had no knowledge that Leguia had any interest in it until quite a long time afterward, when the business had proceeded up to a certain point.

"I just wanted to make that clear, that we did not retain in any way the services of this son of the President, and when we did find it out, it was something that we did not like.

"We thought it did not make a good picture, but there we were, committed to a group of promoters who had the President's son among them, and when we found he was among them we proceeded with the business and carried out the obligations toward that group of promoters."

Breck said Leguia's connection with the deal was not discovered until Maginnis went to Peru as an employe of the company to complete negotiation of the deals.

This discovery was made when a loan of $15,000,000 was being negotiated, Breck said, and later loans of $50,000,000 and $35,000,000 were made.

City Heads Change Bill on Measures

Would Provide Different Method for Sale of Frozen Foods.

The District Commissioners yesterday approved the purpose, but suggested a change in the style of a bill intended to amend the District weights and measures law to permit a different measure for the ice cream and frozen food products.

The Commissioners proposed inserting a new paragraph, rather than a new clause, providing for the sale of ice cream and frozen products by the measures of one-half pint, pint, quart, half gallon, gallon, two gallons, two and a half gallons and multiples of the gallon.

Approval also was given to a bill providing for the closing of Water street between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets northwest. The Commissioners said they had no objection so long as the property owners on the south side of Water street were agreeable.

BYRD-RASKOB PLAN PORTENDS HARMONY

Agree to Refer Prohibition Question to Convention Without Proposal.

(Associated Press.)

The way for harmony at today's meeting of the Democratic national committee was paved last night at a conference between Chairman Raskob and Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, the vice chairman, when they agreed upon a resolution on the prohibition issue.

Byrd, a former governor, who was one of those who led the fight in March against a move to commit the national committee on prohibition, drafted a resolution acceptable to Raskob, referring the whole question to the national convention without recommendation.

With this agreement, prospects of a blow-off today faded. Last night's party meeting ended in harmony, but not without a personal row between James M. Cox and Senator Glass, of Virginia. Cox, who spoke last, was severely taken to task by the senator after the meeting. The Virginian accused the 1920 standard bearer of raising the issue of "sectionalism" in his references about the North and the South. Glass spoke with some vigor to Cox and gave notice he would have more to say today.

NEW ENGLAND PLAN SPLITS RAIL HEADS

(Associated Press.)

Already agreed that four systems in the East are enough, railroad executives disagree on extending these systems into New England.

J. J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, and Patrick E. Crowley, until recently president of the New York Central, yesterday spoke the final word on behalf of the executives of the four major trunk lines seeking to have the Interstate Commerce Commission revise its five-system Eastern consolidation plan in favor of the railroad-sponsored four systems.

Bernet, on cross-examination by representatives of New England and eastern New York communities, asserted his company hoped eventually to enter New England with a main line. In this he differed from Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania. The former had said he did not want to go into New England with his lines, while Atterbury expressed satisfaction with his present New England connections.

Hearing on Modification.

The railroad chieftains were testifying before Chairman Porter, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who is holding hearings on the request of the Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central, for modification of the commission plan.

Bernet was on the witness stand virtually all day. Crowley concluded his direct testimony late in the day, but may be recalled today for cross-examination.

The C. & O. executive expressed entire agreement with the other presidents on the desirability of four systems and said he had studied the fifth-system plan, proposed to be headed by the Wabash-Seaboard lines, and felt it could not be economically operated.

Equal Chance Requirement.

The Hudson River gateways to New England, which are served by four railroads allocated under the four-system plan jointly to all trunk lines, are needed in this form, Bernet said, to give all an equal chance at New England freight.

These lines were allocated to the New Haven and Boston & Maine under the commission plan.

The new plan has brought out a great deal of opposition from New England and certain New York points because of the change in the status of these so-called bridge lines.

ALFRED E. SMITH.

THE story of Alfred Emanuel Smith's rise in life is a well-known story, and an inspiring one. As a boy he worked in a fish market. In 1928, he was awarded the highest honor within the gift of his party—the presidential nomination.

In the election, he took the worst beating of any Democratic candidate in history from a standpoint of electoral votes. Smith carried only two States above the Mason and Dixon line—Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Yet he polled more popular votes than any Democratic candidate in history. Fifteen million voters wrote Alfred E. Smith on their ballots in 1928.

Today Al Smith is a baffling mystery. He declines to say whether or not he is a candidate for the nomination in 1932. Those who insist that he is a candidate looked upon his speech last night as a bid for the nomination.

WASHINGTON MATRON, OFFICER AND AID ARRESTED IN DEATH

said, by two men after having been pointed out by a woman.

After locating a fleeing automobile police gave chase, succeeding in stopping it only after firing three shots and then finding in it the body of Kahahawai. He had been shot through the heart, stripped of his clothes and wrapped in a sheet. Mrs. Fortescue, wife of a noted American soldier and author, Lieut. Massie, and Lord were named by police as occupants of the death car.

Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and Lord were taken under the protection of detectives and Commander Richard W. Bates, of the naval shore patrol, to the office of City and County Attorney James F. Gilliland.

Rear Admiral Stirling, Sheriff Gleason and other authorities conferred to determine whether the three prisoners should be held by naval or civil authorities. Gilliland opposed the wish of naval authorities to take custody of the trio.

Circuit Judge Cristy suggested that the matter be held in abeyance until the three could obtain legal counsel. Neither Mrs. Fortescue, Massie nor Lord made any admission of guilt at the conference.

After attorneys had been obtained for the three, Mrs. Fortescue told newspapermen she had been downtown shopping and knew nothing of what happened to Kahahawai. Massie and Lord refused to discuss the affair.

Massie Home Guarded.

After a conference between Mrs. Fortescue, Massie and Lord and their attorney, the city attorney announced statements had been obtained from the trio and others, including Al Jones, an enlisted man of the Navy, who said he was on guard at the Massie home last night and had been there today. Officials of the city attorney's office said the statements conflicted, but that there had been no admission of guilt from any of the three.

The Hawaiian was named in the evidence at an assault trial, which ended in a jury disagreement, as the man who beat Mrs. Massie and broke her jaw after he and his companions had criminally attacked her. Sheriff Gleason said he was tricked into leaving the courtroom alone and walking into the hands of the kidnapers.

While awaiting retrial of their case Kahahawai and his four companions had been reporting daily to the circuit court. Sheriff's officers said Kahahawai had been induced to leave the court building alone. Outside he was seized, bundled into an automobile and whisked away. As the police started the hunt for the kidnapers the four other defendants in the attack case were taken to the police station under guard.

The killing was the second case of violence attributed to the assault. A few days ago Horace Ida, a Japanese, was seized by twenty men, taken out of the city and given a beating. None of his assailants thus far have been identified.

A second attack on a white woman a week ago intensified public feeling and caused Gov. Lawrence M. Judd to instruct the Hawaii National Guard to cooperate with police in cleaning up the city. The guardsmen were called out for duty as territorial policemen this afternoon.

Lui Kaikapui, a Hawaiian burglary convict, who had escaped from prison, was identified by the second white woman as her attacker and was returned to prison.

Honolulu Faces Boycott.

Facing a threatened boycott by the Navy when the Pacific fleet comes to mid-Pacific next month for its maneuvers, Honolulu civic organizations were cooperating with authorities in attempting to clean up the city when Kahahawai met his fate.

Gov. Judd had been informed by Rear Admiral Ross C. Stirling, commandant of the Fourteenth Naval District, on behalf of the Navy Department, that the fleet would not be allowed shore leave in Honolulu, unless official word was forthcoming that it had been cleared of its its undesirable elements.

Governor Judd issued a statement saying:

"This is a time when everyone must remain calm. The present situation requires the closest cooperation of all concerned. The executive forces are exerting every possible effort. The public will be informed from time to time of steps taken."

The governor then visited Oahu Prison, and although the warden said no plans were being made to strengthen the guard there, it was reliably reported ten members of the National Guard had been equipped with tear bombs and detailed to the prison. Kaikapui is confined there.

In Social Register.

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The Hawaiian drama which reached its climax tonight with the arrest of Mrs. Granville R. Fortescue at Honolulu on a charge of murder, reaches into the highest strata of New York society.

Mr. and Mrs. Fortescue, the former a playwright, soldier, explorer and one-time military aid to President Theodore Roosevelt, are listed in the social register, together with their four daughters.

Fortescue is a member of the Army and Navy, Ardsley, Players and Turf and Field Clubs of New York, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington. He was married to Grace Hubbard Bell at Washington in 1910.

Fortescue left the University of Pennsylvania at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War to enlist in the Rough Riders under Col. Roosevelt. Wounded at San Juan, he remained in the Army to fight through the Philippine rebellion.

Returns to War.

He witnesed the siege of Port Arthur as a military attache with the Japanese forces in the Russo-Japanese War, and returned to join President Roosevelt's White House staff as personal aid.

After exploring the jungles of South America, he went to war once more with the A. E. F., and—a major in the Field Artillery—was wounded at Mont Foucon. He wears the Distinguished Service Medal, the Japanese War Medal, and the Japanese Order of the Rising Sun.

As a war correspondent, before America entered the war, his dispatches from the Belgian, French, English and Russian armies in the field had wide publicity in England.

In addition to several books on war subjects, he has written three successful plays—"Dolores" (1915); "Love and Live" (1921), and "The Unbeliever" (1925).

Another daughter, Miss Rion Fortescue, is now at Oxford, England. His other daughters are the Misses Helene and Kenyon.

FARM HELP BY U. S. LOAN FIRM PLEDGED

State Treasuries Also to Be Given Aid; Senate Vote on Plan Due Today.

(Associated Press.)

The farmer and the treasuries of the States were added by the Senate yesterday to the long list of those to be given financial help by the $2,000,000,000 Emergency Reconstruction Corporation.

As the measure moved toward a vote, expected today, these new beneficiaries were approved in amendments adopted without record votes and a minimum of discussion.

Democrats who have put their shoulders to the enactment of the corporation agreed to forego attendance at today's important meeting of their party's national committee.

Senator Watson, Indiana, the Republican leader, said "there is every hope for passage by tomorrow." Quick enactment has been declared essential by both Democrats and Republicans in debate.

Meanwhile a House banking subcommittee yesterday gave its approval to the measure and it will be taken up by the whole committee today. Chairman Steagall, of the committee, said he hoped to get the legislation before the Democratic House by Monday.

With enactment of the corporation in prospect by next midweek, President Hoover is preparing to put it into immediate operation.

Loans from the corporation are to be available to financial institutions, insurance companies, railroads and exporters. From this new stream of financial assistance sponsors of the measure contend fresh money will flow into every artery of national trade.

The amendments added yesterday were:

On motion of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, provision was made to permit loans to Federal or joint stocks land banks and to agricultural and live stock credit corporations.

Agreement was given to amendments by Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, specifying that loans might be extended to State-operated rural credit systems and providing for loans to States upon security of State bonds.

Senator Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio, who, with Senators Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, and Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, helped to redraft the corporation measure, put in a new provision safeguarding the understanding that the obligations of the corporation should not be eligible for acceptance or purchase by Federal Reserve Banks.

An amendment by Senator Reed required that the loans to export corporations arising from foreign trade be secured by United States securities and banks. Reed also obtained approval of a proposal that bonds of the corporation be subject to the Federal gift and inheritance taxes.

Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, offered an amendment to extend the loan provision to irrigation and reclamation districts and this was pending at adjournment.

On motion of Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, a provision excepting Canadian securities from the ban against paper of foreign nations which might be put up as security for the loans was stricken from the bill.

HOOVER AGAIN ASKS U. S. EXPENSE CUTS

during the last six months by the newspaper publisher who conceived some time ago the idea of a $5,000,000,000 "prosperity loan."

President Hoover feels that Democratic and Republican pledges of nonpartisan cooperation in the arduous labor of balancing the Federal budget offer the country genuine assurance of an earnest and sober-minded approach to the complex economic problems confronting Congress. Out of this, he hopes, may come "resolute opposition to any new or enlarged activities of the Government."

Doubts Danger of Passage.

"With the assurances which have now been given from the leaders in Congress I do not believe there is any ground for apprehension by the public from the flood of extravagant proposals which have been introduced there. * * * The great majority of these bills have been advanced by some organization or some sectional interest and are little likely to see the light of day from congressional committees. They do, however, represent a spirit of spending in the country which must be abandoned. I realize that drastic economy requires sacrifice of large hopes of expenditures promoted by such interests. However, I appeal to their sense of patriotism in these times not to press their demands. They should withdraw the pressure upon Government officials."

At the same time the President repeated that he would welcome any further reductions in the budget which Congress might make without impairing the proper functioning of the Federal establishment and in this connection he expressed the hope again that "we should also at last be able to bring about the wholesale elimination of overlapping in the Federal Government bureau and agencies, which will also contribute materially to the program for economy."

Nine-Billion National Bill.

Recalling that State and local governmental units throughout the country now are spending approximately $9,000,000,000 a year, Mr. Hoover suggested that often in the past Federal legislation has tended to increase the burden of local taxes by offering great sums to the States on condition they be matched dollar for dollar from the State treasuries.

"The result is pressure upon State officials by the groups who will receive benefits from these expenditures, and makes them the unwilling victims of increased government costs.

"Our first duty as a Nation," he concluded, "is to put our governmental house in order, national, State and local. With the return of prosperity the Government can undertake constructive projects both of social character and in public improvement. We can not squander ourselves into prosperity.

"The people will, of course, provide against distress, but the purpose of the Nation must be to restore employment by economic recovery. The reduction in governmental expenditures and the stability of government finance is the most fundamental step toward this end. It can contribute greatly to employment and the recovery of prosperity in agriculture. That must be our concentrated purpose."

GIFFORD FAVORS U. S. AID AS LAST RESORT

Green Declares 8,000,000 Now Idle Highest in History of Nation.

(Associated Press.)

Insisting each State can care for its own unemployed this winter, Walter S. Gifford, director of President Hoover's relief organization, said yesterday he would favor Federal help if it becomes necessary. He made this statement before the Senate manufactures subcommittee, which also heard new appeals for direct Government aid to the jobless from the railway brotherhoods and clothing workers.

Last night, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, reported unemployment was increasing. He said more than 8,000,000 workers now have no jobs and called the total the highest in the history of the Nation.

"Thousands of men and women may go down under the hardships of this winter's crisis," he said. "Broken by undernourishment, despair and defeat, they may never again be able to lead normal, self-respecting lives or to earn a living."

Gifford Stand on U. S. Aid.

Gifford expressed a belief that the increase in unemployment had been checked in the fall and would not increase during the winter, but he said: "I do not think the unemployment situation is improving."

When the President's contention that Federal aid is the opening wedge to the dole, was mentioned, Gifford replied: "I don't think much of the word dole, one way or the other—actions, not words are important now."

"If the States, counties and municipalities are unable to meet the problem," inquired La Follette, "then you will favor Federal aid?"

"That is correct," replied Gifford, "but I would want to be very sure that these units couldn't handle their problems because of the disadvantage of Federal action at this time which I have stated will hurt, rather than help, the unemployed."

500,000 Jobless on Rails.

Richberg said there were 500,000 unemployed railway workers and he emphatically warned:

"If, through any means, whether by the tin cup or the gun, the earnings of the present workers should be reduced, without a corresponding increase of employment which would put more men to work and give part-time workers more work to do, let it be recognized that hereby the present hopes and supports of 500,000 unemployed railway workers will be broken down and thereby the public responsibility for 500,000 men and their dependents will be increased."

Gifford frankly told the committee he believed taxation was the better way of meeting relief needs "in theory," but he added "we have built up another system revolving about charity and community chests and similar organizations, and in the present situation I think it is no time to change the practice."

Red Crosss Miners' Relief.

Gifford's anouncement that the Red Cross is doing $1,000,000 miners' relief job was not understood by officials of that organization.

Chairman Payne declined to comment beyond a written two-sentence statement that 68 local chapters are cooperating with other social agencies in unemployment relief in mining territory. Other officials said they were at a loss as to the source of Gifford's information.

They maintained the organization's policy has remained "absolutely unaltered" since Payne notified chapters last September that they were privileged to use any funds they had, or money collected in the November roll call, for participation in unemployment relief.

PRATT URGES NAVY UP TO LONDON PACT

(Associated Press.)

A Navy built up to the limit of the London treaty was urged upon a Senate committee yesterday by Admiral William V. Pratt with the assertion that "no sane man can say war is not going to come some day."

He added that so optimistic a view is borne out neither by the history of the world nor by present conditions.

The Navy's chief of operations and highest ranking officer defended naval men against charges of militarism he said had been made by "many peace societies," asserting their only intention is to see their country amply prepared to resist attack.

Admiral Pratt emphatically indorsed measures under consideration in both branches of Congress for building the United States fleet up to treaty limits.

A dramatic moment came when Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, asked Pratt flatly whether the present Navy is adequate to defend the country.

The admiral was about to reply when Senator Hale, of Maine, chairman of the naval committee and author of the treaty limit construction bill under consideration, asked him to reserve his reply for an executive session on the ground that this was information which should not be made public.

"We have a right to know but we ought not to advertise it," remarked Senator Keyes (Republican), New Hampshire. Other committee members agreed.

The admiral told the committee passage of both the Senate and House bills would mean that "Congress for the first time in the history of the Navy would have adopted a definite naval program extending over a period of years."

He predicted economies would result from the long-term planning.

The Hale bill provides in general terms for a treaty limit Navy, while the House measure, sponsored by Representative Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, calls for a definite $616,000,000 program.

The Senate measure, he said, would involve expenditure of $988,000,000 and would permit modernization of battleships, 21 submarines and numerous airplanes in addition to the construction provided by the Vinson bill.

"We're very anxious to really get the ships," he said. He read a letter from Secretary Stimson to the Navy Department interpreting the present one-year naval holiday as permitting construction of vessels as "replacements."

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Mayor George R. Dale today wired Louis Lodlow, Marion County Representative in Congress, demanding a Congressional inquiry into why the contest over the election of the Eighth district representative last year was dropped.

Representative Albert H. Vestal was declared reelected over Claude A. Ball, of Muncie, the Democratic nominee, although Mr. Ball was reported winner by nine votes in the first count. Later Vestal was declared winner by three votes.

FORDNEY, OF TARIFF FAME, EXPIRES AT 78

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Joseph Warren Fordney, joint author of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act, died here today. He was 78 years old.

An Old Line Republican. A protectionist and a political philosopher, Fordney—"Uncle Joe," to his friends and associates—represented the Eighth Michigan District in Congress from 1899 until 1923.

Always a party regular, Fordney once said: "I have always been a Republican and I am loyal to the principles of the party. I never went in for 'isms' and I am too old to start now. I can love a Democrat who believes honestly in the principles of his party and sticks to them. But I have no patience with men who call themselves Republicans and at the same time voice anti-Republican sentiments."

In Congress Fordney's major interest was to draw up a tariff. After the Fordney-McCumber act became law he retired. "Years ago I promised myself that when this time came I would retire," he told his colleagues.

He believed a protective tariff essential to economic welfare. "Our imports," he said, "are not regulated by the duty, but by our ability to buy. If our people are prosperous they will continue to import. So you see, our protective tariff helps rather than hinders the other countries."

Fordney had been ill for several months but his condition did not become serious until last Saturday night when he suffered a slight stroke followed by erysipelas. He is survived by his widow, nine children, 32 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be next Tuesday with burial in St. Andrew's Cemetery here.

Mr. Gaines opens his 1932 season at the Masonic Temple tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock. The public is invited to attend this series of four lectures.

Blimp Drops Ladder Into Dense Florida Swamp to Save Pair.

Municipal Airport, Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Goodyear semidirigible Puritan landed here at 3:58 p. m., bringing Art Rigney and Ishmel Escalante, both of Tampa, from the dense everglades where their plane was forced down yesterday.

Rigney and his passenger were sighted this morning by Ernest S. Hensley, McMullen Airways pilot of Tampa, who flew over the section with two passengers en route to the All-American air races here.

Unable to land in the dense everglades grass, the Puritan drifted low and dropped a ladder to the stranded fliers. They climbed aboard. An autogiro piloted by Jim Faulkner led the dirigible to the section about 25 miles north of Miami. Apparently Rigney and Escalante had had nothing to eat since they took off from Tampa.

24 Coast Guardsmen Face Rum Bribe Court Martial

(Associated Press.)

An accident to a rumrunning vessel off Long Island put the Coast Guard on a trail of petty bribery leading to court-martial charges against 24 of its enlisted personnel.

Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, disclosed yesterday that four men had already faced Coast Guard court-martial and 20 others would do so. No commissioned officers were involved. Admiral Billard said no Coast Guard officer had ever been charged with such an offense.

He declared that investigation after the rumrunner went aground showed a few men in the Fire Island, Blue Point, Bellport and Georgica Stations had accepted $80 to $200 from smugglers to permit them to land liquor. He said that summary action had been taken by the service to punish the offenders.

The admiral's announcement was made following a statement by United States Attorney Ameli, in Brooklyn, that the conspiracy concerned a large number of men in the New York area and involved up to $1,000,000 in bribes. Admiral Billard held the total of the bribery disclosed was trifling and added it was a Coast Guard investigation and not a civil inquiry that disclosed the situation. The men involved, he said, will answer to military courts rather than the civil courts.

Inquiry Holds Up Postmasterships

Irregularities Charged in North Carolina Lead to Bailey's Move.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, has held up all postmaster nominations for the State pending study of complaints made to him of "irregularities in the appointments."

Bailey said he was making an inquiry to ascertain the facts. Complaints are before him also of "unjust discrimination against former soldiers in the making of the appointments."

"You understand," he said in a statement yesterday, "that a bill of indictment is pending in the middle district of North Carolina charging the secretary of the Republican State committee on counts of soliciting funds from Federal officeholders." About 25 names have been submitted to the Senate for postmaster appointments so far by President Hoover.

1400 men and women

HELPED YOU COOK YOUR DINNER

Light a match, turn a handle—and gas is ready to serve you, always. It's the modern miracle of housekeeping—a miracle wrought by 1,400 men and women..and faithful service..and giant machines.

Day and night gas is made in mammoth towers, washed five times to prevent dirt in your home, and sent into the pipes that serve you. Huge tanks are always kept full of a reserve supply so that even in periods of sudden demand, you may have all the gas you want.

A governor station near your home is silently working, day and night, to assure constant pressure in your pipes, sufficient to maintain the heat you need.

New construction is always going on, to improve methods and extend service—approximately $1,500,000 has been spent on this alone in 1931.

Vast sums of money and an army of workers all take part in that simple act—when you light a match and turn a handle. They guarantee that the gas will be there, always clean and dependable, for your comfort and convenience.

U. S. NOTE TO JAPAN SHOWS LEAGUE VAIN

Tacit Reaction of Approval by Smaller Nations Is Detected Here.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Secretary Stimson's straightforward declaration of an American policy in Manchuria based on American diplomatic tradition threw into bold relief yesterday the weak and ineffectual efforts of the League of Nations in the same emergency. The United States stands out as the champion of the smaller nations which the league had forfeited by its subservient attitude toward Japan in the present crisis, it was generally admitted here.

Prompt reactions of approval, tacit but nevertheless sincere, were heard from diplomatic representatives of the smaller nations in both hemispheres. Many Latin-American diplomats saw in the American attitude toward Japan the inspiring kind of leadership which they expect to find in Washington.

One diplomat declared that the present situation showed that the league was an excellent agency for "handling small questions involving great powers, or great questions involving small powers."

Most Definite Step Yet.

During the various efforts that the league or the league council has made in an effort to halt the Japanese advance into Manchuria, no one step was as definite or as decisive as the note of Secretary Stimson of yesterday. When the League Council started to discuss the Japanese invasion of Manchuria the Japanese army of Gen. Honjo was only at Mukden. Since then, however, while the delegates of the council have been sitting in Paris and at Geneva, the Japanese advance has swept through Mukden, Tsitsihar, and is now at the Great Wall, in China proper.

American "dollar diplomacy" served notice on the Japanese and Chinese Governments that any agreements, treaties or understandings made in violation of the "Open Door," the nine-power treaty or the pact of Paris would not be recognized by this Government. Such an unequivocal stand, it was declared here, if taken by the league council at the time American participation at Geneva was first announced, would perhaps have resulted in confining the Japanese military advances to northern Manchuria.

This American stand, which has definitely eclipsed the efforts of the league, will result in similar actions by other signatories of the nine-power pact. China will undoubtedly follow the American example and recall to Japan their common obligations in much the same fashion as Secretary Stimson did. Of the other countries that have subscribed to the nine-power agreement, there is some doubt about the solidarity of France, Great Britain and the Netherlands in this present move.

French Stand Already Taken.

France has taken the initiative to recall "courteously" to the Japanese foreign office the obligations of Japan under the terms of a Japanese-French treaty in 1907. This action was taken by French Ambassador de Martel in Tokyo earlier in the week. It is believed very probable that the Quai d'Orsay will consider this demonstration to be of sufficient importance without taking the further move of associating the French foreign office with Secretary Stimson's declaration.

The important commercial interests of Great Britain in the Orient and the imminent political changes which may follow the present state of unrest in India will induce considerable reflection in the British Government before any cooperative action is taken by them.

The Italian Government of Premier Mussolini was believed to be preparing to take similar diplomatic action to that of Secretary Stimson. The Italian Embassy here had received no official information, but definite announcement from Palazzo Chigi, the Italian ministry of foreign affairs, was expected during the night.

Position of Netherlands.

At the Dutch Legation, the national interests of the Netherlands were thus expressed:

"The government of The Hague has an empire of some 65,000,000 people in the Orient. We are friends of both China and Japan. Our commerce in the southeastern Pacific is of such proportions that we will have to consider very carefully the situation that has been created by the action of the American Secretary of State before deciding on what further steps the government of the Netherlands shall take."

An attache of the British Embassy declared that so far as he knew no information had been received from London with regard to a British declaration similar to the Stimson statement. However, it was believed that in view of the joint statement of British Premier MacDonald and of President Hoover at the Rapidan, some form of British corroborative action will be taken by the MacDonald government. Secretary Stimson's legalistic staff of precedent hunters unearthed the Hoover-MacDonald communique, which referred to the pact of Paris as a "positive obligation to direct national policy in accordance with its pledge."

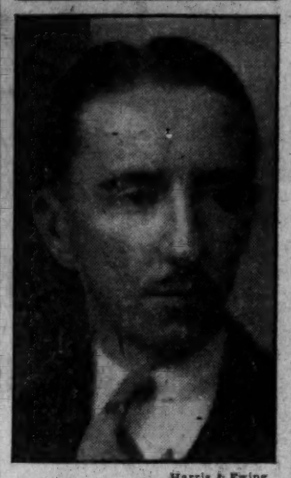
The Belgian attitude, which usually docilely follows the diplomatic leadership of France, will be as reserved as the attitude of the Quai d'Orsay.

Portugal in all probability on account of her century-old economic vassalage to Great Britain will be expected to follow the decision of the foreign office with regard to the nine-power treaty.

The success of previous American declarations of similar emphasis were last seen in 1921 when Japan announced that it had surrendered all title to the Shantung Peninsula and complete evacuation of her troops from the region had been ordered. This action of the Tokyo government followed the note which was dispatched to both Chinese and Japanese foreign offices which recited in the same terms as Secretary Stimson employed in his note that "the Government of the United States can not recognize any agreement or undertaking which has been entered into or which may be entered into * * * impairing the treaty rights of the United States and its citizens in China, the political or territorial integrity of China or the international policy relative to China commonly known as the open door policy."

This note was dispatched in May, 1915, and the troubled political conditions of the world during the World War were responsible for the delay in carrying out the suggestions of the American Government.

CHANGES PLAN.



Harris & Ewing.

MICHAEL F. KEOGH.

TACTICS TIGHTENED IN MAGAZINE DRIVE

Individual Papers to Replace Blanket Ones Against 133 Dealers.

An important change in tactics to be used in prosecution of 133 dealers arrested for having for sale alleged indecent magazines was taken last night by Michael F. Keogh, Assistant United States Attorney, in charge of the Government's case by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

The information paper originally made out against the defendants contained references to three "humor types" of magazines. Those informations will be discarded and new ones made up to charge the dealers with a separate offense for each magazine.

The situation as Mr. Keogh now has it lined up is: A dealer who had all three magazines for sale will probably be charged with three separate offenses, so that, in the event of an acquittal for offering one magazine, he can be tried anew for possession of the others. Before the new papers were made up, a dealer might be acquitted because one of the magazines was held to be passable despite the fact that the others might have been ruled improper. The first informations were "collective," while these are "individual."

Meantime Mr. Rover, having perused one publication that had been brought to his attention, declared unequivocally he would bar its sale here. That book was written by a widely known actress whose play here was stopped after a short run.

Hearings on motions to be brought up in Police Court today by six of those arrested, probably will be continued to next week, because of Mr. Keogh's plan to make out new papers. The new papers will be filed in the same six cases today, but preliminary hearings will not be held until next week.

All the cases are hinging on the outcome of these six cases.

Born in Washington, Mr. Garland attended public school here and later went to the Maryland Agricultural College and the Naval Academy. As a railroad engineer he worked for some time with the Richmond & Danville Railroad.

In 1891 he entered the District surface division. Later he was made an assistant engineer in the Water Department, and in 1915 was named superintendent of that unit.

EDUCATORS TESTIFY FOR BEER'S RETURN

(Associated Press.)

Witnesses before the Senate manufactures subcommittee testified yesterday during its study of bills to legalize beer that sale of the brew would decrease use of "hard liquor" and halt "the triumphal march of bootleggers."

In a hearing room crowded with prohibitionists and antiprohibitionists, these views from two educators, a doctor and Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, strongly supporting beer, were presented.

Dr. P. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, and Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, were among the prohibitionists present. They are expected to be heard before the group completes its work.

The Crusaders, an organization opposing prohibition, also were represented.

Fear of Saloon Return Alleged.

Senator Bingham, the first witness, strongly recommended "good, wholesome beer," as a beverage, and said his intent was to show 4 per cent beer was not intoxicating. He explained that beer, under his bill, could be sold in public only at restaurants and hotels with meals, as assurance against fears of those who though saloons might be reopened.

Senator Bingham read a letter from Dean Clarence Mendell, of Yale College. In it, Dean Mendell said "boys here at Yale" had tried to get beer rather than "hard liquor," but that bootleggers provided the latter, which was easier to handle and "more profitable."

"I am convinced that if 4 per cent beer were made legal," Mendell's letter added, "that before long the hard liquor tradition would be eliminated."

"Would Halt Bootleggers."

Prof. Yandell Henderson, of Yale, said it would take "two or three quarts" of 4 per cent beer to equal the alcoholic content of five or six cocktails in the afternoon before dinner. He figured it would take "eight or ten quarts" of 4 per cent beer to produce intoxication.

Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner of New York, held beer would promote temperance and health and would mean "the return to prosperity."

"In my opinion it would mean that a large percentage of the male population now drinking hard liquor would resort to beer," he said. He called beer "a good drink and not intoxicating," adding:

"It would halt the triumphal march of bootleggers."

Today the committee will hear Representative William E. Hull (Republican), Illinois; J. C. Murray, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, and J. R. Nauff, former secretary of that organization.

Gen. ConnorNamed To Head West Point

Gen. Simonds to Succeed Him as Commandant of War College.

Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, commandant of the Army War College, was appointed superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point yesterday. The appointment is effective April 30, 1932.

Gen. Connor, who has been in Washington since 1928, will replace Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, who retires for age, April 30.

Brig. Gen. George S. Simonds, assistant chief of staff in the war plans division, will succeed Gen. Connor here.

Gen. Connor is a native of Wisconsin. He attended the University of Iowa before going to the Military Academy in 1893. He is a member of the Army and Navy and Chevy Chase Country Clubs.

military operations, for Manchuria virtually is an independent state.

Japan's activities in Manchuria have not infringed existing instruments of peace, he said, because Japan is acting in self-defense, "which is the fundamental right of a nation to its existence, recognized both by the nine-power pact and the Kellogg pact."

Bearing out his words, he intimated that Japan might land marines in China proper or blockade principal Chinese ports as means of combating the anti-Japanese boycott and halting what he said were heavy losses incurred by Japanese merchants.

Shortly after the emperor had escaped a bomb directed at him, Premier Inukai visited the palace, tendered the government's apologies and proffered the resignations of his ministry in accordance with the custom surrounding attempts against the throne.

Murder Attempt Described.

The premier was instructed to continue in office until further notice and the grand chamberlain left for Okitsu to lay the matter before the aged elder statesman, Prince Saionji.

The attempted assassination was described by an eyewitness, James L. Vierhus, who is an American. The bomb was hurled in front of the emperor's carriage as he was passing the Metropolitan Police headquarters on the way home from a military review, Vierhus said, and exploded under the preceding carriage of Count Makino, minister of the imperial household, without injury to any one.

"As the second carriage passed me," he said, "I noticed a queer sort of gray object hurtling through the air. Then there was an explosion and a puff of smoke. All the officials and the mounted escort showed great presence of mind, and although the emperor's horses shied, his carriage scarcely slackened its pace. A second later it passed over the spot where the bomb burst and went toward the palace."

Young Korean Captured.

A young Korean named Pihosho was captured by police with another bomb in his possession and charged with the crime. Authorities said they had information indicating he had been sent here by the provisional Korean government at Shanghai and had been given $150 expense money to develop the Korean independence movement.

Nanking, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—China will invoke article 16 of the league covenant against Japan at the next meeting of the council on January 25, vice minister of foreign affairs, Kan Chai Hou, said today in an address before a group of students.

He did not amplify his statement, but it was recalled the article in question provides for sanctions of an economic and military nature "should any members of the league resort to war in disregard of its covenants under article 12, 13 or 15."

"It shall be the duty of the council in such case," the article says in part, "to recommend to the several governments concerned what effective military, naval or air force the members of the league shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the league."

Foreign Minister Eugene Chen received Secretary of State Stimson's note invoking the peace treaties from American Consul Gen. Willys R. Peck and said he would prepare an answer which probably would go to Washington on Saturday.

Austria Passes Drastic Foreign Exchange Bill

Vienna, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—An amendment to the Austrian foreign exchange restriction measure, which is described as almost as severe as the Hungarian program, was carried today in the National Assembly.

It forbids Austrian exporters to invoice or sell goods except against foreign exchange. Likewise it prohibits banks and private individuals in Austria from opening accounts for foreigners in Austrian schillings. Exporters are not permitted to grant foreign buyers credits exceeding six months, and all clearing arrangements must be handled exclusively by the national bank, to which all foreign money must be offered.

NINE NAVY OFFICERS WILL CHANGE POSTS

Flag Command Shifts Begin After End of Tours, During August.

Nine changes in flag commands in the United States Navy, to take effect during 1932 at the expiration of the normal tours of duty, were announced yesterday by the Secretary of the Navy.

The change in command of the United States Fleet is expected to be made in August, at which time the necessary changes in the line of command in the battle force will follow.

The changes are listed as follows:

Rear Admiral Joel R. P. Pringle, U. S. Navy, from commander Battleship Division 3, battleships, Battle Force, to commander battleships, Battle Force, with the rank of vice admiral which accompanies that command.

DAWES WILL RETIRE AFTER GENEVA WORK

armament conference our coming work at Geneva on February 2. Our delegation will sail on January 20.

"After I have completed the general work which our Government has in mind for me at Geneva as chairman of the American delegation, I do not expect to remain for the technical work which will be taken up conjointly with the disarmament experts.

"I shall then resign as Ambassador to Great Britain and return to Chicago, where I will take up my old work as a banker and become chairman of the board of the Central Republic Bank and Trust Co. After a long absence in official positions, I am looking forward to the renewal of my old associations and to life as a private citizen of Chicago."

Move Seen as Significent.

Despite this declaration of intention to return to private life, political leaders last night regarded the sudden resignation significantly.

As Vice President under Calvin Coolidge, in 1928, Dawes did not permit his name be used in the Republican presidential race that year. He was, however, a close friend and political associate of Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, who made a race against President Hoover for the nomination. Dawes also was on close terms with Senator Watson, of Indiana, who won the Republican presidential delegation from Hoover in that State.

After the Republican convention in 1928, Dawes openly supported Hoover in the campaign, appearing with him when he spoke in New York.

There was no mention of Mr. Hoover in the Dawes statement of resignation. He was not present Thursday night at the White House when President Hoover entertained a party in honor of Vice President Curtis.

Rufus Dawes, a brother, was at that dinner, however.

Praised by Watson.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, last night declared the Dawes resignation "a serious loss to the country."

"It deprives our Nation of one of its ablest and most versatile representatives abroad," said Watson. "His resignation is to be regretted because he brought to the discharge of his obligations a comprehensive knowledge of foreign affairs, coupled with a thoroughgoing Americanism."

President Hoover remained silent last night upon Dawes' announcement of his intention.

It was understood unofficially, however, that White House officials had been informed of the ambassador's intended retirement, but had not been informed of the exact time he would announce it.

Hoover Is Silent.

Newspaper calls to the Executive Mansion found little surprise occasioned there. It was said definitely, however, the President would have nothing to say about it at present.

High ranking officials of the State Department received news of the resignation with complete surprise. They said they had had no intimations of an impending immediate resignation and expressed regret that it had been announced in advance of the Geneva conference.

BARRING REPORTERS FROM COURT UPHELD

Kentucky Judge's Ruling Against Knoxville Newspaper Stands.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Kentucky Court of Appeals late today refused to force Judge Henry R. Prewitt to admit Knoxville newspaper reporters to his court at Mount Sterling. The circuit judge barred them on the ground that the paper had published a "libellous, slanderous and false" editorial about the conduct of labor trials in his court.

The Tennessee paper, a member of the Scripps-Howard chain, declined to retract or apologize and with Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, as its counsel, sought a temporary and a permanent writ against the judge's order.

The Appellate Court denied the temporary writ. The petition for a permanent writ still is before the court.

Chief Justice Richard Priest Dietzman gave the opinion in which the whole court concurred. It said the showing so far made did not warrant issuance of the writ requested.

Arguments on the motion for the temporary writ were heard yesterday with the former Secretary of War speaking for the newspaper, and Judge Prewitt's 28-year-old son, Allen Prewitt, pleading for his father. It was young Prewitt's first appearance as counsel before Kentucky's highest tribunal.

Another son, Reid, aided in preparation of the case. Judge Prewitt was unable to attend because of the Hightower trial now in progress.

Informed of the decision in court, he smiled broadly and said to friends, "Well, the boys have won out over Newton D. Baker."

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF PASSAGE INDICATED

Test Vote Shows Measure Denounced by G. O. P. Has Clear Sailing.

(Associated Press.)

Certain passage by the House of the Democratic tariff measure to give Congress powers taken away from the President was indicated yesterday by a test vote.

Setting off torrential debate on the historic question, a 214 to 174 vote decided that the bill would be taken up under regular procedure without limiting debate.

It was attacked as "a political gesture" by the Republican opponents, voicing the attitude of the administration, and met with a Democratic assertion they accepted full responsibility for its provisions.

Leaders expected to send it to the Senate quickly, but Republican stalwarts predicted a veto if it reaches the White House.

Drafted originally by the Senate-House Democratic policy committee, the bill would provide for an international economic conference looking to the ending of tariff wars among the nations. Two other principal phases provide for the removal from the President of the power to control the flexible provision of the present law, and the establishment of a consumers' counsel with the Tariff Commission.

Blame Tariff for Slump.

The fifteen Democrats on the ways and means committee that approved the bill held in their report that existing economic conditions were due to the Republican tariff and that their measure would rectify the situation.

Chairman Collier said "that this widespread depression has been aggravated by the high, and in many instances prohibitive, rates of the tariff act of 1930 can not be successfully denied." He attacked the flexible provision under the Smoot-Hawley act and said Congress, and not the President, should change the tariff rates.

The ten Republican members on the committee in their minority report said:

"In our opinion the legislation is not necessary, nor required by business or other interests of the country, but is a political activity. It contains provisions which the Republican party has heretofore rejected as unsound, or are in direct contradiction to its policies.

Called Political Gesture.

"It destroys the flexible provisions of the tariff act of 1930, creates an expensive and unnecessary office with additional burdens on the public funds, and submits the protective tariff policy of the Nation to the participation of foreign countries, which if carried into effect will take from or impair the constitutional prerogative of the House of Representatives to control all such legislation."

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, coauthor of the Smoot-Hawley act, said "it puts the trafft back into politics."

"This is a Democratic bill, and we are accepting the responsibility for it."

The Mississippian predicted that if the Democrats captured the White House and Congress in all the fall elections a bill revising the rate would be enacted.

Desperadoes' Brother Held, Though Cleared

Houston, Tex., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Paul Young, brother of two desperadoes who killed six officers near Springfield, Mo., while resisting arrest, was held here today, although exonerated by Missouri police of complicity in the Springfield massacre.

Police who questioned him, said he had nothing to do with the sending of a threatening letter to J. F. Tomlinson, whose tip led to the discovery of the brothers, Harry and Jennings Young, but detained him on request of Springfield authorities. The latter said they had nothing against Paul Young, but were unwilling to agree to his release as yet.

AL SMITH'S REMEDIES.

If Alfred E. Smith, standard bearer of the Democratic party in 1928, cherishes hope of making himself indispensable to the party in 1932, his address at the Jackson Day dinner gave no evidence of it. For the most part the former candidate's address was made up of criticism of the Republican party and a eulogy of the Democratic party as providing the "leadership required to light the way to peace, progress and prosperity." Having demanded a Federal bond issue to create work for the unemployed, he inveighed against the evils of excessive taxation, which would necessarily result from an enormous bond issue.

The only definite recommendation which Gov. Smith made for turning back the tide of depression was "an issue of Federal bonds for necessary public improvements." But he did not estimate the amount that would be needed to give jobs to the unemployed in this way, and he ignored the extensive borrowing in which the Government has already indulged to carry on a relief program. Why would he impose this responsibility upon Uncle Sam? A large share of Government improvements are necessarily located in Washington, and an extensive building program is already under way here. Does Mr. Smith suppose that the Government could profitably initiate enough public improvements in New York City, for example, to take care of its 700,000 jobless men?

Mr. Smith's attempt to unload local responsibilities upon the Federal Government is particularly inconsistent with the widespread demands of his colleagues throughout the country for a return to the principles of Democracy. The cardinal doctrine of the Democratic party is the maintenance of States' rights and local responsibility. Yet Gov. Smith pronounces this doctrine indefensible merely because it has the indorsement of the Republican President.

Inasmuch as the depression is Nation-wide, how could the problem be mitigated by siphoning relief funds all the way from the States to Washington and back to the States again? Under any circumstances the people must pay the cost. A statesman with a national outlook would not suggest that a part of the taxpayers' contribution toward relief be wasted through bureaucracy.

No attempt was made to reconcile Gov. Smith's proposed bond issue with his declaration against "excessive taxes." Nothing can be more certain than that a bond issue would mean higher taxes over a long period. The former governor would evade the relief issue by passing part of it on to a future generation.

In other parts of his address Gov. Smith was vague, except in his denunciation of prohibition. He spoke of European cquntries looking to the United States for leadership, and said that the Republican party had failed in this respect. Would he, then, launch the United States upon a policy of saving the world? No one would guess that the Democratic party is pregnant with new wisdom to apply to this economic derangement by listening to the 1928 candidate's advice to the warriors of 1932.

JULIUS ROSENWALD.

From every rank of life, and from all parts of the United States, tributes are paid to the character and nobility of the late Julius Rosenwald. The humblest as well as the most exalted are delighted to do him honor. His splendid generosity, both of wealth and spirit, manifesting itself in good works of great magnitude which benefit tens of thousands of individuals, without regard to race or color, evokes universal praise. Mr. Rosenwald's keen judgment in the disposition of his gifts, whereby those now living shall be the beneficiaries, is almost as notable as his munificence. He had seen well-meant endowments misused by trustees who piled up capital instead of dispensing it as contemplated by the donors. Some great eleemosynary institutions have been managed more with an eye to conservation of wealth than beneficial application of it. Mr. Rosenwald took pains to make his beneficence reach the individuals for whom it was intended.

During the World War Mr. Rosenwald gave his time and wonderful abilities to the Government, modestly and without thought of self. His work in Washington was not only that of a patriot, but because of his great ability it was most helpful to the Nation.

The name of Julius Rosenwald will be inscribed forever in the annals of America's great and good men.

WARNING TO JAPAN.

Japan is in complete control of Manchuria and has pushed its activities against "bandits" beyond the Great Wall into China proper, but the Manchurian episode is by no means closed. The United States Government has informed Japan in no uncertain terms that infringement of American rights in China will not be tolerated. The territorial integrity of China and the open door policy in that great country are guaranteed by multilateral treaties. Japan will not be allowed to abrogate those treaties without suffering serious consequences.

In some quarters there has been a disposition to regard the Manchurian incident as closed. Japan has taken over a vast and rich territory. Since the League of Nations failed to halt this invasion and China is impotent, it has been assumed that Japan would assimilate Manchuria and make it a Nipponese province. But Japan can not do that without arousing the antagonism of every great commercial nation. The note from Washington is a reminder to the Tokyo government that there are other than military forces that may be marshaled to defeat the ends of imperialism.

President Hoover is to be congratulated for taking this firm stand, without confusing the American attitude with that of the League of Nations. Other Governments, notably those of France, Great Britain and Italy, may be expected to take similar action. Their position will be much stronger than when they delivered a league lecture to Japan on her moral responsibilities.

In the American note the problem is reduced to simple terms of self-interest. The United States is not asserting a right to meddle in the affairs of Japan and China, but is demanding that its own rights be maintained without encroachment. This is a solid footing. It is on this basis that the State Department should have conducted all of its negotiations on the Manchurian issue.

Americans would not go to Manchuria to fight for freedom of the Chinese from domination by another Oriental nation. It is not to be supposed that the United States would go to war to protect its rights in Manchuria. But that question will probably never arise. If this country along with the other great powers insists upon the maintenance of treaty rights, Japan will not dare to deny them. Japan feels at liberty to encroach upon China, but it is another matter to infringe the treaty rights of the great powers of the world. The attitude of the American Government will be conducive to a final settlement of the Manchurian issue on a basis that should save China from some of the dangers with which she is threatened.

RUSSIA SLOWS DOWN.

Interest in Soviet Russia and its attempt to build a communistic state is on the wane. During the last six months the world has paid comparatively little attention to the Moscow experiment. The attitude of the United States toward the Soviet has not changed. Communism and national perfidy are abhorrent to the American philosophy of life.

The world depression has had a sobering effect upon the Soviet. In the beginning the Moscow authorities regarded it as a great opportunity to spread unrest and foment world revolution. But a wave of reaction against radicalism has swept over most parts of the world. Various Socialist governments have been turned out of office. The people have come to realize that enforcement of fundamental economic principles is necessary. They have no faith in communistic ventures, and the necessity for unified action to meet the emergencies of the depression has driven them into conservative efforts. Rigid law enforcement has held the Reds in check when they were disposed to violence. Only in China and in some parts of India have the emissaries of Moscow been able to make any headway.

Within Russia the glamour of the five-year plan has subsided. Grandiose schemes for surpassing the United States in industrial production within a decade have been abandoned. Communistic principles have given way to state capitalism, and the equality of man is resolved into compulsory labor. The Russian people now know that paradise is not attached to the end of the five-year plan, and they are demanding more of what they produce for their own consumption. Gradually the dictatorship is yielding to these demands and withdrawing from its foreign activities.

The extortion of grain from the Soviet collective farmers was not successful this year. Hence, less grain was available for export. Two years ago the Soviet launched a program of exporting everything that it could commandeer to pay for machinery and equipment purchased from other countries. But commodity prices fell so low that this type of dumping did not pay. Many countries erected embargoes against Soviet slave-made products. Furthermore, the Moscow regime discovered that successful industries could not be established overnight. In spite of the wholesale importation of German and American engineers, the new Soviet factories are thwarted at every turn by red tape and inefficiency. Industrial production has fallen far below the schedules fixed in the five-year plan in most instances. People will not starve indefinitely to buy machinery that can not profitably be used.

Soviet authorities are outlining another elaborate plan, but along somewhat different lines. The Soviet has used up all available foreign credit, and it is questionable whether it will be able to meet its obligations. Necessity forces a slower pace. More attention must be given to feeding and housing Russia's destitute millions and less to demoralizing the world market. The menace of Soviet industry has been mitigated by the hunger of the peasants and the endless blunders of inexperienced factory workers.

THE SHAM TARIFF BILL.

The House of Representatives, under control of the Democratic party, is about to decide the most important issue that has confronted it this session. That issue is the Collier tariff bill. It was rushed to the floor of the House without adequate hearings, and an attempt is being made to railroad it through without giving members a chance to weigh its consequences. Unless it is checked this measure will leave a lasting stigma upon the House and its leaders.

What is the purpose of this bill? It makes no attempt to change tariff rates. The only provision that might have resulted in ultimate duty changes—that authorizing the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with other nations—was deleted by the ways and means committee. As it stands the chief result of the Collier bill would be to prevent the adjustment of the tariff schedules under the flexible provision, and thus to perpetuate all rates in the Smoot-Hawley act, which has been so vigorously denounced by the Democratic party.

Under the present arrangement the Tariff Commission is rapidly adjusting rates that are too high and others that are too low, thus making the tariff conform, as nearly as possible, to present-day conditions. Apparently the Democrats are unwilling that this process should go on. The Collier bill would allow no changes on recommendation of the commission, except by act of Congress. It would be impossible to get such bills through the present Congress with its virtually equal political division. There can be no such thing as a flexible provision administered by Congress, which is in session only a fraction of the time. The Democratic bill would deprive American producers, on one hand, and American consumers, on the other, of all benefits that may be derived from duty adjustments during this critical period.

It is an insult to the intelligence of the public to offer such a bill when foreigners are steadily encroaching upon the American market. In addition to arresting flexible adjustments, the Democratic measure would instruct the President to invite foreign governments to take a hand in shaping United States tariff policy. Secretary Mills points out that there is already in existence "a permanent international conference" on tariffs and trade operated by the League of Nations. Apparently that agency is so inconspicuous that the Democratic leaders of the House never heard of it. Yet they propose to spend taxpayers' money for another futile agency which would be able to accomplish nothing, except to induce foreign governments to raise their duties against American goods so that they would be in a better position to negotiate.

Even in many Democratic circles this bill is recognized as a political sham. If it is given approval of the House it will further tarnish the reputation of that body for the passage of reckless legislation, and will seriously shake the confidence of the American people in the capacity of the Democratic leaders to direct national affairs.

If all the "public servants" in both the Democratic and Republican parties were seated side by side they would not reach an agreement.

YAPLANDER MONEY

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Yap, you may remember, is a tiny, almost microscopic island that is part of the Caroline group, lying between Guam and the Philippines. An insignificant spot of land as far as size goes, it caused quite a pother after the allies took it from Germany after the war. It is valuable as a cable station and as a relaying point for radio, and a great many fists were shaken over it until its status finally was settled. This was done in 1922 by a treaty signed by the United States and Japan, recognizing the Japanese mandate over the island, but securing to the United States certain cable rights.

Nothing much was heard about Yap again until about five years later, when the Immigration Bureau announced that the inhabitants of the island were snubbing us. At the time when immigrants from everywhere on the globe were trying to crash our gates, the haughty Yaplanders joined with the snooty folk of Muscat, Nauru, Ruanda and French Togoland and would have none of us.

The Yaplanders are now back in the news again under somewhat picturesque circumstances. The Chase National Bank, of New York, maintains in its main office one of the largest collections of moneys of the world. The big-hearted Yaplanders and their coins weren't represented, and so to overcome this defect the islanders got together and shipped the bank a few coins—three specimens of their money, which is called "fei."

The money arrived a day or so ago practically in the form of bowlders. It seems the innocent Yaplanders are also a conservative outfit and they still stick to the old Stone Age standards. One coin sent is about 200 years old, is 26 inches in diameter and weighs 120 pounds. It is reported this coin has the value of an 18-foot canoe, one-quarter of an acre of land, or about 10,000 coconuts. It is said, for instance, that when a Yaplander transaction involves too great a sum to be moved conveniently the new owner simply chisels his mark on his money and leaves it in his neighbor's yard until he can round up enough help to tote it home. Sometimes the money is never moved, and there is a record of one coin remaining at the same place for more than a century.

Most of the Yap money is in the form of disks of quarried limestones. Some resemble millstones in shape, and they weigh anything up to five tons. There is no mint on the island. All the money comes in the rough from the Pelew Islands, and the Yaplanders then shape it up and give it a value. Discovering limestone on Yap would be just like discovering gold anywhere else.

A gauge has been perfected that measures .000001 of an inch. Progressives ought to order one to record their progress in Congress in place of the surveyor's chain they ordered last fall.

The head of the Swedish match trust says Europe will settle her troubles, and there is no need of the United States getting panicky over them. And how much less over our own.

To date invoking things against Tokyo seems only to provoke the army in Manchuria to displays of greater disdain.

One proof of capacity for national leadership given by Gov. Roosevelt is that he has played shrewd politics as New York's chief executive.

Manchuria is only about one-fifth the size of China proper. It might be well to have an understanding with Japan as to what proportion of a nation must be taken to constitute an act of war.

The only explanation for the market upturn is that the new year bump must really have hit that elusive bottom.

The reason Tel & Tel is the biggest corporation is that nearly 1,000 Americans tell it by telephone every second.

PAUL HUDSON.

"SOS"

Man is slowly gaining in his struggle with the relentless sea, thanks to his inventiveness. One invention after another, each a step forward, is gradually giving man the advantage, says the Wall Street Journal. Guns that throw lifelines, breeches buoys that provide a path to safety, airplanes and now the telephone, have been the means of rescuing 6,000 persons in coastal United States from the sea in one year alone and rescuing more than 20,000 persons from vessels in danger.

More than 11,000 men of the United States Coast Guard, engaged in the day and night watch over lives and property, have been provided by the research laboratories of the Bell Telephone System with small condensed broadcasting stations. These sets are portable and when a distress call is received a division officer on shore becomes the nerve center of a whole network of communication by which he is able to call and send help from one area to another in the shortest possible space of time.

False Fire Alarms Merely One of Young Love's Antics

By JOHN J. DALY

Consider the case of courtship that led a wooing youth into the toils of the law.

It seems that every night, after he had paid court to his light-o'-love, this young man became so jubilant he went down to the corner nearest her home and turned in an alarm of fire.

As the automotive fire department dashed past the fair one's home, it was the signal for great rejoicing. There was no fire in the neighborhood, but a raging holocaust burned in the young man's breast.

After some 30 or 40 false alarms, the boy became curious. He wanted to know how the firemen felt about these nocturnal dashes over the asphalt, looking for smoke; for where there is smoke there is usually fire.

* * * *

The firemen, by questioning and satisfying their suspicions, learned that this was really a case of love's labor lost; that they had been merely adding one more thrill to the love that never dies. So they had the boy arrested.

Now, released in the custody of his parents, this young fellow promises to pursue the even tenor of courtship in a less flamboyant manner. Even if his heart goes pitty-pat, he will leave the alarm boxes idle on their poles until such time as his ardor actually sets fire to the young lady's heart. That, of course, will happen one of these fine days, or nights, when the young gallant gets ready to pop the eternal question.

A man with all this enthusiasm in his veins is liable not only to set fire to his sweetheart's heart, but her home too, and to explode from the very joy of existence.

In the palmy days of the troubadours there was established in Provence a tribunal before which any one offending in affairs of the heart was called. It was known as the court of love. In all the annals of that court, no case ever came before it such as this, where a swain turned in false alarms on his way home from wooing. Probably they had no such things as fire alarm boxes on the public streets in Provence, which is now called Bouches-du-Rhone. There was a case, however, where a young gallant, after having proposed, went and shot up the jail-house, setting all the prisoners free, and on another occasion a lover, on his way home from his tryst, set fire to the city hall.

* * * *

It seems that in all ages and in all climes, courtship has a strange way of affecting men of different temperaments. There was, for instance, in Schenectady, the young electrical genius who turned out all the lights in the city each night when he left his post in a power plant to visit his fiancee. It was the signal of his departure.

The authorities broke up this custom, in time, when his employers gave the young man his walking papers.

In love, there is no telling what a man will do.

PRO AND CON

Parallel Emergencies.

Minneapolis Journal.

Fourteen years ago all but a negligible handful of senators and representatives of both parties were willing and able to adjourn politics long enough to enact promptly important war measures submitted by President Woodrow Wilson, and drawn up with the assistance and the advice of able thinkers and doers.

In the face of the emergency existing in 1917-1918, such adjournment of politics was rightly considered an evidence of high patriotism.

Today senators and representatives of both parties are asked by President Herbert Hoover to adjourn politics long enough to effectuate promptly eight of the twelve points in a program submitted by the President, and drawn up with the assistance and the advice of able thinkers and doers, designed to hasten recovery from economic and industrial depression.

In the face of the emergency at present existing, the adjournment of politics for which Mr. Hoover asks would also be an evidence of high patriotism.

Those Millionaires.

Hibbing (Minn.) Tribune.

Almost at the very hour when Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, was throwing a fit because millionaires had increased 72 per cent in the eight years from 1920 to 1928, the newspapers were carrying the Treasury announcement that millionaires in the United States decreased 71 per cent from 1929 to 1930. Funny, isn't it, that we were better off when the millionaires were increasing 71 per cent than when they were decreasing 71 per cent?

Formality.

Lorain Journal.

Maybe now that Japan has Manchuria, she'd like to have the League of Nations give her a mandate for it, so it will be all legal and everything, like the territories the other powers have annexed.

Popularity vs. Qualification.

Kansas City Star.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick thinks President Hoover is not a popular leader and that the Republican party should not give too much consideration to his claims for renomination if it should appear some other candidate would have a better chance of election.

If popularity is the sole qualification for leadership with Republicans, we admit we would hesitate to advise them where to look for a leader. We leave that to Mrs. McCormick. But perhaps there are other qualifications, and even other considerations for the Republicans to think of. It has sometimes been thought character and ability were qualifications not to be wholly overlooked, and that even when these, as manifest in a leader, have not made headway against conditions for which that leader was not responsible, considerations of justice and public faith required that support of him should not be withdrawn for that reason.

A Third Party.

Fall River Herald News.

Talk has been revived of a third party in the coming national political campaign. There has been talk of it before but nothing has come of it since the flower of the "Bull Moose" bloomed for a brief spell and withered, never since to be revived.

The so-called independents in Congress may be able to muster a ticket that would command more than passing attention, but it appears doubtful. There is no Theodore Roosevelt to organize and lead them and without such a dynamic and commanding personality, success of a third party in these disturbed times would appear slim indeed.

Overlooked.

Macon Telegraph.

If Mr. Hoover's administration had thought to collect an amusement tax on that first Wickersham report there wouldn't have been any Federal deficit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Hunger Marches a Sign of Growing Socialism — Marchers Are Dupes Who Are Taught to Look to Uncle Sam for Food.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I suppose there may be a few thoughtful citizens who view with grave concern the invasion of the National Capital by 10,000 crusaders with the slogan, "We want work!" Unfortunately, the average citizen gives little thought to its significance in our national development and may tolerate it as a casual nuisance or even find it welcome as a spectacular break in the monotony of workaday existence.

Incidentally, it is in place to remark that, when our early politicians decided to locate "the seat of the Government of the United States" in the Potomac region, it was in order that governmental activities might be free from the distractions of mob propaganda.

Gov. Pinchot, and others like him, who now encourage the on-to-Washington mob propaganda, not only make plain the wisdom of the fathers, but, if they have their way, will, in the course of time, replace our Government of self-reliant States with a socialistic government pure and simple.

Indeed, the most dangerous propaganda is that of recent years whose line of thought finds expression in the words, "Let Uncle Sam fix it," and which, as a result of the economic depression, has become a real menace to the American system. Hunger marching is simply incidental to the growth of bureaucracy.

So far as the hunger marchers themselves are concerned, they are mere dupes. Considering what they are being taught by bureaucrats of high standing, it is not strange if they forget that charity should begin at home, and are inspired with the idea that it is centralized at the National Capital. From the viewpoint they have been led to take, they might very well say, "What's the use of Uncle Sam's Bureau of Domestic Economics teaching us how to prepare all sorts of balanced meals if he refuses to furnish us the ingredients to cook them with?" W. T. T.

Quit Whining and Snap Out of It, Says Clodhopper.

To the Editor of The Post— Sir: All this blah about ending the depression makes me sick. One minute it's Congress is going to do the job, the next, that great American institution, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America. Why not try being honest with ourselves? Any one out of this country, reading the average American newspaper would think us a bunch of pampered nincompoops, spineless, vacillating whining our way out. We're in it, not from any one particular cause, but from a combination of causes and events, principally, world-wide saturation and overproduction in nearly everything from apples to railroads. It's the morning after the night before. Old man Compensation is wringing the water out.

We've met and conquered more formidable situations before, and we'll snap out of this. So let's quit bellyaching and direct that energy into constructive thought and action. Poor little old Gandhi in the throes of political turmoil has the courage to smile. He also has a day of silence. These noble attributes might well be emulated by every red-blooded American. Even 30 days of silence is not too big a price to pay for the results we'll attain. Let's try it.

CLODHOPPER.

Post Department of Commerce Edition Encouraging to Business Everywhere.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You have performed a very patriotic as well as valuable service in issuing a special edition of The Post under date of December 31, emphasizing the Department of Commerce, its splendid new building facilities, &c. We are saving this section for our files for reference purposes.

It would seem with the immense building erected for the advancement of business and commerce and with the very extensive plans which are being made by the Government and business interests, that we will find a way out of the present state of business conditions. With the best of everything with which to work and with cooperation we certainly should make progress. H. E. BODINE,
Secretary-Manager, Chamber of Commerce.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AFTERWARDS.

Was Christmas but two weeks ago?
How swiftly time goes by!
The doll which then was fair to know
Now has a shattered eye.
The luster from the toy has gone,
The things of red and gold
Which once she proudly looked upon
Are broken now and old.

I well remember Christmas Day,
So much old Santa brought.
She has enough with which to play
The whole year through, I thought.
But now there seems to be a lack
Of toys in good repair,
And here's the old rag Susan back
Upon my favorite chair!

The games lie scattered far and wide,
And no one seems to know
The place where crimson checkers hide,
Or where tin soldiers go.
No sign of Christmas Day remains,
The home is calm once more,
And old rag Susan now regains
The love she had before.

Now done with tinseled trinkets bright,
And all the gayer charms,
Once more she goes to bed at night
With Susan in her arms.
Here is a truth she'll live to learn,
Long known to older hearts,
Back to the old loves all return
When novelty departs.

CAB METER INQUIRY IS POSTPONED 5 DAYS

Hearings Will Be Resumed Wednesday; Change Was to Have Started Today.

Further hearings on the petition of the Bell Cab Co., the City Cab Co. and others, to have the District Supreme Court enjoin Public Utilities Commission from putting into effect the "cab meter" order were postponed yesterday to Wednesday of next week.

The postponement plea was heard by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, who already has listened for two days to testimony of the petitioning companies.

Opposition of members of Congress, groups of citizen bodies and others has caused the Public Utilities Commission to ponder the advisability of going through with the meter order at this time. The order was scheduled to go into effect tomorrow morning.

The action of the House in voting unanimously to request the commission not to enforce its order was accepted in District Building circles as tantamount to a command. The postponement of hearings was brought about to give all interested parties time to study the situation.

Cab company officers estimate several thousand cab drivers will be driven to seek other means of livelihood if the meter order is not rescinded.

2 Witnesses Jailed In 'Brutality' Case

Men Sentenced 24 Hours for Violation of Rules; Hoffman Reluctant.

Two colored men, numbered as the chief witnesses against Jeremiah Cullinane, suspended First Precinct policeman, when he was being tried on a charge of assaulting W. A. Hoffman, 24 years old, of 614 Massachusetts avenue northwest, were sent to jail for 24 hours yesterday by Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Police Court, for contempt of court.

The two witnesses, Que Johnson and Benjamin Samuels, were sent to jail after they had been called upon to take the witness stand and were found to have been seated in the courtroom throughout the trial, instead of waiting in the witness room.

Even after they had been sentenced, Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh persuaded Judge Hitt to allow them to testify, inasmuch as it is within the discretion of the judge as to what he shall do in such a case. Judge Hitt then allowed the two men to testify concerning what they saw of the alleged assault.

Hoffman proved a reluctant witness in his own behalf. He said that teeth had been knocked out of his mouth either when he was struck "by some one" or when he fell. Hoffman allegedly was "struck by some one," while he was a prisoner in the First Precinct where James Henry Harker was beaten.

The Government concluded its case and Defense Attorney James A. O'Shea had put two character witnesses on the stand when the court adjourned further sessions until today.

Value of Bryan Estate Is Called Problematical

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The estate of William Jennings Bryan, the great commoner, has dwindled from $868,000 to a condition of "problematical value," it was disclosed in bankruptcy court today in connection with the involuntary bankruptcy brought against Bryan's daughter, Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, of Hollywood.

William Jennings Bryan, jr., a son, testified as administrator, that the bulk of his father's holdings was in Florida real estate and was of "problematical value." The bankruptcy petition was filed by the American Pipe & Steel Co. with a claim for $2,790 growing out of an oil venture by Mrs. Hargreaves in the Venice, Calif., oil fields.

Bowman, 21, 1009 Ninth street northwest, Washington, were married here shortly before Wednesday midnight by the Rev. A. R. Snedegar, a retired minister.

law, and this condition inevitably will result in endless misery to the people. It will not only cause complete cessation of trade, but will destroy the good will between India and Great Britain."

The resolution urges the viceroy to withdraw all repressive measures and to negotiate with Mahatma Gandhi, "the idol of the nation."

The Nationalist leaders, apparently helpless under the new emergency ordinances, concede that the government has won a "temporary victory," but maintain that a policy of repression can do nothing but destroy whatever possibility there is for willing allegiance of the people to British rule. They predicted that the struggle would go on for two years.

Triplets' Arrival Beats Auto Dash to Hospital

RECENT TRADE CHIEF IN ENGLAND IS DEAD

William Graham, 44, Held Post in Labor Cabinet; Won All Parties.

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—William Graham, president of the board of trade in the recent Labor government, died today of pneumonia. He was 44 years old.

Mr. Graham was regarded by members of all political parties as one of the outstanding figures in the last House of Commons and a brilliant future had been predicted for him.

He was entirely at home in intricate statistical details and had the faculty enjoyed by the late prime minister, Andrew Bonar Law, of delivering a speech packed with figures for an hour or more without reference to a single note.

Along with most of the other members of the former Labor cabinet, Mr. Graham lost his seat in the House in the last election.

Originally a clerk in the war office, Mr. Graham, a graduate of Edinburgh University, later turned to journalism. He entered public life as a member of the Edinburgh town council, and his rise, first in municipal and then in national affairs, was rapid.

Ten days ago he was taken ill with influenza, and double pneumonia developed.

Negroes Planning Rite to Rosenwald

Choir of 500 Voices Will Be Heard at Service Here Feb. 1.

Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist, in whose interest in rural education in the South was responsible directly for erection of more than 5,000 schools for Negroes, will be memorialized February 1 by the colored people of America in a movement which originated here yesterday following a meeting of representatives of several churches, lodges, schools and colleges for the colored, held at the John Wesley Church.

A central service has been planned for this city, with Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, and Dr. Abram Simon, member of the Board of Education, as the principal speakers. A choir of 500 voices will be selected from various church and fraternal choirs for this occasion. Colored churches throughout the country will be asked to hold a Rosenwald memorial service January 31.

A memorial committee, composed of Bishop E. D. W. Jones, Dr. R. W. Brooks and Dr. Halley B. Taylor, has been named to make arrangements for the service here, and to appoint committees for development of the memorial service elsewhere.

Flood Victims Flee To Hills for Lives

Thousands of Acres in 3 Counties Under Water; Live Stock Loss Heavy.

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Driven out of their homes by one of the worst floods in the history of northwestern Mississippi, hundreds of plantation owners and tenant farmers sought refuge in higher communities tonight while rescue operations continued in the lowlands.

Thousands of acres of rich farm land lay under the floodwater that has broken levee after levee in spreading over three counties.

Heavy losses of live stock and other farm property, and food and feed supplies were reported.

The spread of the floodwater in the Tallahatchie River valley appeared less menacing today, but old residents said that in the recession of the waters there was danger of undermining the levees.

There were signs that pressure on the dikes had been relieved somewhat from Glendora fifteen miles southward, because of a break in the levee near Sharkey.

Suicide Identification Of Montgomery Proved

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Capt. Albert Hinman and John Johnson, of Washington, D. C., came here today and confirmed police identification of William Penn Montgomery, of Washington, who committed suicide in a hotel Wednesday night. Montgomery was a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Capt. Hinman was a friend of the Montgomery family and Johnson an uncle of the victim. They represented the suicide's mother, Mrs. Helen Johnson Montgomery, of Washington. They said the body would be buried in Arlington Cemetery beside that of Montgomery's father, an Army officer, who died last summer.

Street Car Strikes Auto Wrecked Against Pole

Hugh O. House, 28, of College Park, Md., narrowly escaped injury last night when he lost control of his car and crashed into a trolley pole on Rhode Island avenue northeast near Twenty-eighth street.

A few seconds after House's car struck the pole, a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car hit the machine and practically demolished it. House had leaped from the machine, seeing the car would be unable to be stopped. The street car was operated by James Threa, of the Eckington car barn.

Day More Is Given Heflin's Testimony

Extension Also Lengthens Time to Be Allowed Bankhead Defense.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Former Senator J. Thomas Heflin today received an additional day for completing testimony in support of his charges of vote buying, ballot stealing and other illegal practices in the election of 1930, when John H. Bankhead was elected as his successor.

The extension, which came as Heflin witnesses in the election contest hearing piled up new charges of money offered and taken for votes for Bankhead, automatically extended to six days the time to be given Bankhead for defense testimony. None of Bankhead's witnesses has testified.

One witness testified today that both Republican and Democratic organizations in his county maintained a fund for helping voters pay poll taxes. The poll tax funds were described by Probate Judge G. L. Malone, of De Kalb County, a Republican, who said he personally had contributed $100 to the Republican pool.

Hitler Off to Lippe To Aid in Campaign

Will Speak in Behalf of National Socialist Candidates.

Berlin, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Adolf Hitler turned his back on leaders of the government tonight and hurried off to the Graustarnian Principality of Lippe to speak in behalf of the National Socialist candidates in the provincial election which takes place Sunday.

He will return tomorrow and resume the series of conferences which came to a climax yesterday when he talked with Chancellor Bruening about extending the term of President von Hindenburg so the expense and turmoil of a presidential election scheduled for next May might be avoided.

He will talk it over with Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalist party, and perhaps tomorrow night will be ready to announce the final decision of the "Nationalist opposition." Political observers think he will accept the olive branch the chancellor has extended.

headquarters a short time later, according to police.

Tilburg is quoted as saying he had known Mrs. Hendricks for some time. He confessed, police said, that he called at her home Thursday night and spent the night there.

They had several quarrels during the evening, police said Tilburg told them. About 6 o'clock yesterday morning, according to the alleged confession, they went into the kitchen and made some coffee.

Then, police said, they went to the basement to fix the furnace.

"While we were there," Tilburg is quoted by police as saying, "she turned to me and said, 'This is the last time I'll let you come in my house.'"

"That made me so mad," they quoted him as saying, "I seized the poker and hit her with it."

Mrs. Hendricks' body, with a wide hole in the skull, was found about 11 o'clock yesterday morning by Miss Coleman, 24 years old, a roomer at the house. He had gone down to tend the furnace and discovered the woman lying in a pool of blood, face downward.

She was attired in a nightgown, kimono, stockings and bedroom slippers. A poker and shovel, stained with blood, were found near her body.

The other roomers at Mrs. Hendricks' house, Peter Dietz and Miss Ella Bozdale, told police that they had heard screams and the voice of a man about 2 a. m., but did not investigate because the noise soon ceased.

Tilburg, a former soldier, once lived in Baltimore. He was employed as a cook at Walter Reed Hospital for a time and later applied for admission to the hospital, it is said. He has also attempted recently to gain admission to Soldiers Home. He was last employed in a lunchroom at 201 Upshur street northwest.

The invitation to the other clubs states: "That this meet is proposed during the bicentennial year to honor the memory of George Washington and the sport he foved; to promote a feeling of good fellowship among the various hunts and stimulate an interest in the sport that has given Virginia a distinctive place among the lovers of the chase."

Approval of Soper As Judge Fought

Atlanta Lawyer Charges Him With Unfairness on New Trial Plea.

(Associated Press.)

Senate confirmation of Morris A. Soper, of Maryland, as judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals was protested yesterday by R. C. Horne, jr., Atlanta lawyer, who charged Soper had been "truculent, petulent and heckling" in denying him permission to seek a new trial.

Judge Soper is serving under a recess appointment.

Horne told a Senate judiciary subcommittee he had gone before the court meeting at Asheville, N. C., last June 17, to seek a chance for a new trial to clear his name after having served two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary upon conviction of violations of the banking laws.

The subcommittee also agreed to a favorable report on the nomination of J. Calvin Chestnut, of Baltimore, as a successor to Judge Soper on the district bench.

Rail Workers Told Salary Cut Is Due

15 Per Cent Reduction to Start in Month Unless New Scale Is Set.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Formal notices of a 15 per cent reduction in wages, effective in 30 days, were sent to representatives of 21 railroad labor groups by railroads of the class 1 group operating in this territory, it was learned today.

The notices were accompanied by a letter saying that the contemplated action would be void in event the railroads and their employes came to an agreement on a new wage schedule in the meantime.

Richmond labor has taken the attitude that it will agree to a 10 per cent cut for one year, provided the money thus saved is not used to pay dividends, but to give employment to men now idle.

been received which had not been properly countersigned by parent, teacher or guardian of the boy or girl sending them. This automatically disqualifies the essays thus incomplete from being entered into the contest. There are no exceptions to this rule, the editor stated, and advised that all contestants examine their essays carefully before submitting them in order that they may be certain that all the rules of the contest had been obeyed.

More Essays Received.

Essays were received yesterday from Viola Gompf, 30 Glendale avenue, Alexandria, Va.; Vera Thomas, Dent School; Frances A. Zegoitz, 913 Fifth street northwest; Dorothy Louise Day, 2224 G street northwest, and Frederick Denton, 9307 Montgomery avenue, North Chevy Chase, Md.

It is also pointed out by the Contest Editor that those competing must not fail to observe the rule that the essays must not be more than 500 words long. The essays in order to be considered need not necessarily be that long, but the words are restricted to that number.

The requests for booklets to be furnished to contestants through The Washington Post by the courtesy of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission continue to form a large part of the Contest Editor's daily mail. While the contestants are not restricted as to how soon they may turn in their essays, yet the advantages of research and thought in preparing these papers are called to their attention.

History Study Urged.

In writing on such an important subject, any one would do well to look up important facts in Washington's life and the history-making events of his times. Great historians have taken years to prepare the material from which they wrote their monumental volumes, and the essayists in The Post Washington Essay Contest might do well to follow their example, at least in part.

Fletcher Kemp, superintendent of the Arlington County public schools, today sent the following letter to The Post Washington Essay editor:

"I wish to most heartily commend The Washington Post for the spirit of patriotism and keen interest in our youth which has prompted the launching of the Washington Essay Contest.

"I believe, through the spirit of contest that will undoubtedly be aroused by The Post's liberal offer, much thoughtful study and research work will be done by the pupils of our schools on the life of this greatest American. I believe, further, that through this study Washington will really live again, and will exert a new influence in the building of the characters of those who are privileged to participate in the contest.

Cooperation Pledged.

"As a school man, and one deeply interested in our young people, I feel that I owe a debt of gratitude to you for presenting this means of autdy, which will develop an appreciation of the high ideals, matchless spirit of patriotism and deep spirit of reverence for God, that make Washington an outstanding figure, not only in national but also in international history.

"I can assure you of the wholehearted participation of our schools in the contest, and I wish to thank you, since I believe you are making a real contribution to our aim in education."

Once more attention is called to the fact that the $1,000 available in cash prizes may be won by boys and girls up to 18 years of age, pupils in public, private and parochial schools of the District of Columbia, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Maryland; Fairfax and Arlington Counties, Virginia, and the city of Alexandria, Va., who write the best 500-word essays on George Washington.

FIRST IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

NEW JERSEY TO RESTORE DEY HOUSE AT PREAKNESS.

THE old Dey House at Preakness, N. J. (now Paterson), once occupied as headquarters by George Washington, is to be restored and made ready for the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of the first President, which will begin February 22, and continue until Thanksgiving Day.

During the Revolutionary War, according to the division of information and publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, George Washington marched back and forth over much of the territory of the States on the Atlantic seaboard from Virginia to Massachusetts, and numerous place in that country are now famous because of having been visited by him. These historically interesting spots will have an importnat part in the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth. Each one will be a shrine to be visited by the many thousands of Washington's countrymen, who will make special journeys to the sites so closely connected with the life of the Founder of this Nation.

The Dey House was owned at the time of the Revolution by Col. Theunis Dey. Gen. Washington used it as his headquarters during 1780, and from it wrote many important letters to Government officials and Army officers. It is said that in the Dey House the Commander in Chief formed plans for a surprise attack on Gen. Clinton in New York City, which was never carried out because of the untimely arrival of British warships.

New Jersey has created the Dey House Washington Headquarters Commission and has appropriated $10,000 to the work of preparing the old house for the bicentenary celebration of George Washington's birth. The members of this commission are Isaac A. Severn, president; D. Stanton Hammond, secretary; William E. Pattberg, Martin J. Hogencamp and Winthrop Watson.

HOOVER IS CHAIRMAN OF BICENTENNIAL COMMISSION.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission is a Federal body created by Congress to formulate and execute plans for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington in 1932. In glancing at the personnel of this commission, it will become obvious that Congress, in making its appointments was actuated by no other motives than procuring the highest possible type of men and women to serve on this commission. Party affiliations or places of residence had no consideration whatsoever in their selection. The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission is composed as follows:

The President of the United States, chairman; the Vice President of the United States and Speaker of the House of Representatives; Senator Simeon D. Fess, vice chairman; Senators Arthur Capper, of Kansas, and Carter Glass, of Virginia; Representatives Willis C. Hawley, of Oregon; John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut; Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee and R. Walton Moore, of Virginia. There are eight presidential commissioners: Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, Colorado; Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cooke, Pennsylvania; Henry Ford, Michigan; George Eastman, New York; C. Bascom Slemp, Virginia; Wallace McCamant, Oregon; Albert Bushnell Hart, Massachusetts, and Bernard M. Baruch, of New York.

POHICK CHURCH PLANS BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

THE famous Pohick Church, of which George Washington was appointed warden in 1762, will be the scene of a celebration on February 22 this year in honor of George Washington's birthday. L. I. Dolph, of Lorton, Va., a member of the committee arranging for this celebration, will go to Richmond to extend an invitation to the Grand Lodge of Masonry of Virginia to attend. The services for this occasion will be of a Masonic nature. It is planned to broadcast the program over Radio Station WJSV.

WASHINGTON'S MEDALS NOW OWNED BY BOSTON.

A reproduction of the gold medal which was awarded by an act of the Continental Congress in 1776 to Gen. George Washington has been adopted by the Boston George Washington Bicentennial committee as a design for its letterheads just printed.

It is pointed out that this has a particular fitness in relation to the coming Bicentennial celebration, in view of the fact that the original medal is owned by the City of Boston, where it is on exhibition in the Public Library.

This medal was the only one given by Congress to the commander-in-chief of the Continental Armies, although a series of ten more gold medals were struck off at the French mint in Paris commemorative of great events and men of the American Revolution, this being by the vote of Congress in 1786. The French government presented a set of these medals in silver, including also a reproduction of the first gold medal, to Gen. Washington. Gen. Washington preserved the eleven medals among his treasured possessions until his death. Eventually the collection came into the possession of Daniel Webster and, after his death, into the possession of his friend, Peter Harvey, of Boston, who, in April, 1874, placed them with the Massachusetts Historical Society, where they are treasured today and form an exhibit of much interest. Thus all the Washington medals are now in the City of Boston.

The recorded history of the Washington gold medal indicates that it became the property of George Steptoe Washington, who was George Washington's nephew. The next owner was Dr. Samuel Walter Washington, from whom it descended to a son, George Lafayette Washington, whose wife sold it, with proper certificates and vouchers, to a group of citizens of Boston, who presented it for deposit in the Public Library.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE first reverberation in Congress of the criticism of the character of some of the advertising in radio programs came with the introduction in the Senate of a resolution by Senator Couzens, calling for a thorough investigation of the situation, including the feasibility of Uncle Sam's taking over the whole business.

Senator Couzens, because of the "growing dissatisfaction with the present use of radio facilities for commercial advertising," asked that the Radio Commission make a survey of and report to the Senate on the following questions:

What information there is available on the feasibility of Government ownership and operation of broadcasting facilities.

To what extent the facilities of a representative group of broadcasting stations are used for commercial advertising purposes.

To what extent the use of radio facilities for purposes of commercial advertising varies as between stations having power of 100 watts, 500 watts, 1,000 watts, 5,000 watts, and all in excess of 5,000 watts.

What plans might be adopted to reduce, to limit, to control, and perhaps to eliminate the use of radio facilities for commercial advertising purposes.

What rules or regulations have been adopted by other countries to control or to eliminate the use of radio facilities for commercial advertising purposes.

Whether it would be practicable and satisfactory to permit only the announcement of sponsorship of programs by persons or corporations.

Any information available concerning the investments and the net income of a number of representative broadcasting companies or stations.

Coming from Senator Couzens, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce committee, in charge of radio matters in the Senate and following so closely upon the Radio Commission's sidestepping of the advertising question, the resolution carries with it unusual significance. Especially so since it is known that Senator Couzens, personally, is considerably exercised over the situation, having repeatedly expressed his annoyance at certain sales-talk interspered with entertainment programs.

WAGNERIANS will find much enjoyment in three unusual programs scheduled within the next week. The last act of "Lohengrin," including the familiar "Bridal Chorus," will be put on the air from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House this afternoon (WRC, 4:15 p. m.)

Max Lorenz, new German tenor of the Metropolitan will be heard as Lohengrin, and Maria Mueller, soprano, will sing the role of Elsa. Others in the cast include Karin Branzell, contralto, Ortrude; Friedrich Schorr, barytone, Telramund; Ivar Andresen, basso, King Henry; and George Cehanovsky, barytone, King's Herald. Artur Bodanzky will conduct.

The dramatic musicale will be devoted to Wagner on Thursday, January 14.

A week from today Leopold Stokowski will conduct the Philadelphia Orchestra and a group of soloists in an all-Wagner program, consisting of excerpts from "Tristan" and each of the music dramas which make up "The Ring of the Nibelungs," including the "Song of the Valkyries," "Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla," and Brunnhilde's Immolation.

A second operatic treat today will be the first act of Halvey's "The Jewess," by the Chicago Civic Opera Company (WJZ network, 9 o'clock tonight). Charles Hackett, tenor; Rosa Raisa, soprano, and Chase Baromeo, barytone, are the principals.

THE resignation of Judge Ira E. Robinson, Federal Radio Commissioner, representing West Virginia, was sent to President Hoover yesterday.

"At no time within the last few months have I intended to seek reappointment as a member of the Federal Radio Commission," Judge Robinson said. "Therefore, in order to fit my personal convenience, I am tendering my resignation to the President, effective January 15. It is my purpose to immediately enter the practice of law, with offices in Washington and West Virginia. For four years I have served to the best of my ability, and shall leave the commission with a consciousness of duty done."

A name prominently mentioned is that of Dr. C. B. Jolliffe, now chief engineer of the commission. Dr. Jolliffe, a Republican, also hails from West Virginia.

Dr. Jolliffe, who has always been popular personally in the industry, would be desirable also from a technical viewpoint because of his long engineering experience. He was at the Bureau of Standards for many years and is one of the foremost radio engineers in the United States.

THE decisive overthrow of prohibition by the voters of Finland in a referendum on the question will be discussed by L. Astrom, Finland's Minister to the United States, in an address over WMAL at 5:45 p. m. today. His subject will be "Finland's Prohibition Referendum and Developments in Its Liquor Question."

Eddie Duchin and his orchestra, playing from the Central Park Casino in New York, will feature the Lucky Strike dance hour tonight (WRC, 10 p. m.).

The Radio Drama Guild makes its bow on WJSV at 8:30 o'clock tonight with the first act of a two-act play, "Marquita," a dramatic story of the Marines in the West Indies. The cast includes Sybil Donn, Irvin Wallach, Sam Lightman and Minette Sherman.

Radio programs may be enriched in the near future by the genius of Kreisler and Rachmaninoff, if the long-term contracts signed by them with the NBC Artists Service has any significance. Neither has been heard on the radio. Together with Paderewski, they represent the only outstanding artists who have not affiliated themselves with the microphone.

THE list of celebrities who will greet the radio audience during the Pontiac Parade of the Stars tonight (WRC 8:00) includes Jeanette MacDonald, Marie Dressler, Paul Whiteman, Everett Marshall and Graham McNamee. The program will originate in New York, St. Louis and Los Angeles.

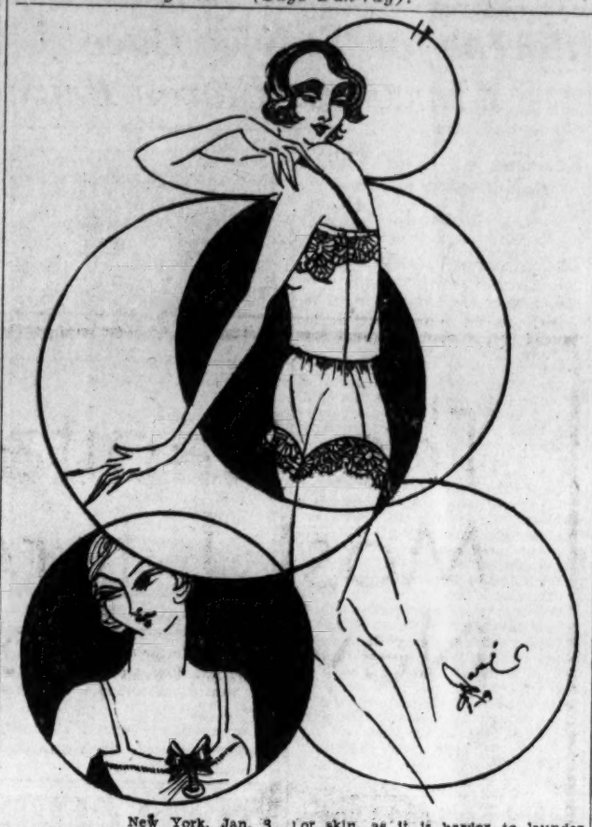
Dahrt Interprets the MODE

After all's said and done, the modern miss goes back to this...in lingerie! (Says Dah-ray).



New York, Jan. 9

"NOW look here, Dah-ray, since you make a living giving women advice on how to be lovely, tell me honestly now, what do you wear for lingerie? I mean, what would you advise a woman to actually wear—what and how much of it?!"

That's a tall order, ladyee—tall, tall. But now that you asked it, it occurs to me that it is somewhat of a question, with all the fancy and delectable delights on the market that one simply can't live without. Those gorlicious "teddies" and "combinations" and whatevers, that are frilled and pantied and rosebudded—every woman who has ever been weak-willed enough to spend half a hundred dollars on one, or received one for a gift—well, you know—where do you wear them? Neither under clothes, nor in your boudior without clothes, nor anywhere except to stand and admire yourself in them for five minutes and then put them back into their sa iet-scented boxes.

So, my sincere advice as to what to wear under your dresses of today's silhouette is: a corset, of course, right on next to your skin—no, it isn't bad for your skin or for your corset, either, because all the new corsets are washable. Then a brassier of some sort; then panties or shorts or bloomers; last, a chemise. And a costume slip if your dress requires one, none if it doesn't. The formula varies only if your corset and brassier happen to be all in one piece, or if you wear one of those combination chemise, pantie and brassier garments, or if you wear the chemise and pantie or bloomer arrangement all in one piece.

Yes you must wear this much lingerie to be elegant! The days of the shorts and rolled stockings under one's outer dress are gone, if they ever really were here for lovely ladies. And your dark costume slip must never be allowed to come into contact with either your corset, brassier or skin, as it is harder to launder or have cleaned than lighter pieces of lingerie, and the dark slips soil your pretty underthings.

So now you are answered, Madham, and you have the innermost, or should I say under-most secret of my life, right in print!

• • • •

I have found the shorts more modest and comfortable than bloomers—because they are less confining, don't require an elastic around the leg, and are more easily laundered. And, they take so little material to make! So-o-o-o-o, just to show you how little material you need, to make a set of lingerie consisting of shorts and a chemise, I have made you a leaflet telling you how to make these two pieces out of a yard and a quarter of material. Not apiece—for the two pieces together! No, and not for only the smaller sizes—your hips can measure 45 at their largest and your bust as much as 37, and you can still make a comfortable pair of shorts and a chemise out of a yard and a quarter of material—if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of the Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to cut your material. Better send for it today—remnant sales are on, you know, and no one ever had enough lingerie!

• • • •

The latest reports from Paris Beauty Salons say that we shouldn't use ice on the face. Well, we shouldn't use anything to excess—but give me ice or give me death—and let me freeze my sagging under-chin and cheek muscles into vivifying protest each morning! It works on my face, at least.

• • • •

Last call for the leaflet full of things to make from the remnants. Send for it today—tomorrow will be too late!

• • • •

HOW TO KEEP WELL

URIC ACID.

WHILE gout is not very prevalent, there is some, and a considerable number of people have an interest, sometimes unrecognized, in diets and ways of living as well as in drugs that are helpful to the gouty. While uric acid in the system is far less important than people thought it was a quarter of a century ago, it is more important than the general run of people regard it today. It does cause some kidney stones and stones elsewhere, and gravel is not unknown. There are persons who pay the penalty of having too much uric acid in some sort of combination in the blood, and there are others who have uric acid deposits in their tissues and particularly around some of their joints.

A recently published, very good book on chronic arthritis has a chapter on gout. A section of the chapter is given to the treatment of gout. On the part devoted to diet, foods are grouped into three classes. The first, those which anyone who suffers from too much uric acid should avoid; the second, those that can be eaten in moderation, and the third, those that are wholesome for the people of this group.

In the second are chicken, oysters, herring, mutton, salmon, spinach, lobster, oatmeal, crab, mushrooms, peas, beans (except string and wax), kohlrabi, asparagus, onions, bacon, whitefish, whole grain cereals and whole grain breads.

In the third group are milk, eggs cheese, nuts, gelatine, fruits of all kinds, fats of all kinds, vegetables of all kinds (except lentils), mushrooms, peas, beans, kohlrabi, asparagus, onions, all cereals (except those from whole grains), vegetable soups (except those made with meat and meat extracts), sugars and sweets, coffee and tea that contain no caffein or theine, or very weak tea, coffee, cocoa.

The foods to be avoided especially are pepper, mustard, horseradish, catsup, spices, condiments, paprika and watercress. Alcoholic beverages are to be avoided, as are rich dishes of all sorts, and heavy feeds and gorges.

There is no better way of neutralizing an excess of uric acid than by eating rather freely of potatoes, and topping the meal with bananas.

ALL DEPENDS ON CAUSE.

E. A. writes:

1 Is it dangerous for the heart to beat 120 to 140 per minute if there is apparently no ill effect except nervousness?

2. What causes the heart to feel as though it jumps and then pauses a beat?

3. Would this cause sudden death?

4. Is a nervous heart serious?

5. Can this condition be remedied? I am in good health, look well and never faint, but have this disagreeable heart condition.

REPLY.

1. Not of itself. That which causes the rapid beat may be dangerous and generally is harmful.

2. The symptom is commonly known as palpitation. It has many causes. Among them are goiter, nervous heart due to excessive use of tobacco and possibly coffee, possibly nervousness, auricular fibrillation and some other nerve disturbances of the heart, and organic heart disease.

3. Probably not.

4. It may be. The cause determines that.

5. As a rule it can be

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 9th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to noon, from 4:45 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8:30 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Fate is not pictured as being in a benevolent mood on January 9th, and few seeds of effort will fall on fertile ground. It will be a time of mental awakening and change. New interests may be taken up and old pursuits forsaken. The evening hours are the most important and productive ones of the day.

The child born on this January 9th will have a cool and composed nature. It will be a born leader, and an influence in its circle of friends. It will lean towards culture and refinement, and will like quiet amusements. It will be systematic in its work, and personally neat and tidy.

You have a very kind and thoughtful nature, and patience to a degree that will often bring you mental anguish because of others' thoughtless imposition. Your temperament is such that you will early in life form positive habits, and will not have, in later life, much adaptability. You should marry young before your habits become too set. You have a great sense of order, and you cannot work in confusion. It worries you very much to have your work get behind, and you almost make a fetish of having a time and place for everything.

Your persevérance and steadiness will bring you sucess where impulsive action would bring failure. Mentally, you must dig for the things as you are a slow thinker and reasoner. Your memory, however, is reliable, and what you do know, you know well. Your ambitions are moderate, and within your reach. The light chaff of conversation does not interest you, but you do love to talk with people who are intereated along the lines your reading takes.

Your home to you is the most important thing in the world, and you spare no effort in making it a heaven of comfort and peace. You understand and dearly love children. You are a very loyal and worthwhile friend.

Successful people born January 9:

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

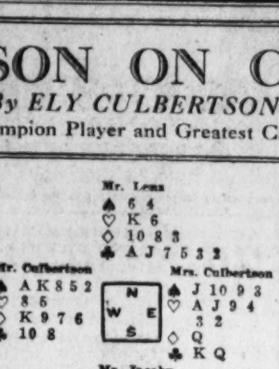
By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A-209.

LOSING PSYCHICS.

AS I have stated frequently, psychology has a very large and important part in correct bidding at Bridge, but the so-called psychic bids, so much favored by many players, are not especially important factors in securing the correct result. In fact, sometimes their only effect is to open the way for the opponent of the psychic bidder to reach a desirable contract as, for example, deal No. 4 of Rubber No. 23 of the match being played between Messrs. Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, as representatives of the Official System and Mrs. Culbertson and me, as representatives of the Approach-Forcing System.



The Bidding.

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Mr. Jacoby can not resist his strong impulse to make a psychic bid, Third Hand, if there have been two passes. Upon this occasion it results in the making of a game by his opponents.

2—With this hand I must, of course, have passed, as my hand contained only 2½ honor-tricks and not a particularly favorable distribution. However, after the psychic Third Hand Opening I had an opportunity to overcall soundly.

3—Mrs. Culbertson's bid of four Spades is, of course, eminently correct.

The type of psychic bid illustrated above can not pay against strong offense. In fact, these bluff bids are usually losing bids against strong players, but the only means I know of putting an end to their use is by defeating them at the bridge table, either in the bidding or in the play.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Bluff bids can not be expected to fool competent antagonists at the Contract table. Sometimes their only effect is to open the way for the other side to reach a game.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Commercialized Charities.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Is there any organization really devoted to the housing and welfare of the very poor and really friendless working girl whose lack of education prevents the earning of a decent living wage and who must live somewhere? Do not tell me the Y. W. C. A. They have very few rooms, are always filled, are not cheap, and are really recreation centers and not meant as homes for the poor at all. I hope you can help. I expect to go to Philadelphia in search of work, and with practically no funds to fall back upon. EIGHTEEN.

I wish that I might tell you that there was such an organization. But I can not. If such a one exists I hope this plea may bring it to light. I at one time believed that the object of the Y. W. was just this but after a tour of investigation, discovered as you have that the organization has stepped out of the class of charities and become a highly commercialized medium of recreation. To be sure girls need recreation, but there are girls who dare not even think of recreation, and who need shelter and a little Christian cheer. If some of the Y. W. C. A. houses I have personally investigated are samples of the cheer and friendliness available to the lonely girl in a strange city, that girl has my whole-hearted sympathy. A young girl once wrote me that she stayed in one for two weeks and in all that time was not able to get the clerk at the desk to return her "Good-Morning," much less enter into any conversation. Believing this to be utterly impossible and unbelievable, I grabbed my hat and oldest clothes and went to that very "Y"—and all that poor child said was true and she might have added far more. The women in charge were not only hard but ill-bred. They made no pretense of answering my greetings, merely waiting in bored silence for me to state what I wished. They had no rooms. They sent me to a few dismal holes where rooms could be had at a dollar a night. I left them in a state of mind where I could comprehend the bitterness of tone that had characterized the letter I had received. Those women, well paid and well fed, had not the faintest conception of the needs of the girl alone in a strange town, or of the effects of their callousness upon her. So we will count the "Y" as a business women's club, where outsiders are the least of their concern. And in doing so we face the question of where a girl without resources can go. Personally, I believe no town should have a publicly supported "Y" unless that Y is equipped to take in any girl who seeks a home. Let gymnasiums be converted into dormitories. Let the poor girl find a bed before the H. S. miss develops her technique on the horizontal bar.

You are particularly unnfortunate in going to Philadelphia, as I have had many letters concerning them and my investigation bore out in detail all charges made against them. I occupied there for one awful night the only really dirty room I ever slept in and following the details of the letter of complaint I waited until noon to check out and found that the girl had told the truth when she said they attempted to charge her $1.50 for the morning in addition to the charge for her lodging. Their argument was that the girl should have checked out in the morning or paid the charge of a second night. Which is even dubious as business, much less as charity. I did not pay the $1.50 and could not help pitying the hundreds that have felt they had to because they had sought the safety of a "Y." There are so many who can not afford safety at such a price.

If there is any one who know of any organization in this land of the free where a girl can find a shelter at the price the poorly paid young girl can afford, please rush the information, which will be gladly received and passed on to hundreds of bitter-hearted girls without a home.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY.

Appetizing Fish Attract Epicureans to Market; Prices Reasonable; Green Corn in January Surprises; Strawberries Cheap.

Busy little boats go up and down the Potomac, to and from the wharves of Baltimore and Washington—boats known in fishermen's jargon as "bugeyes," "spats," or "oyster canoes." They are not daunted by winter's disagreeable weather. They are filling their holds with oysters, for the oyster season is with us. From Tangier Island in Chesapeake Bay, about 130 miles from Washington by water, come some of the boats; others find their cargoes at Solomons Island or Smiths Point, or lesser fishing places. Each carrier of oysters comes to port at least once each week, possibly two or three times, and the wharves at the end of Eleventh street in Washington are alive with eager vendors of oysters, crying their wares, calling to possible customers to come to their anchored boats and inspect the fine fresh oysters.

One such "oyster canoe," the meanderer visited contained about 200 bushels of oysters in the shell. Many true oyster fanciers regularly buy their oysters from such boats. For, as the oyster boatman said, "you get the real oyster taste when you buy 'em in the shell, lady. Before they are sold in a shop they are shucked, then they are washed and kept in ice water. The real oyster 'likker' is washed away."

Oysters from a wharf fish shop and oysters from the "bugeye" at the wharf cost about the same in the end, from 50 to to 60 cents for a quart. The oysters in the shop, it is true, are already "shucked," but under a big shed on the wharf stands a corps of professional "shuckers" ready, for a small fee per quart, to divest the oysters of their shells as soon as the bivalves are hoisted out of the holds of the boats alongside the wharf. The fee for shucking slightly increases the cost over the original price charged by the seller of the oysters. And if you don't bring something along to carry home the oysters in, you have to buy a container. But that item is saved by the forethoughted housewife.

Red snappers, caught in deep water off the coast of St. Petersburg, Fla., and brought to Washington by fast express, are among the more interesting fish arrivals at a shop in a Southwest market. Red snappers, big fish of beautiful bright rose color, are always caught with a hook and line, not trapped, as are many other fish. They are of delicate flavor, a choice dish for any table. Their meat is white and flaky, the bones thick and not objectionable. Red snappers sell two pounds for 35 cents.

The big king mackerel, from which ten portions may be served, is another interesting offering in the same fish shop. It sells for 15 cents per pound. Among the other fish so numerously offered in Washington's big fish market are flounders from the Atlantic coast, Boston blue fish, caught 100 fathoms deep off the Massachusetts coast, a deliciously flavored fish, selling for but 15 cents per pound; the silvery butterfish, also 15 cents per pound; fresh shrimps, 30 cents per pound; scallops, from Boston and other Atlantic Coast points; smelts from Ontario; croakers, an economical fish costing but 10 cents a pound, found in Chesapeake Bay the year around; lobsters, received fresh the latter part of the week at the fish market; yellow perch, 10 cents a pound, and a limited amount of roe shad, 25 to 30 cents a pound. Crabs are out of season, of course, but crab flakes are available at the fish market for 50 cents a pound.

Pedestrians must be extra wary in steering their course about the streets near the fish market. Adjoining the sea food shop district is one of the largest food terminals in Washington, where fresh fruits and vegetables are sold in mighty bulk, and where many powerful trucks push their way about building and unbuilding the gigantic stacks of produce for Washington. Ironic, indeed, that so close to such towering walls of food there should be hunger marchers.

Long voyages from such tropical origins as the West Indies, Cuba, Jamaica, and the little Central American countries of Fortuna, Tela and Santa Marta, bring cargoes of bananas to Washington, via Baltimore. Once or twice each week a cargo of about 25,000 bunches of bananas is unloaded at Baltimore. A fruit dealer in one Southwest Washington market is handling hundreds of bunches of bananas, parts of such cargoes. In especially built, gas-heated rooms the bananas are ripened for local use. The dealer may be persuaded to retail bananas, although his business is mainly wholesale. He sold the meanderer eighteen bananas for a ridulously low price. If two or three families should care to form a banana club and buy a big bunch of bananas, ten or twelve dozen to the bunch, which the dealer declared should keep in the average home for at least a week, the price would be very low per family. The riper the better, our food experts say nowadays, in speaking of bananas.

Between you and the meanderer, Mrs. Housewife, there should be an understanding about some very good Stayman Winesap apples to be had for but 75 cents a bushel; also about oranges 1 cent each, as well as tomatoes from Texas and Florida for 15 cents per pound; broccoli, 2½ pounds for 25 cents; new potatoes, 10 cents per pound; egg plant, 15 cents each; Cuban lima beans, 25 cents per pound; fresh peas, 20 cents for a pound; fresh pineapples, 20 cents, and string beans for as little as 10 cents a pound.

Effrontery it is and nothing more for green corn to appear on the market in January. But what is it when the price of the corn is $1 a dozen?

Strawberries are near a record low mark for January with their present price of 22 cents a pint in a certain market in the Southwest section.

High-hat cucumbers from Cuba, which have been retailing at 25 cents each in Washington are giving elbow room to hot-house cucumbers from Illinois at 15 cents each.

Frosts in California have shortened the crop of globe artichokes and made them cost the comparatively high price of 25 cents each retail. Jerusalem artichokes may be had the year around in Washington for 10 cents a pound.

Belgium has sent endive to Washington to sell at 30 cents a pound, and grapes, great perfect bunches of white grapes, for $1 a pound.

Popcorn Balls.

1½ cups sugar
1 cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 quarts freshly popped corn
2 cups nut kernels

Boil the sugar, water, vinegar and salt until the sirup hardens when dipped into cold water, or until a candy thermometer registers 250 degrees F. Add the vanilla, pour while hot over the popcorn and nuts, and mix well. When cool enough to handle, grease the hands and form into balls, or place in a deep layer in a greased pan, and cut in oblong pieces. When cold, wrap in waxed paper. If desired, two squares of unsweetened chocolate may be added to the sirup.

Jellied Tongue.

Place the tongue in a fairly large oblong dish, cool. Then decorate the top with sliced hard cooked eggs and pimiento olives and garnish with a wreath of highly colored raw and cooked vegetables latticed or ornamentally cut. Pour over a pint of liquid aspic, just ready to congeal. The aspic may be made with the boiling broth in which the tongue was cooked or from beef extract, gelatin and boiling water if the latter is used. Season highly, chill overnight, or prepare in the morning and serve in the evening. Remove from the refrigerator just before serving. Unmold, on a chilled platter, garnish with parsley or watercress. Serves 6 to 7. Baked macaroni makes a nice accompaniment.

English Veal, Ham Pie.

Fill a deep, greased baking dish with alternate pieces of cooked ham (shank meat is delicious) and lean veal. Sprinkle with parsley and chopped onion, allowing 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 2 tablespoons onion to each cup of meat. In the middle put a layer of sliced or quartered hard cooked eggs, well seasoned. Pour over the broth in which the veal was cooked, which has been boiled down and seasoned highly with salt and pepper, cover with a good rich pastry made with lard and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) until a rich brown. Serve cold, or reheat.

Pineapple Brown Betty.

Melt one-fourth cup butter, add two and one-half cups dry crumbs, and brown slightly. Put alternate layers of crumbs, crushed pineapple from a No. 2 can, and one-half cup brown sugar in a greased baking dish, having top layer of crumbs. Bake in a hot—400 degrees—oven for 30 minutes, or until brown. Serve with cream.

Witch Cakes.

For witch cakes, bake plain sponge or butter cake in muffin tins. When cool, cut a thin slice off one side of cake and ice all over chocolate icing. While icing is moist put ice cream cone on cake for hat. On flat side, where cut was made, make a "face" with orange icing. Serve on small paper doily.

Recipe for 'Stuffed Bacon' Wins Mrs. Clever Prize

Resident of Lyon Village Awarded $5 for New Method.

MRS. C. W. CLEVER.

Bacon, king of the breakfast table, is seen with different "trimmings" by Mrs. C. W. Clever, of Lyon Village, Va.

Mrs. Clever, whose recipe for "stuffed bacon" won this week's Post $5 prize, has dressed up the narrow rasher.

The king in such regal robes of dressing and spicery, baked to a turn, should be a king indeed and palate-appealing in a new and different way.

Mrs. Clever's formula follows:

(Awarded $5 Prize.)

12 slices bacon (Puritan-Sanitary Grocery)
1 tablespoon melted jelly
1 cup bread crumbs
1-3 cup milk
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Paprika.

Combine the breadcrumbs, liquid and seasonings to form a paste. Spread a thin layer over each slice of bacon, roll and fasten with toothpicks. Lay rolls in a shallow baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. Turn or baste two or three times during cooking. Remove the toothpicks and serve with spiced pickle.

MRS. C. W. CLEVER,

Tartar Sauce.

With one cupful of oil lemonaise, mix two olives chopped fine, one gherkin, one small onion and one tablespoonful of parsely, all finely chopped. Stir well. Serve with fried or boiled fish.

Baked Eggs and Cheese.

Break the desired number of eggs in a shallow, greased baking dish, add a few tablespoons of top milk and salt enough to season, and sprinkle with a mixture of grated cheese and fine, dry bread crumbs. Se this dish in a pan containing hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until the eggs are set and the crumbs are brown. Just before serving, add a few dashes of paprika.

Organized in 1854.

Western Presbyterian Church was organized in 1854, while Franklin Pierce was President. He frequently worshiped there, and contributed to the building fund used in erecting the first building. Jefferson Davis, the President of the Confederacy, lived near the site of the church, and he, too, worshiped there at times, though he was of Baptist stock and during the Secession War was confirmed in the Episcopal Church in Richmond, in which faith he died. Mr. Davis also made a contribution to the building fund.

Gen. Grant, a Methodist, also worshiped there during his Presidency, though his pew was in the Metropolitan Methodist Church, and there he was oftener found, when he attended church.

The new Western Church is one of the beautiful small church edifices in Washington. It has an attractive and well appointed Church-school house, known as Fellowship Hall. The church itself is modern in all of its appointments and equipments.

Dr. J. Harvey Dunham, the minister, is entering his twenty-third year as pastor of this church.

Concordia Church Plans For Centenary in 1933

On Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. a special congregational meeting of Concordia Church will be held. It will be the purpose of this meeting to take action on the report of a building committee and to make plans for the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the congregation.

Dr. Henry Tralle, who has served the building committee as consultant, will explain the plans with the aid of a stereopticon lecture on church building.

The centenary celebration is not due for another year; the congregation having been organized on January 17, 1833. The church council, however, believes that the occasion warrants adequate preparation and, therefore, has called the special meeting at this time to consider plans for the centenary.

Church to Be Lighted Entirely by Candles

Epiphany being the Festival of Lights, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde has arranged a special service for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at Grace Episcopal Church. The church will be lit entirely with candles. Each member of the choir will carry a light. At one point in the service all the candles will be extinguished save one high above the altar, from which, after an anthem has been sung, all the candles will be relit, symbolizing the spread of the light of the Gospel from Christ, who termed Himself "The Light of the World."

The preacher will be the Rev. Dr. Ronalds Taylor, rector of St. Andrew's Church, College Park, Md.

Preachers Are Listed In Lenten Services

Four weeks of Lenten services will be held this year under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches commencing February 29. They will be held at noon in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The committee on public meetings announces that the addresses will be given in the order named: Dr. W. S. Abernethy, of Calvary Baptist Church; Dr. W. Russell Bowie, of Grace Episcopal Church, New York City; Dr. J. R. Sizoo, of New York Avenue, and Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, of First Congregational. Each will speak at the services for a week.

Mission Talk to Be Illustrated.

On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock the Evening Missionary Society of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will meet in the lecture room of the church. Dr. Andrew M. Brodie, the associate minister, will speak on missions with appropriate stereopticon views. Mrs. Janet Atkinson will lead the devotions. A social hour will follow.

Mission School to Last Month.

The annual School of Missions of the Church of the Pilgrims will open on January 21 and continue through February 18.

Epiphany Church Observes 90th Anniversary Tomorrow

DR. Z. B. PHILLIPS.

Special services in observance of the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of Epiphany Parish, G street northwest, will be held at the church tomorrow, commencing with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 o'clock. At the festival service, at 11 o'clock, there will be special music by Epiphany choir under direction of Adolf Torovsky, organist and choirmaster, and the sermon, which will be preached by the rector of Epiphany, the Rev. Dr. Z. B. Phillips, will have as its theme the historical background of the parish and the challenge to right thinking and living which the Christian church presents to the people in these present days of distraction and confusion.

The committee in charge of arrangements, has made elaborate plans for the service, which will be participated in by all the organizations of the parish, including the congregation and Sunday school of the Chapel of the Epiphany in South Washington, thus making it in a very real sense a "home coming service." Preceding this service there will be a half-hour recital of old, familiar hymns on the McKim memorial chimes.

The Parish of the Epiphany has an historical background that is exceedingly interesting to the people of Washington generally. In the year 1841 there were only three Episcopal churches in the city proper, and on Sundays these were crowded to capacity. This condition naturally led to a discussion looking to the creation of a new parish. Pending the erection of a church, prayer meetings were periodically held at the residence of a Mrs. James, on Fourteenth street near G street. On January 6, 1842 (the Feast of the Epiphany), a meeting was held that had to do with the actual formation of the new parish, and the name, "Church of the Epiphany," was the logical selection of the men and women present.

Site Is Contributed.

Sunday services were held in Apollo Hall, on E street, pending the completion of a church. One of the group interested in the formation of Epiphany Parish, a Miss Louisa Harrison, offered a piece of ground to the first vestry. That was in the autumn of 1842, and the ground offered is exactly that on which Epiphany Church now stands. The new edifice was completed and first used for divine service in July, 1844, Bishop William Rollinson Whittingham, of Maryland, preaching the sermon to a congregation that taxed the capacity of the building.

The first rector of Epiphany was the Rev. Dr. John W. French who, in 1841, was chaplain of Congress and city missionary. After a long and distinguished rectorship, Dr. French resigned to accept appointment as chaplain of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

The second rector was the Rev. Dr. Charles Hall, who was called from a church "down South," in October, 1856, and preached his first sermon the Sunday after Christmas of that year. After the service, Dr. Hall remarked that "it was no easy task for a stranger from the swamps of South Carolina to come to Washington and preach to a vast congregation." The first change in the physical appearance of Epiphany took place during his rectorship. The church was enlarged to twice the original size, transepts were added and a high and graceful tower was erected. Jefferson Davis and Secretary of War Stanton were two of the outstanding men who attended Epiphany during Dr. Hall's rectorship.

Dr. Hall Goes to Brooklyn.

Dr. Hall was one of the officiating clergy at the funeral of Abraham Lincoln. He resigned the rectorship of Epiphany to assume charge of a church in Brooklyn, N. Y. His successor was the Rev. Dr. Thomas A. Starkey, formerly a Methodist minister, and a preacher of exceptional ability. His rectorship was exceedingly brief, for in the spring of 1872 he resigned because of ill health.

Dr. Starkey's successor was the Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Watkins, who entered upon his duties in January, 1873. During his administration, which also was of short duration, many important changes were made in the physical and artistic appearance of the church. The repairs and renovations cost approximately $50,000—a large sum for such purposes in those days. The work finished, the church was reopened for divine service in November, 1874.

Dr. Watkins resigned in 1876, and was succeeded by the Rev. Dr. William Paret, who took charge of the parish in October of that year. Later, upon his consecration as Bishop of Maryland, in January, 1885, Dr. Paret resigned the rectorship of Epiphany.

The sixth rector was a man who was universally beloved, the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Giesy, who entered upon his duties in the spring of 1885. His administration was brief, for in 1888 he was stricken with pneumonia and shortly afterward passed on.

Dr. McKim Long Rector.

The Rev. Dr. Randolph Harrison McKim, who had served during the Civil War on the Southern side, was called to succeed Dr. Giesy, and preached his first sermon the Sunday after Christmas, 1888. Many important and far-reaching changes were made by the rector. He also made great efforts to raise a suitable endowment fund, the wisdom of his foresight now being very apparent because of the fact that Epiphany is now a "downtown church." Dr. McKim's was the longest rectorship in the life of the parish. It was marked by great accomplishments, but a brilliant career was brought to an end on July 15, 1920.

On February 1, 1921, the Rev. Dr. James Edward Freeman (now Bishop of Washington), assumed charge of Epiphany. His great gifts as an administrator and preacher filled the church every Sunday. One of his first moves was to erect a suitable memorial to his predecessor. This memorial was in the form of a new tower and a set of chimes of fifteen bells which are played every day at noon and on Sundays before service. In May, 1923, Dr. Freeman was elected Third Bishop of Washington, and was consecrated in Epiphany Church on September 29 of that year.

On May 12, 1924, Dr. Phillips was called from the Church of Our Savior, Philadelphia, to succeed Dr. Freeman. The call was accepted and Dr. Phillips preached his first sermon in July. Dr. Phillips is also chaplain of the United States Senate.

Church Refuses to Move.

There have been numerous attempts to sell the church property and build a new edifice uptown, but the decisions of the rectors and vestries that have had to meet these demands have invariably been that Epiphany can best serve the interests of the people of the City of Washington by remaining downtown, where it is hoped it will ever stay as a beacon light in the commercial and financial district, ministering to the multitudes that pass. The doors of the church are open every day, from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m., for those who wish to enter for rest and prayer and respite from the rush and turmoil of the workaday world.

Dr. Phillips has associated with him in the ministrations of the parish the Rev. Alvin Lamar Wills, and the Rev Francis Yarnell. The senior warden is Dr. Alfred R. Shands, and the junior or people's warden is Mr. William Channing Johnson.

Christian Science Churches

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist tomorrow. These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name: and deliver us, and purge away our sins, for thy name's sake." (Psalms, 79:9). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Baptism, Purification by Spirit; submergence in Spirit." (page 581).

A luncheon conference for ministers and laymen will take place at 12:30 o'clock at Calvary Church to be followed by a separate conference between the two presidents and the Baptist pastors of the city. COLETTE D'ARVILLE SCORES AS CARMEN

French Prima Donna Given Great Applause in Role; Others Win Praise.

Colette D'Arville, French prima donna of the Cosmopolitan Grand Opera Company, now playing at the New National Theater was a gay, bewitching, whimsical coquette in Bizet's opera "Carmen" last night when an appreciative audience enjoyed her wiles and witcheries and realtistic portrayal of the cigarette girl of Old Seville.

Carmen is beloved of all generations of opera goers, its lilting strains return to the memory at the first sound of the laughter-filled music of the orchestra, and last night the audience showed its pleasure in a series of ovations at familiar arias and dance tunes alike.

Mlle. D'Arville, singing the role in French, was entirely in her element. Her voice is a dramatic soprano with coloratura range and vivid in interpretation. With Gallic fervor she threw herself into the role. Her acting was of a high order and an attractive personality enhanced the thrilling operatic picture presented by her. With the proper kind of encouragement and sponsorship Mlle. D'Arville should find the doors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, the goal of American operatic stars, swinging wide open for her in a season or two.

Doffed Traditional Costume.

In costuming Mlle. D'Arville came nearer to the Calve type than to the traditional Carmen of mantilla and high head combs. It was Mme. Calve, it will be remembered, one of the greatest of all Carmens, who dared first to doff the traditional costume and defy tradition, and last night's star followed cheerfully in her wake.

Ralph Errolle scored for the second time this week in the role of Don Jose. It will be remembered that Carmen is a delightful series of stage pictures and the mounting of the play last night gave the principals an unusually fitting background.

In her great song "Habanera," last night's Carmen showed the wonders that Bizet injected into that ravishing melody within a single octave. Also in the "Seguidilla" she won the audience's heart again, while Mario Valle, as Escamillo, in his famous toreador song, learned also what genuine applause means from an audience thoroughly in accord with his presentation.

Others in Cast Score.

Dorothy Dickerson, singing "Micaela," wove some new laurels into the chaplet she has accumulated through her fine singing here this week, and Georgia Standing, as Mercedes, confirmed the good impressions she had already made.

Jacque Samossoud, fresh as if it were the first opera he had conducted this week, drew all the instrumental charm possible from the tuneful score. The chorus was light-hearted, danced and sang well, and what more could be asked from a "Carmen" ensemble?

A rather heavy day is ahead for the opera company, for it will present "Haensel and Gretel" in English this afternoon, followed by "Pagliacci," in Italian, while tonight's farewell performance will be the repetition of Verdi's opera, "Rigoletto," sung in Italian. E. E. P.

FOX

"STEPPING SISTERS." Fox picturization of a stage play by Howard Warren Comstock, adapted to the screen by William Counselman, featuring Jobyna Howland, Louise Dresser, Minna Gombell and William Collier, sr., supported by Stanley Smith, Ferdinand Munier, Mary Forbes and Barbara Weeks. Directed by Seymour Felix. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

While this farcical recital of what may happen when three ex-burlesque queens—one gone high-hat, one Shakespearean and the other still in the merry-merry—meet under the roof of the society climber who has married a man of wealth, but with a corned beef and cabbage outlook upon life, is not so explosively funny as it should be, it still affords recurrent intervals of low comedy that may be relied upon to rock any audience not pledged to a relentless observance of the proprieties.

When the three gals, reunited after years of diverse endeavor, foregather in the favorite drinking-room of the member of the trio who is throwing the colossal society bluff—ostensibly for the benefit of her beautiful daughter—and all get mildly jingled and go into their old songs and Amazonian routines, the time has come, you may rest assured, for laughter. And again when Lady Chetworth-Lynde, formerly known to the smoker circuits as "Queenie," and Rosie La Marr, the perennial trouper who has had her "pan jacked up" and still looks younger than her years, dons tights by way of throwing a monkey wrench into the austere Mrs. Ramsey's plot to be something in a social way by breaking up the "League of Nations" allegory, being presented at a smart garden party, the goings-on are rowdy but hilarious.

There are other scenes and long stretches of dialogue in between that die on their feet. This is wholly the fault of the material which they find at hand and not at all due to any shortcoming of a skillfully chosen and competent cast.

Louise Dresser, Jobyna Howland and Minna Gombel are the three blondes from the old days of burleycue and honors are, to all intent and purposes, evenly divided among them. Miss Dresser is the aspiring dowager battling for a place in the 400, whose former associates bring her back to earth with a bang; Miss Howland, the Shakespearean reader and Minna Gombell the rough-and-ready husband-player-around-with, who has selected the wealthy Mr. Ramsey as the immediate object of her affections. Minna Gombell's raucous laugh is almost worth the price of admission in itself.

William Collier, pere, and Ferdinand Munier, remembered as the touring U. S. Senator with Will Rogers in "Ambassador Bill," are the mainstays of the supplementary comedy that threads the piece. Stanley Smith and Barbara Weeks are the love interest.

The distinguished, and distinguishing feature of the bill, of course, is supplied by Ruth Etting, Broadway's favorite songstress, in a group of typical torch tunes and song stories that are climaxed by her tremendously effective treatment of "Smile On, Harvest Moon"—not an imitation of Nora Bayes—which she revived for the latest edition of the Ziegfeld "Follies," in which she did not appear when it played Washington recently. Miss Etting has that rare gift of achieving a maximum effect with an apparent minimum of effort, never failing to realize the greatest potentialities of any song she sings. Her reception yesterday afternoon, needless to say, was one of most cordial enthusiasm, to which she responded in kind.

Fanchon & Marco's "Tomorrow's Stars" Idea introduces a considerable list of youthful specialists who present an agreeable blending of comedy, song, dance and acrobatics. Bernie and Walker assume the duties of mastering ceremonies, greatly to the customers' amusement, and introduce Wanda Allen, a clever toe dancer; Mary Miles, an exceptional acrobatic dancer; Buddy and Gretel, ballroom dancers par excellence; Rudy Kaye, tenor, who goes for "Vesti La Giubba" in a big way; Dorothy Welch, soprano, with some surprising top notes; Chiyo Kadamatsu, Japanese dancer; Theo Nelson, acrobat; Helen Ireland, saxophoniste; Fern Dale, impersonator, and Zelma, toe tap dancer.

Les Stevens and the Diplomats are featured in a "Chinese Fantasy" overture, in which they are assisted by Dorothy Welch, of "Tomorrow's Stars," and, too, score handsomely in their quartet arrangements of several tuneful ballads.

The Fox Movietone News and a Paramount comedy, any extended consideration of which could only add to the depression, complete a bill of many popular components.

RIALTO

"STRICTLY DISHONORABLE." Universal picturization of the stage play by Preston Sturges, adapted to the screen by Gladys Lehman, featuring Sidney Fox, Paul Lukas and Lewis S. Stone, supported by William Ricciardi, George Meeker and Sidney Toler. Directed by John M. Stahl.

The fact that both public and theater management have so fully realized the merit of this production as to continue it a third week is in itself sufficient testimony to the worth of this exceptionally appealing picture.

The story of the little Southern girl, engaged to an outrageously conceited and self-satisfied ass, with whom she strolls into a little-frequented speakeasy late at night, there to meet a famous grand opera star with whom she promptly falls in love, is transferred to celluloid with discretion and tact. It is, furthermore, enacted with superb finesse by a flawless cast, led by Sidney Fox, Paul Lukas and Lewis Stone.

The auxiliary bill is variegated and interesting, consisting, as it does, of short-reel sound subjects of comic and informative content, including the Universal News, with Graham McNamee as the Talking Reporter.

Alfred R. Lee Chosen Citizen Group Leader

Alfred R. Lee, first president of Decatur Heights, Md., Citizens Association in 1919, again was elected to that post at a recent meeting of the association.

Other officers elected were Myron Potter, vice president; Gertrude Bicknell, reelected secertary-treasurer; G. M. Harris and W. R. Beattie, trustees. Mr. Harris is the retiring president, and had served two terms.

Alexandria Auxiliary Meets.

The American Legion Auxiliary held charter member night on Thursday, with Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, the president, presiding. The meeting was attended by a number of the women who helped form the organization in 1919.

COLUMBIA

"PRIVATE LIVES." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of Noel Coward's play of the same name, starring Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery, supported by Reginald Denny, Una Merkel and Jean Hersholt. Directed by Sydney Franklin. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Not to be missed, this picture. And your reasons will depend on your playgoing past. If you missed peeking at and listening in on "Private Lives" across the footlights, here's your chance. If the play was on your shopping list, here's your second chance, plus close-ups!

The rare fun and "repartee" of Noel Coward are difficult to equal and even Hollywood's "improvements" haven't been able to harm his delightful marital mix-up too much.

Amanda and Elyot, who loved each other too much, or to be truthful, too violently, to stay married principally because their cosmic thing-amagigs didn't always fuse properly, are still mad and merry. Though not quite so merry as they should be to give us the very essence of Coward's fascinating foolishness. They bite a little too deeply, snap a little too quickly, and snarl along on one key just short of too long. Yet for all this carping, Norma Shearer and Bob Montgomery do nicely indeed by two grand characters.

Victor and Sybil, the second mates, righteous and normal, have changed a little, too, and for the better, as played by Reginald Denny and Una Merkel. Denny in particular actually makes a person out of Victor. An achievement.

Meeting on the balcony of their second honeymooning hotel, each with a second mate in tow who thinks and talks of nothing but the first honeymoon, Amanda and Elyot find themselves, bound by a terrific and terrified attraction, running away together all over again. And their only guarantee of happiness this time is the little peacemaking, catchword Solaacks. (To which, incidentally, the movies decided to add a new twist, neat in itself, but no-end annoying when it necessitates a change in the perfect stage ending. Enough is still enough).

Norma Shearer starts out on her Amanda-acting with that brittleness and artificiality that has become so marked of late in her playing, but she warms to her task and the finished product merits several rounds of applause. Amanda, after all, is an artificial lady, though a lovely one.

Robert Montgomery, save for one or two of those little smart-alecky touches all his own, is very, very good as Elyot. And if you like him, you'll think him even better than that. He does, perhaps, rate more commendation than Miss Shearer.

As we have said, Denny and Miss Merkel are excellent. Jean Hersholt is dragged in for no particular reason as are several Swiss Alps, for the movies apparently feared to trust an entire picture to the telling of four characters in interior sets. But in taking some of that delicious second-act squabbling and squiring from the familiar little two-faced sofa in Amanda's Paris flat to the mountain tops, railroad coaches, and eventually a chalet in Switzerland, they have done rather incalculable harm to Noel Coward's whole idea.

But for all belittling, we recommend it highly. And most of the Coward dialogue is there.

A Hal Roach Rascal's comedy, with the adorable Weezer emoting a la Jackie Cooper, a Flip, the Frog, cartoon, and a newsreel complete an excellent bill.

PALACE

"LADIES OF THE BIG HOUSE." Paramount picturization of a story by Ernest Booth, adapted to the screen by William Slavin McNutt, starring Sylvia Sidney, supported by Gene Raymond, Wynne Gibson, Earle Fox and Purnell Pratt. Directed by Marion Gering. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Throughout the whole lot of prison and underworld pictures of comparatively recent vintage, there necessarily run practically the same dramaturgic elements, going, at times, even to the length of seemingly repeating actual lines from earlier plays of ilk. "Ladies of the Big House" is no exception. Taking their cue from earlier success, supplemented by Sylvia Sidney's boxoffice appeal, the producers have released a picture that fails to live up to expectations in the matters of surprise and novelty.

Kathleen and Standish McNeil are convicted for a detective's murder committed by her jilted gangster lover, he to hang and she to life imprisonment. The gangster's moll, framed to make a case of good riddance, gets a change of heart toward Kate and, after Kate is frustrated in an attempt at escape, Susie joins forces with the district attorney and the ends of justice are served.

Miss Sidney does a mighty fine job of it so far as her own part, histrionically, is concerned, but the whole fabric is so transparent that her efforts seem futile in depicting that which the audience long ago knew was coming. Likewise, Gene Raymond, as the unjustifiably jailed husband, is severely hampered by the onlookers' inevitable prescience.

As the jealous moll, Wynne Gibson gives a highly credible performance, and the gangster played by Earle Fox is sufficiently well drawn. Purnell Pratt, as the assistant district attorney, carefully delineates the real power behind the underworld throne, his sneering villainy more subtle and vicious than ever. Miss Sidney, however, dominates the picture.

On the stage, the "High Hat Revue" presents a wide variety of dances, happily omitting any tap routines. The Charlotte Ayres Rene Company presents a delightful round of modified ballroom steps, closing their second appearance with an adagio touch. The Kerns Sisters kick high, wide and not entirely without some handsomeness, too. The Chester Hale girls present several toe dances of merit. Furnishing the comedy of the I-can-sing-and-recite type, Carlton and Ballew offer a few songs and many gags.

Supplementing the regular program are a James F. Fitzpatrick Traveltalk, "A Garden in the Sea," a charming account of Madeira; "Sky Harbors," a brief survey of airports; Flip, the Frog, hobnobbing with skeletons, in "Spooks," and a release of the Hearst Metrotone News.

Hyattsville Post Raps Mapes Bill Tax Item

A committee has been appointed by Snyder-Farmer Post, No. 3, of the Hyattsville American Legion, to present to the Maryland delegation in Congress a protest against the income tax feature of the Mapes bills. The protest is made on the same grounds as all others from nearby Maryland, that Maryland residents would have to pay an income tax to the District without the benefit of the lowered intangible property tax.

The committee to draft the protest is headed by Commander William T. Luman, Orion R. Butler and Caesar L. Aiello.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

A DELIGHTFUL luncheon hour yesterday, dedicated to the renewal of a remote, home-town acquaintanceship with Beulah Bondi, remembered as the garrulous Mrs. Emma Jones in both the stage and screen versions of "Street Scene," and now appearing as Mrs. Pike in "Distant Drums," which closes its premiere week's engagement at the Belasco Theater tonight, led later in the afternoon to a brief visit with Dan Totheroh, the youthful author of the play.

Mr. Totheroh confided that the Washington reviewers' objection to the vagueness of the character of Eunice Wolfhill, the role in which Miss Pauline Lord returns to the stage after an absence of three years, was well founded—once the drama was seen in performance. That defect is being speedily remedied by the complete reshaping of the character.

It is my understanding that Mr. Totheroh is writing considerably more background into the character to account for and justify the eerie quality of her nature. Then there is to be developed a real love between Eunice and Jason Allenby, the young scout whose ardent protestations she at present no more reciprocates than she does those of her husband, and finally the distant beat of the Indian tom-toms is to be made, instead of an attraction and a resistless lure, an ominous but inexorable threat that brings terror to the heart of the woman to whom they mysteriously signify a fate that she heartily fears but can not evade.

Thus, when the final demand of the Indians comes in the last act that they be given the "white squaw" in return for guidance of the little band of homesteaders out of the mountains where they have lost their way and away from death, it will, in the words of Mr. Totheroh, serve as a sort of poetic justice, exacting a heavy toll for Eunice's perfidy and fulfilling the constant dread she has felt of those distant drums.

This, my friends, unless all signs fail, will make a play.

So confident are Mr. Totheroh, Mr. Guthrie McClintic, the producer, and their advisers that this is the case that they are taking a full week to effect the revision and rehearse the principals in the new treatment which will give Miss Lord an infinitely finer opportunity than she has had in the part of Eunice Wolfhill so far.

"Distant Drums" will not open in the National Theater in New York on next Monday evening, January 11, as originally announced, but will make its Broadway debut in the same playhouse a week from that date, Monday evening, January 18.

Here's success to all concerned, a long run and a merry one!

And I trust you haven't formed too definite an impression of Mary Michael from the tense and distraught performance she gives in the role of the young mother whose babe dies in her arms unknown to her. Offstage there is nothing tense and distraught about Miss Michael. She is, on the contrary, a vivacious and charming young woman with a gorgeous sense of humor.

Having met her I now admire her work on the boards more than ever—and I thought she was pretty swell last Monday night!

There is a keen bit of satire in the rehearsal scene of "The League of Nations" allegory in "Stepping Sisters," current at the Fox. One of the characters is Uncle Sam, who happens to be impersonated by the very British butler in the establishment of the wealthy Ramseys, where the pageant is being put on at a benefit for a needy home for indigent cats and dogs.

When Uncle Sam is asked by Prosperity, or the Stock Market, or the Spirit of Depression, or Pandemonium, or whoever it is, if he is really Uncle Sam, he replies with the broadest of English accents, "Raw-ther," with a heavy accent on the second syllable.

This, I take it, and I'm not so smart in such things, either, is intended as a slap at the alleged pro-British tendencies of the administration in power.

If the producers thought they were putting over a fast one, they must have been bitterly disappointed. The line sailed over the heads of the house into the lobby and lay there dead yesterday afternoon.

On January 21, the Columbia Players will present "Lady Windermere's Fan," by Oscar Wilde, at Wilson Teachers College, Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest.

The cast includes Janet Jackson, as Lady Windermere; Philip Cole, as Lord Windermere; Aurora Poston, as Mrs. Erlynne, and Paul Alexander, as Lord Darlington. Frank Jamison, whom the Columbia Players feel extremely fortunate in having to direct the play, takes the part of Lord Augustus. Mr. Jamison has been on the professional stage for many years and was last seen here in the cast of "Abraham Lincoln."

Those who are lovers of Oscar Wilde will be interested in this performance, as it is being modernized without harm to the delightful lines and situations. Carriages are becoming cabriolets and the fashions are changing, though bustles are apparently still bustles. However, the famous fan will still appear.

This is the first full-length production of the Columbia Players' season. "Lady Audley's Secret" and "Holiday" are planned for later in the year.

Although a specific date has not been set, definite confirmation was received yesterday by Managing Director Harry W. Crull, of the Fox, of the booking of El Brendel for a week of personal appearances on F street during the early part of February. It is probable, but not assured, that he will bring a company with him and put on one of his hilarious comedy vaudeville acts. El Brendel on the stage is sure-fire—as any one who remembers him in the two-a-day will tell you.

Hoping you are the same, and thanking you for the pretty Christmas card, I shall hope to spend the remainder of the winter—if any—with you at "Mourning Becomes Electra" Monday!

SCHOOL BOND ISSUE TAKEN OFF MARKET

Action in Prince Georges Is Caused by Probability of Low Bids.

Probability that the Prince Georges County school bonds could not be sold at par has led to their withdrawal from the market, with a consequent delay in the building program, it was announced yesterday.

Letters signed by Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools, were sent to about 50 financial houses which handle county bonds. They said: "Because the present condition of the bond market makes a par bid improbable, the $275,000 Prince Georges County school bond issue is temporarily withdrawn from call."

Funds from the sale were to be used for new buildings and repairs to schools in Marlboro, Surrattsville, Laurel, Bowie, Ammendale, Aquasco and Fairmont Heights.

Approved by Legislature.

The issue was authorized at the last session of the Legislature, but sale of the bonds was postponed at that time as no provision for paying the interest had been included in the county's budget for 1931. The bonds were offered for sale on December 31, with the stipulation they should not be sold for less than par.

The bond market has been distinctly unfavorable, a recent bid for Baltimore city bonds offering only 84. This bid, for a $4,200,000 issue at 4 per cent, was the only one received, and was rejected.

The county bonds would have borne interest of 4¼ per cent. It was believed better not to ask for bids on county bonds when city bonds were regarded so unfavorably.

Few Complaints Expected.

School officials do not expect serious complaints from communities which will not receive their anticipated schools.

They think the citizens will realize the loss to the county in selling the bonds under par, and point out that even if the issue sold for as much as 90, proceeds would still be insufficient to completely carry out the building program.

This situation is similar to that in 1921, when a bid of 89 was received on a 5 per cent issue. This was rejected, but two months later the issue sold for 97. Authorities are hopeful that the market will improve to such an extent that the bonds may be sold and construction work started at least before the beginning of the next school year.

Liquor Haul Leads To Traffic Charge

Taxi Owner Accused of Allowing Reckless Driving of Cab.

Roger Smith, colored, of Washington, was arrested on charges of allowing his car to be driven recklessly when he went to Marlboro, Md., yesterday to reclaim a cab which had been abandoned with a load of liquor following a chase early this week.

Smith admitted that he owned the machine, but said he did not know the driver was hauling whisky in it. He was released after posting bond of $100. The taxi, after a 20-mile chase from the intersection of the Crain and Defense highways, struck a telephone pole near Capitol Heights and was wrecked. The driver abandoned it and escaped on foot. Fourteen cases of liquor and a smoke-screen equipment were found in it by Constable William Kreitzer.

While arrests for permitting reckless operation are not unusual, the charge is usually made only when the owner is in the car at the time. Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, who swore out the warrant against Smith, said he believed the man knew that his driver was transporting contraband, however.

Postoffice Record Is Made at Fairfax

97 Bags of Parcel Post Handled Last Week, Postmistress Says.

The postoffice at Fairfax, Va., handled one of the heaviest mails in its history during the last month. The amount of first class mail was unusually heavy and 97 bags of parcel post was received during Christmas week, according to the report of Miss Ludema Sayre, postmistress.

Stamp sales during the last quarter of 1931 amounted to $1,838; the 1,789 money orders written totaled $12,201 for which fees amounting to $140 were received. The total receipts of the local office were more than $20,000, all which was remitted within 48 hours after receipt.

The report shows 199 parcels were insured and 178 letters registered. Probably the first bag of foreign mail to be sent direct from the Fairfax office was sent early in December to Geneva, Switzerland.

Hyattsville Police Chief Named in $10,000 Suit

Albert Anderson, chief of police of Hyattsville, Md., was yesterday sued for $10,000 by a man who alleges the officer circulated "malicious and defamatory" statements about him.

The suit was filed in the Marlboro circuit court by Attorney J. Frank Lillard for George Hamel, of Hyattsville. Hamel's petition quotes Anderson as saying that the complainant was running a disorderly house in the Maryland town. This has caused him much embarassment among his neighbors, Hamel says.

Peter Would Bar Trials by Wilson

Takoma Park Judge Cited to Show Cause Why He Should Sit.

Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday signed a rule to show cause which directs Judge A. L. Wilson, of the Takoma Park Police Court, to appear in Montgomery County Circuit Court next Wednesday to show cause why the circuit court should not issue a writ of prohibition barring the court from hearing any further cases until its validity is established.

Judge Peter had previously held that the Takoma police court is unconstitutional and his decision has gone to the Maryland Court of Appeals at Annapolis.

The rule was issued yesterday after Walter P. Plumley, attorney of Takoma Park and Washington, counsel for John W. Schaefer, of Takoma Park, Md., recently haled before Judge Wilson on charges of nonsupport of his wife and three minor children, had filed a petition asking for a writ of prohibition to stay all proceedings of the Takoma court. A plea to the jurisdiction of the Takoma Park Court previously had been overruled by Judge Wilson.

Four Fined $275 On Liquor Charges

Two Gave Authorities Long Chase Before They Were Captured.

Four men were fined a total of $275 on charges of possession of liquor when tried in Marlboro (Md.) Police Court yesterday. Wallace Taylor, who was fined $50, and Raymond Clancy, whose fine was $100, were arrested by County Policeman G. William Gray. Taylor is said to have had seven cases of liquor in his car when caught after a chase of two miles on the Southern Maryland pike, while Clancy was pursued about fifteen miles, from T. B. to Silver Hill, before he was arrested. He also had seven cases, Gray said.

Luther C. Jenkins, who was arrested at his home in Oakland, Md., by Sheriff W. C. Hopkins, was fined $50 for possession, while Elwood Bates, of 232 Hillside place northeast, was fined $75 on a similar charge. Bates pleaded guilty of possession of the five cases found in his auto when he was arrested on the Defense highway at Collington by Constable William Kreitzer.

Bethesda Doctor's Wife Files Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Irene M. Bauersfeld yesterday filed suit for absolute divorce from Dr. Emil G. Bauersfeld, Bethesda physician, alleging infidelity and naming a corespondent. The suit, filed in Montgomery County circuit court, at Rockville, Md., asks custody of the six children, ranging in age from 5 to 20 years, and alimony. Judge Robert B. Peter awarded temporary alimony of $300 a month.

Mrs. Bauersfeld, through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, says that she and the doctor are joint owners of an equity of approximately $6,000 in their home in West Chevy Chase, Md., and that the doctor has an annual income of approximately $10,000 from his medical practice.

Former Judge Thomas Host at Annual Dinner

Harry R. Thomas, who retired as judge of the Arlington County Police Court on January 1, after serving in that capacity for the last eight years, had as his guests at his annual dinner yesterday to the county police force, Bryan Gordon, retiring associate judge, and Judge B. M. Hedrick, of the new county court.

Mill at Nellie Custis' Home Will Be Restored for Park

The old stone mill, located between Mount Vernon and Woodlawn, home of Nellie Custis, adopted daughter of George Washington, is soon to be restored by the State of Virginia, it was reported yesterday.

Several days ago W. E. Carson, chief of the Virginia conservation development commission, called on Richard B. English, Alexandria representative of the Ford Motor Co., which recently purchased a plot formerly occupied by the George Washington Stone Co., at the foot of Franklin street, in regard to a quantity of stone which had been left by the stone company, and which came from the famous Aquia quarries, near Fredericksburg, stating this stone was desired for use in the restoration of the old Washington mill. Mr. English communicated with the home office of the Ford Motor Co., and has been informed that the company would donate this stone for the purpose desired.

The project, according to Mr. Carson, is to establish a park with the old mill as a center.

BUSINESS DEFEATS TECH, 28-27, IN SERIES UPSET

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE daddy of all salary cuts appeared yesterday with the announcement that the St. Louis Cardinals had offered Hack Wilson the munificent wage of $7,500 for his services in 1932, which, by itself, seems to be a respectable figure, but when placed beside his 1931 contract with the Chicago Cubs last year, which called for $33,000 per annum, seems just a bit out of kilter.

If Wilson had not discovered previously that the depression had arrived, he is convinced now that it is just around the corner, for the difference between his 1931 and 1932 wages threatens to be exactly $25,500 in round figures, much wampum in any standard of reckoning.

Hack is inclined to take his 1931 slump philosophically and has announced that he is willing to accept a reduction of 50 per cent, which means that he will be content to labor in 154 games or less for the miserly wage of $16,500, but for a paltry $7,500 Hack says he will not work.

But Hack is on the wrong side of the fence in this salary squabble. He must take his cut and like it or find some other profession. Organized baseball holds the whip hand over its players. Under the standard contract of organized ball, there ain't no justice for the players.

The contract that a ball player signs with an owner is binding only on the player. When a player signs a contract for a salary of, say, $10,000 per year, it does not mean that a club owner is reqired to guarantee him that sum. Should a magnate desire, he may release the player on ten days' notice and the salary agreement is immediately dissolved. Of course, if the player is retained for the entire season he must be paid the stipulated sum, but it is within the rights of the owner to release him at any time.

Under these regulations of baseball, the ball player is reduced to the merest chattel, and many be disposed of in the same manner that a ranch owner may sell or trade a prize cow.

So sweeping is the power of a baseball magnate with title to a player that Business Manager Branch Rickey, of the Cardinals, would be within his rights in offering Wilson a contract calling for $10 a week and Wilson would be forced either to accept or become outlawed in organized ball.

With Carl Reynolds now safely in the fold of the Washington Ball Club and President Clark Griffith of the Nats, in ecstacies as a result of his acquisition, there leaks out a story of a deal for Reynolds that was nearly completed last year and would have been one of the most sensational trades of recent years.

So anxious was Griffith to obtain Reynolds from the White Sox that last summer he offered to give the Chicago club Heinie Manush, Buddy Myer and Irving Hadley for Reynolds and Pitcher Alphonse Thomas. Manager Donie Bush, of the White Sox, was eager to close the deal, but it was blocked by the late Charles Comiskey, owner of the club, at the last minute.

It was following the collapse of these negotiations that Bush charged that he was not getting the needed cooperation from the Chicago owner. The near-deal was closely followed by the reports that Bush would resign his managership at the close of the season, which he did ultimately.

Wily Connie Mack helped his team to the pennant last season by cleverly manipulating the pitching appearance of Waite Hoyt, veteran of the Yankee and Detroit clubs, whom Mack claimed for his Athletics on waivers in midsummer.

A review of Hoyt's performance with the Athletics reveals that Mack picked his spots carefully for Hoyt, who had lost much of the cunning that made him an outstanding pitcher with the Yankees a few years ago.

It was in the last part of the season when the Athletics were confronted with a mass of doubleheaders that Mack made full use of Hoyt. But in each case, he started Hoyt in the second game of these twin bills when the opposition, with little rest, was not as fresh or alert. The pitcher made good in these carefully selected spots when he might have been an extreme risk in other games.

Agreeable to Cut of 50 Per Cent; Bonus Is Offered.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—"Hack" Wilson, leading home-run hitter of the National League in 1930 and batting failure of last season, acquired recently from Chicago by the world champion Cardinals, is this year's first big-league holdout.

This was disclosed today by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in a story from a staff writer at Martinsburg, W. Va., Wilson's home, saying "Hack" had refused to sign a one-year contract for $7,500, or $25,500 less than the contract he had with the Cubs.

"I would not sign for $7,500 under any conditions," Wilson said. "I do not think it is fair to ask me to sign for that kind of money. When I had that good year in 1930 I was given an increase of $12,000, and my contract called for $33,000, and now, after building myself up with a flock of good years, I am asked to take a $25,500 cut just because I had one bad year."

Substantial Bonus Is Offered.

The husky outfielder revealed that Branch Rickey, business manager of the Cardinals, had written him, also saying that if he had a good season, on and off the field, he could expect a substantial sum in addition to the contract amount, but that nothing was said as to what the sum might be. Wilson said he had been prepared to take a 50 per cent cut and would like to play with the Cardinals. He said the Cardinals made the trade for him "with their eyes open, and if they don't want to pay me what I consider a fair salary, I wish they would trade me to some other club."

When Wilson was acquired, the Cardinal management announced he probably would be used in a trade, then later said he would be retained. Recently Max Carey, new manager of the Brooklyn Club, visited Wilson at Martinsburg and it was reported he might go to the Dodgers.

Rickey Defends Contract.

Defending the contract offered Wilson, Business Manager Rickey said "a man who expects a salary of $33,000 for his services, the value of which is chiefly based upon physical expertness or skill and does not keep himself in condition to earn that salary, ought to expect a reclassification as a ball player."

Rickey added the Cardinals were pleased with Wilson's attitude and methods to get get back in condition, and that the club was willing to negotiate with "Hack" as to the "substantial sum" he would receive in addition to the contract if he made good.

Steele Faces Freeman In Next Mat Feature

Ray Steele, the California gentleman whose name used to be Pete Sauer, heads next week's wrestling card at the Washington Auditorium. The big German, who seems markedly better than Jim Londos, the accredited champion, has been matched to meet Herbie Freeman, the determined Jewish heavyweight.

Steele has not shown here since last October, when he rassled Rudy Dusek to a two-hour draw, the longest match held here since Joe Turner and Pinkie Gardner went three hours at the Lyceum in 1914.

Freeman has yet to meet defeat here. His last appearance, Thursday night, resulted in a 30-minute draw with Matros Krilenko.

LONDOS WINS AGAIN.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Jim Londos, considered in some States as world's wrestling champion, tossed George Kotsonaros, of Hollywood, out of the ring here tonight with a crotch hold. George was unable to struggle back. The time was 22 minutes 45 seconds.

PALACE TO DRILL TONIGHT.

The Palace A. C. basket ball team will scrimmage the Columbia Fire Department team of Alexandria, tonight at 6:30 o'clock, in the Alexandria Armory. Members of both teams are requested to report promptly.

American U. Wins In Richmond Game

Virginia Medical College Is Beaten, 34-23; Dick and Fuchs Star.

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8.—Displaying potential offensive and defensive strength, American University's band of cagers' sharpshooting continued its triumphant march through Old Dominion quints tonight on the Y. M. C. A. court, conquering the Medical College of Virginia, 34 to 23.

Last night the Eagles brushed aside Randolph-Macon. Tomorrow they invade Hampden Sydney for tryst with Charlie Bernier's Tigers in Death Valley.

Although Solly Banks, young Medico guard, carried off high-point honors with 12 markers, and his brother Abby, forward, followed with 10, to steal the show for the locals, it remained for Dick and Fuchs, forwards, to uncork the whirlwind passing. Dick rang up 7 points, Fuchs 4, while Sells, rangy center, dropped in 7. Olsen and Washburn were bulwarks of defense, each gathering in 6 points, 4 of Washington's coming via the charity route.

Dusty Cooke Sought By Chisox in Trade

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The White Sox today were reported to be dickering for the services of Allen "Dusty" Cooke, New York Yankee outfielder. No details were available except that the deal, apparently a trade involving a White Stox pitcher, would be completed just before the start of the next campaign.

Cooke, who came to the Yanks from St. Paul, of the American Association, was out most of last season with an injured shoulder.

Ben Franklin Loses To Rider College, 28-23

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 8.—Benjamin Franklin University's Basket Ball five got off to a disastrous start in its invasion of this city here tonight when it met defeat at the hands of the crack Rider College ensemble, 28 to 23, before 600 fans. Tomorrow night the Ben Franklin outfit will play Trenton State Teachers' College here.

After trailing by a 13-to-5 count at the conclusion of the initial half, the invaders took advantage of the poor playing of the Rough Riders and during the last few minutes of the final session they drew to within three points of the locals only to see their chances for victory stopped when two successive field goals gave Rider a commanding edge, which it held until the termination of the contest.

Referee Named Sole Judge Of Fights at Alexandria

By JACK ESPEY.

THE city authorities of Alexandria yesterday answered the storm of criticism directed at the judging of recent bouts held by the Alexandria Dav Nursery Athletic Association by ordering the permanent appointment of Charlie Short, of Baltimore, as the referee and sole judge of all bouts held henceforth by the association. Previously the decisions were rendered by the balloting of two judges and the referee.

The announcement of Short's appointment, one of the most unusual occurences in the history of boxing, was made by Matchmaker Frankie Mann, who acted on behalf of the committee which has had charge of the weekly shows conducted for the benefit of the Virginia city's needy children.

Action by the city authorities, the identity of whom was not revealed and who are said to hold a keen interest in the welfare of any enterprise conducted for the benefit of the day nursery, followed closely the protests of many fans concerning the judging of bouts held last Tuesday night in Portner's Arena.

Decisions awarding Reds Barry a draw with Natie Brown in the main bout and the same for Henry Irving, who fought Joe Finazzo in the semi-final, were me with choruses of boos. The consensus of opinion among newspapermen and ringsiders was that Brown and Finazzo were entitled to victories.

Short, whose appointment by civil authorities is unprecedented, is generally recognized as the most competent ring official in this section of the country. He enjoys a reputation for honesty and impartiality, and is pop-

Betting Coup Is Bared by Turfman

Bet $3,500 on Field to Boost Price on Linden Tree.

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Mexico, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Baron Long, one of an Agua Caliente triumvirate of horse owners, told today how he engineered yesterday's "queer" race on the track here which resulted in sorrow to many Eastern and Northern bookmakers.

Long explained that he forced up the Agua Caliente mutuel odds on Linden Tree, the winner, and logically so, by a late $3,500 wager split between all other entries in the first race. Previously he said he bet $1,000 on Linden Tree with an Eastern commissioner.

Linden Tree as a result paid $21.40 on each $2 mutuel ticket to win. Long said he collected $9,700 from his $1,000 wager, and lost $3,500 on his local bets, for a profit of $6,200.

Explains Motive For Coup.

"For years I have observed the bookmakers of the country sending money back to the race track," the baron said, "apparently for the purpose of cutting the prices of the horses their clients had bet on.

"Remembering the day when because of this 'comeback' money I was forced to take one to ten on a legitimate six to one shot, I got to wondering what would happen if conditions were reversed. From the furor caused by the Linden Tree incident in the first race yesterday, it seems to make a lot of difference whose ox is gored.

"For the benefit of those who may wish to follow suit and do a little worm-turning on their own account, I will give you the formula. I bet $1,000 to win on Linden Tree with an Eastern commissioner. (Too late, of course, for him to send the money back to the track and set it in the mutuels.)

Matched Odds Near Mutuel Window.

"As the horses were going to the post, I took a position near the mutuel window which closes last and when I saw the calculator jotting down the final figures, I turned and asked whether I could lay a bet. 'Is it too late to make a bet?' 'No,' he replied. So I handed nim $3,500, split between all the horses in the race except Linden Tree, and including a $500 wager on my own entry.

"I really ought not to be telling this, for I am in a measure killing the goose that laid the golden egg. However, the howl that has rolled in from the bookmakers has tickled my funny bone and the story is too good to keep."

McLarnin Says Bout With Brouillard Listed

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver welterweight, said here today plans had been completed for him to meet Lou Brouillard, welterweight boxing champion, in a title match in Boston late next month.

Chase Wins From Day In Florida Tourney

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Lee Chase, vetern Buffalo, N. Y., golfer, gained vengeance today for a 40-hole whipping he took a year ago in the finals of the 1931 Miami Midwinter Amateur Tournament.

Chase shot sterling golf on the back nine to defeat Win Day, lanky Chicago schoolboy and defending champion, 2 up, in the quarter-finals of the 1931 event.

Robinson May Manage Atlanta This Season

Atlanta, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Published reports here today say the Atlanta Baseball Club of the Southern Association has learned the terms under which Wilbert Robinson, former manager of the Brooklyn Robins, will consider piloting the Crackers during the 1932 season.

The reports say Robinson wishes to remain in baseball and that his terms for service with the Crackers are much smaller than the $25,000 figure he is said to have drawn with Brooklyn.

Miami Bout Pact Again Is Delayed

Saxe, New Garden Official, Would Clarify Schmeling-Walker Terms.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—William V. Saxe, New York lawyer, today was named president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Florida and as his first official act postponed the signing of Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker for a heavyweight championship fight until Sunday or Monday.

Saxe, legal adviser to Madison Square Garden of New York, also is president of the Madison Square Garden of Illinois and the Madison Square Garden of Ohio. All this due to the fact that Schmeling, the champion, is under suspension in New York State and the Madison Square Garden of New York can not deal with him under pain of suspension itself.

Saxe said today there were so many lawyers mixed up in the Schmeling-Walker contract activity that it would take at least two days for all of them to make their speeches and he expects no actual contract signing before Monday.

G. U. Five Defeated By Crescent A. C.

Special to The Washington Post.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 8.—The Georgetown University Basket Ball Team suffered a 39-to-28 setback at the hands of the strong Crescent A. C.-Hamilton Club combination on the clubmen's court here tonight.

Coming from behind, the Hoyas put on a sensational second-half rally which carried them within 6 points of capturing the lead. But the Crescent combination countered with a last-minute spurt and it throttled whatever chances Georgetown had.

The opening part of the first half saw both teams playing on fairly even terms. Midway in this session, however, the Crescents went on a scoring spree and steadily drew away from their opponents. The score at half time was 25 to 12 in favor of the Clubmen. Georgetown came back with a brilliant rally in the second half, and it wasn't long before they cut down that large lead. Tom Carolan, who gave a beautiful exhibition of goal shooting to carry off individual scoring honors with 17 points, led the Georgetown team to this rally. With eight minutes remaining, Georgetown was trailing by only 6 points. Their great offensive attack seemed to go dead all at once, however, and the Crescents countered with a drive of their own, which carried them into a comfortable lead again.

DIEGEL AIMS TO REGAIN HONORS

Returns to Favorite Course for $7,500 Los Angeles Open.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Leo Diegel, unorthodox shotmaker of Agua Caliente, Mexico, after bounding around golf courses for nearly two years without getting on frequent speaking terms with money-winning scores, will lead the pack of winter golfing lights tomorrow back to fairways where he made his last big stand against Old Man Par.

With 119 fellow money players and a score of amateurs, Diegel will renew his campaign for Southern California's largest winter golf purse, the $7,500 Los Angeles open over the tricky Hillcrest Country Club layout.

Nearly three years ago, Diegel waded through the cream of the country's professionals at Hillcrest to win. Suited admirably to Diegel's game, Hillcrest extends high hopes to the smiling blond from below the border. He knows its tricks probably as well as the home professional, Lew Scott, and the course yields an edge to the masters of approach shots, among whom Diegel is not last.

Three of the previous winners will be back for play but the ranking favorite is not among them. Mac Smith, who took first prize money twice; Harry Cooper, winner of the first open, and Big Ed Dudley, who eased his way to the top last year, are not liked so well by the second guessers as George Von Elm, and not without reason.

Von Elm has been on the top of his game in two of three recent tournaments, taking second place money in the $7,500 meet at San Francisco, and winning first place in the $2,500 Santa Monica amateur-pro event.

Walker Cup Matches To Learn Fate Today

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Definite indication whether the Walker Cup golf matches between the United States and Great Britain will be played in 1932 is expected to come from the annual meeting here tomorrow of the United States Golf Association.

The association's executive committee, meeting privately today, declined to comment on the situation, but it is understood President H. H. Ramsay will inform the big meeting tomorrow whether Great Britain expects to send over a team.

Due to the economic situation abroad, it has been rumored the 1932 matches will be postponed at least a year. It takes something like $10,000 to finance such an expedition.

Army Names Jones To Louisiana Post

(Associated Press).

The assignment of Capt. Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones, former football coach at West Point, to the Louisiana State University "for student training work," was announced yesterday by the War Department. It is understood Capt. Jones will become head coach of football at L. S. U., with Burt Ingwersen, former Iowa coach, as assistant.

Capt. Jones is a Washingtonian and graduated from Central High School where he first gained a reputation in football. He continued his gridiron success at West Point and was named captain of the Army eleven in 1917.

The report of Jones' transfer to Louisiana State first was circulated at the Southern Conference meeting last month in New Orleans.

Weight Costs Battalino Title

Feldman Bout Is Off; Efforts to Reduce Ire Champion.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The time came today for Christopher "Bat" Battalino to step down from his featherweight throne and he did it in a large way.

Not only did the busy youngster from Hartford, Conn., weigh in almost 10 pounds over the class limit of 126 pounds for a fifteen-round title defense against Lew Feldman tonight, thus automatically depriving himself of his championship, but he forced cancellation of the entire card he was supposed to head in Madison Square Garden.

It had been well known the Hartford Italian, growing fast, was having tremendous difficulty getting down again to the poundage of his class, after weighing 135½ pounds for an overweight match in which he knocked out Al Singer, a lightweight, in two rounds less than a month ago.

Nine Pounds Over Lightweight Limit.

Gen. John J. Phelan, commissioner, presiding at the scales, immediately declared Battalino's title forfeited. Feldman announced he would not fight any man and concede him that much weight, and Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter, scurried around frantically looking for substitutes. He found none, and a few minutes later called off the entire show.

Commission Rejects Injury Alibi.

Although Battalino brought his excuse in the form of a note from Dr. John McLean, of Hartford, Commissioner Phelan would have none of it. The doctor's certificate said Battalino had injured his right knee doing roadwork January 2, had been unable to run thereafter, suffered great pain, and was thus prevented from training sufficiently to pare his weight down to the featherweight limit.

In rebuttal Dr. William Walker, commission physician, examined the warrior, found a slight abrasion on the knee, and declared that in his opinion the bruise was not serious enough either to prevent his training or fighting tonight.

The dethroned title holder weighed 140 pounds when he started training two weeks ago. He worked feverishly to get down to 126 pounds. It was said at the commission that he came out of a three-hour session in a Turkish bath yesterday so parched and angry that he called off training, drank all the water he could hold, and went home to a big steak.

Although Feldman claimed the featherweight title as soon as Battalino defaulted, he was informed by Commissioner Phelan that the claim would not be considered.

Tech Five to Battle Navy Plebes Today

Tech High's Basket Ball Team, the victim of a 27-28 loss to Business in the opening of the public high series yesterday, swings back in action today in Annapolis, against the Naval Academy Plebe Team.

The only other game involving a local high school also takes place outside the great wall of Washington. In this contest the St. Alban's five plays Episcopal High, at Episcopal. The saints have lost Bob Freemen and Fletcher through graduation, and will rely today on Chesley and McGee, forwards; Craighill, center; Lorton and Cromwell, guards.

AL KELLY INVITED.

2,500 WATCH SCHOOL FIVES IN THRILLERS; CENTRAL WINS, 28-24

By BOB CONSIDINE.

PACKING a thrill a minute, the umpteenth annual high school basket ball championship opened yesterday with 2,500 shrieking young subscribers in the stands and two memorable basket ball games on the floor. In the opener Business pulled a stirring upset to down Tech 28-27, and in the other game form held true by a slim margin, and Central beat out Western, 28-24.

There seems to be little doubt that the Business-Tech game will live long in the minds of those who lent a raucous presence to the fiery struggle. The end of the game produced a scene of wild disorder when something went wrong with the mechanism of the gun which was supposed to end the scramble on the floor and Tech scored what appeared to be the winning basket.

Business was leading by the score with which they finally won. Sis Esenstad had boosted it to this mark of 28-27 on an amazing shot from the side of the court, after Waverly Wheeler, Tech titan, seemed to have put his side definitely ahead a moment earlier, 27-26, by shooting two perfect foul shots with the gym trembling from the roar. Hades broke loose on the floor after Esenstad's shot and the kids forgot everything they had been practicing for months. It was one wild scramble for possession of the ball, and more players were on the floor than on their feet.

In Which Blanks Prove Blank.

The second hand on the official watch had reached the 60 mark just as Referee Joe Mitchell whistled for a jump ball to the left of Tech's basket. With Timekeeper Haight, former Navy marksman, plucking frantically at the trigger and the rooting of bedlam proportions, Everett Russell, true to his never-say-die type of play, tapped the ball toward the basket on Mitchell's toss-up. The ball settled through the ring and a monumental roar swelled up from the Tech cheering section, but Timekeeper Haight was already on the floor brandishing the cockeyed pistol. Coach Boyd, of Tech, corroborated the decision, as did others who were in the neighborhood of the watch.

The game gave every semblance at its start of being the dullest in several years. The score at the end of first quarter stood 1-to-1, a mark resultant from Business' ability to get the ball off the tap even though Reed jumped inches higher than Sherman. Once in possession of the ball Business began to "freeze" it, while Tech team, leashed to the zone defense system, stood helplessly in their stalls. Esenstad's pot shot, after five minutes of play in the second period was the first basket scored from the floor.

Business Shifts Style of Play.

Business opened up its style of play thereafter and Tech made ready progress against this more orthodox style. At half time, Tech led 12-to-7, but Shore, Tipton and Esenstad connected with good long shots in the third quarter and the teams finished up the period with Tech leading, 21-to-20. Shore put Business ahead, 22-to-21 on a beautiful pop-in of a colleague's wild shot, soon after Tech discarded its zone defense and thereafter the lead changed four times on sensational last moment shooting on both sides, and would have changed the fifth time, had not Russell's shot been erased by the relentless progress of time.

Tech's loss showed how much it misses its captain, Artie Willison, who viewed the game forlornly from the sidelines, with a pair of crutches on his arm. A badly sprained ankle will keep him out for at least another week.

The Central-Western game was scarcely less full of thrills. The score of 15-10 at the half, in Central's favor, was the widest breech ever visible between the clubs, the first period having ended 9-7 in favor of Central and the third quarter having closed at 18-18, after Western had held an 18-15 lead on the virtue of two long shots by Bill Payne.

Tony Latona gave Western a 2-point lead at the start of the fourth, 20-18, but Central went to 21-20 on a dribble the length of the floor and a shot by Bill Burke, captain of his side and the leading figure on the floor, and a foul shot by Smith. Buscher's pot shot and Swanson's foul gave Western the edge, 23-21, but Keyser tied up matters with a long one from the side.

Burke Shoots Long Basket.

Western's downfall started with a minute left of the game. Latona, an eternal scoring threat, was charged with a double dribble in midfloor, and it was Central's ball outside. Burke took the throw in midfloor and lofty for a beautiful basket. Payne sank a foul for Western, but Burke bootted his side ahead, 27-24, by breaking out of Central's freezing act and taking the ball down the field alone. Central's other point came when Keyser popped in a foul, awarded him for taking an elbow in the mouth from Payne, for which the latter was ex-[illegible] from the court.

Maryland U. Frosh Bow to C. U. Cubs

A successful free toss by Rosenfield in the last minute of play won for Catholic University freshmen over the Maryland University yearlings last night in Brookland gym, 27 to 26. The Old Line frosh carried a two-point advantage into the final minute, but saw Gearty sink a long toss to tie the score and then watched helplessly as Rosenfield dropped in the all-important tally from the foul line.

The game was as closely contested as had been predicted on the strength of the fact that both teams defeated Business High previously by small margins. The Maryland cubs led at intermission, 14 to 12. During the second half the score was deadlocked several times.

Special to The Washington Post.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 8.—Davis Harris, outfielder, became the first player of the Washington Ball Club to sign a 1932 contract when he attached his signature to terms for one-year, after a conference with Washington Club officials.

Despite threats that reduced salaries would be general throughout the league, Harris declared that he signed at the same terms of his 1931 contract, but did not reveal the figure.

During the 1931 season Harris was used chiefly as a utility outfielder and pinch-hitter, seeing much service in the outfield when opposed to right-handed pitching. He was obtained by the Nats in 1930 in a deal with the Chicago White Sox for Outfielder Red Barnes.

Harris is a native of Greensboro and started his carer with the local club of the Piedmont League and each winter makes his home here, where he has a family. He puts in the off season on the local bowling alleys and golf courses. He gained local fame on the links last year when he took up golf for the first time and scored a hole-in-one on a 350-yard hole, when a tremendous drive trickled into the cup.

When bowling Harris comes again under the tutelage of the man who started him to baseball fame—Charley Carroll, former local Piedmont manager, who manages an alley here. Wesley Ferrell is the only other major league star of the several who live here who has signed his 1932 contract. Wesley recently returned the contract offered him by Cleveland with his signature attached.

MILLS RIDES THREE MORE WINNERS AT TROPICAL PARK

Star Jockey Accounts for 2 Records

Stephanite Favorite, Wins by 1-2 Length at Jefferson.

TROPICAL PARK RACE TRACK, Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Hank Mills, 90-pound riding sensation from the Pacific Coast, rang up his twenty-second victory of the meeting here today when he escorted home three winners, including the Mahopak Stable's consistent gelding Traitor in the feature race, and accounted for two new track records.

Mills brought home Traitor, odds-on choice, in 1:11 flat for the fastest 6-furlong dash on this track. The winner's margin was eight lengths. Black Watch took the place from Angry Plume. Traitor, outracing Black Watch in the first furlong, drew away at evey stride and paid $2.60 for $2.

The second track record to fall was that for 7 furlongs, which Prince Tokalon broke in the fifth race. Mills rode the G. W. Ogle standard bearer across the finish line in 1:25 1-5, scoring by eight lengths again. Matadi and Meridian Queen were second and third.

Stephanite Scores At Jefferson.

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Stephanite, 5-year-old brown son of Stephen the Great—Thimble and even-money favorite, today won the fifth and feature race at Jefferson Park, a $700 claiming event, at a mile and a sixteenth, for 3-year-olds and upward.

Stephanite went to the front at the start and stayed there, holding on to win by half a length from Gettin Even, which came fast in the stretch, to take the place money. Galahad, up in the contention at the start, also came fast in the stretch to take show money. The time of 1:53 3-5 was almost 10 seconds back of the track record. Stephanite and Gettin Even carried top weight of 114 pounds with Galahad carrying 3 pounds less.

Ensor Scores Double At Havana.

Havana, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—H. D. Bonsteel's Vacillate, five-year-old daughter of Volta-Compose, accounted for the best offering of the seven-race program at Oriental Park, a six-furlong dash for four-year-olds and up.

Vacillate's victory gave the veteran Lavelle (Buddy) Ensor a double for the day for he previously had ridden Translucent to a win in the third race.

Vacillate, the class of the field, had no trouble from start to finish. Away fast, she ran into a long lead and held it to the end. J. H. Louchem's Blue Day, a first-time starter, won the place in a hard drive from G. Collins' Thistle Ann.

THELMA L., going in her best form and quick to get going, went to the inside after reaching final three-eighths, drew into decisive command when mildly urged after reaching the stretch and won in hand. PURPLE ROBE also raced wide early and, a strong factor from the start, saved ground from the turn, and holding on well, was much the best of others. AMERICAN THUNDER, on inside early, had speed and weakened in the final drive, but outstayed MOLLY HOGAN. The latter was energetically ridden throughout. ZAILA began slowly. LAURA NEGLEY moved up slightly at the stretch turn, but quit badly thereafter. PATRICIA CLARE had early speed.

VERITY BALLOT, widely best, moved fast from the start, was in close quarters at the first turn, but escaped with only slight interference, raced restrained until reaching the final quarter, where she quickly raced into command, winning in hand. BRIGHT KNOT began slowly, raced wide while working way up and, while no match for the winner, held on well. SCANDAL SHEET, a strong factor throughout, saved much ground. BOOT NOSE showed a fair effort. PRINCESS NANCY tired. SKIDMORE was not suited by the going. ESCOBA LAND showed poor form. BOTTLED BOURBON quit badly after three-quarters. SUN BONNY caused some crowding at the first turn and had early speed.

FOURTH RACE—Two furlongs. Purse, $600. Special weights. Battle of New Orleans. For maiden 2-year-old fillies. Start bad from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:29. Off at 3:32. Winner, W. H. Hosea's br. f. (2), by Leonardo II—Dangertude. Trained by L. Fischer. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIGURISTE, $12.80, $5.20, $4.60; CLOISTER'S DREAM, $4.80, $3.00; SONSY, $2.80.

FIGURISTE, away fast, was hustled clear in the opening sixteenth, maintained her speed, impressively, and held away under steadying restraint the final eighths. CLOISTER'S DREAM, also away fast and always clear, had speed and weakened, but outlasted SONSY. The latter, in close quarters early, closed fast while bearing to inside. LONESOME GLORY raced well and the effort should benefit her. CHANTESUTA had a rough trip. TIVERTON began fast and had speed, but weakened. COPLY SQUARE was unprepared at the start, where she blocked BELLO SONO.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 4:01. Winner, E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STEPHANITE, $4.00, $2.60, $2.20; GETTIN' EVEN, $4.00, $3.00; GALAHAD, $3.40.

STEPHANITE, away to the lead, was rated under slight restraint until reaching three-eighths, where he gamely withstood repeated bids from GETTIN' EVEN and won under strong pressure. The latter had speed, was under steadying reserve first three quarters and, dropping back after offering several bids, came again mildly in the final stages. GALAHAD, badly outrun until reaching the last three-eighths, raced wide while closing ground gradually thereafter. ESSARE, fractious at the post, where he was placed outside the stalls, showed a fair effort under a poor ride. LIEUTENANT RUSSEL was outrun. ENGLEWOOD was given a weak and poorly judged ride.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good for all but Princess Elsie from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:26½. Winner, Falls City Stable's br. m. (6), by Trojan—Prodigious. Trained by A. E. Va. Rex. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25, 0:50, 1:17.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STUPENDOUS, $5.40, $3.60, $2.80; SILVERWAVE, $6.40, $4.60; HELEN DEAN, $3.00.

STUPENDOUS, much the best, followed the early pace under restraint, quickly disposed of SILVERWAVE when called on and came away rapidly in the final stages. SILVERWAVE, in fourth place, had speed, saved ground and held on well to final sixteenth, where she quit abruptly, yet outstayed HELEN DEAN. The latter, outrun early, came through on inside when closing resolutely. RUNMAID, prominent throughout, had no mishap. MAD A. began slowly, but was going well in the late stages. PATTIE KATE was badly outrun. PRINCESS ELSIE broke poorly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:49. Off at 4:53. Winner, Allen's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RAVE, $9.00, $4.40, $3.40; STAR FLYER, $8.80, $5.60; WISE SUSAN, $4.40.

RAVE, the best, kept up close while jostled about during the opening three-sixteenths, slipped through on inside when going to the lead and, drawing into decisive command, won thereafter. STAR FLYER, under steadying reserve until reaching the final three-eighths, stood hard driving gamely, but failed to threaten the winner. WISE SUSAN began slowly, lost much ground at the first turn, but gathered position gradually and held on well. NERVATOR closed some ground with a rush on inside in closing quarter. GLEN LAD had early speed. BERNICE VAN met early interference and failed to respond when urged hard.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., Jan. 8.—The Martin Behrman Memorial Purse, a claiming affair, for 4-year-olds and upward, a test over the grueling mile and a half distance, will feature the program at the Crescent City course today. A program of well-filled events for the cheaper grade of horses will support the main event. Mud runners will be in demand as the strip was reported muddy following early morning showers.

FEATURE RACE—A field of fourteen game routers will contest this event. STARCH, from the W. J. Curran Stable, which scored so easily last outing will favor the long route and over the muddy track, appears best. KLINGSTONE showed a splendid effort last start and figures to furnish stern opposition. ORMONTIME should hold the others safe.

FIRST RACE—THE OKAH, winner of his last start at this strip, is at the peak of his form and against the mediocre he meets in this 6-furlong sprint, is given the call. LOOP, from the C. V. Whitney string, is the place selection, with OLD BILL third.

SECOND RACE—Another group of platers will battle it out in this three-quarter mile dash, with VLADIMIR, a consistent mudder, fancied to take down the honors. ESTIN has shown a liking for mud and under the conditions must be accorded a chance. MISS N. CONLAN is the show choice.

THIRD RACE—This number is fashioned for routers which will be decided at the mile and a sixteenth distance. VAGABOND defeated a similar field last start and under identical conditions should repeat. LUCK PIECE, a game distance runner, figures to hold STOP GAP safe for the place. The latter is attaining his form and may finish in the money.

FOURTH RACE—A well balanced field of 3-year-olds have been entered in this 6-furlong event. ADRIAN, a steady plater from the F. A. Wehle Stable, is on the improve and should show the way. DECEPTIVE is dropping down here and may prove dangerous. LAZY MARY should show.

SIXTH RACE — HAL RILEY has raced with better company than he meets in this mile and a sixteenth event, and under the conditions should experience little difficulty. DRY DOCK and HARPOON, two consistent mudders, figure to divide the remainder of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE — A large field of platers will match strides in this number, a test over the mile and a sixteenth route. DICK PORTER, a steady plater, has raced well in recent efforts and appears to hold a slight edge over his opponents. ADALOR T. is the place selection, with JEFF O'NEIL, a surprise winner last time, as the show choice.

SUBSTITUTE RACE — PETABIT, from the Colgate Stable, a fair sprinter, is well suited in this 6-furlong dash and shapes up as the logical choice. BRINKLEY is another consistent claimer, which should finish in the runner-up position. POLYFON should hold the others safe.

ALEXANDRIA HIGH PLAYS TONIGHT

Lee-Jackson Quintet Faces Twins; Other Games Scheduled.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 8.—Three important games of basket ball will be played by the Alexandria High School tossers within the next ten days, it was announced today by Director of Athletics Maurice Given.

Tonight at Armory Hall the "Twins" will engage their old rivals, Lee-Jackson High tossers, of Fairfax County. On next Wednesday the local boys trek to Maryland to meet the Hyattsville High five, while Friday night Washington and Lee courtmen play here in their annual game. This is one of the feature contests for the locals.

The Alexandria High sextet will also see action on Friday, January 15, as they will mix with the Lee-Jackson girls. The lassies have yet to suffer defeat on the woodways. They have one of the best teams ever to represent the school.

Carr Shows Skill.

"Mac" Carr, captain of the championship football team in 1931, is displaying great form with the quintet and has filled the berth left vacant by Bubbles Yarter. Carr is a dead shot from side court.

Joe Duncan, former St. Joseph's College star athlete, today assumed the post as physical director at George Mason High School. His appointment was confirmed by the school board.

Les McMenamin, Alexandria boy, is playing basket ball with the Frederick Professionals. "Mac" will play minor league baseball with Youngstown (Ohio) Team next season.

The St. Mary's Lyceum five will mix with the Georgetown varsity team in a charity game here on January 16. All receipts will go to the Alexandria Day Nursery. This marks the second time a Georgetown court club has appeared here.

Investigators to Battle Patent Office Tomorrow

Bureau of Investigation and Patent Office fives have been scheduled by Government League officials to engage tomorrow at 2 o'clock in the Silver Spring Armory. The clash will be a preliminary to the game between Vic Sport Shop semipros and the Broadway Theatricals of Philadelphia.

A victory for Tommy Connors' Detectives would mean a deadlock with Census Enumerators for first place, while the Patent Office aggregation will be striving for its second victory. On its recent showing, Investigation is favored to win the Government first half title.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL ON "WASHINGTON CROSSING THE DELAWARE."

("Leutze's famous painting, 'Washington Crossing the Delaware,' has been removed from the wall of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, for lack of room, and put in a storeroom. The painting has long been criticized on technical grounds, critics have pointed out that the American flag carried in the painting was not adopted until six months after the crossing, and that it was extremely improbable that Washington stood up in the boat as shown in the painting."—news item.)

To the Metropolitan Museum of Art:

Gentlemen:

I can not get through my cereal and coffee without first taking my pen in hand and respectfully urging you to put "Washington Crossing the Delaware" back on the walls. I don't know any too much about art, but "Washington Crossing the Delaware" has always been a great painting to me. "Washington Crossing the Delaware" is worth more to the average museum visitor than six alleys full of masterpieces such as "Boy in a Blue Hat Rolling a Hoop," "Young Girl Peeling an Apple," or even Rembrandt's "Old Woman Cutting Her Nails."

When I look at "Washington Crossing the Delaware" I get the general idea, at least, and can understand why an artist should take the trouble to paint it. It may be so that the flag carried in the boat was not official at the time of the crossing, but to my mind anybody who would roast the painting on that point would denounce the Lincoln Memorial on the ground that one of the hairs in Lincoln's beard was not there at 2:15, August 10, 1862, Eastern standard time.

As to whether George really stood up in that boat on that rough passage, I am in no position to state and I don't give a darn. All I know is that Washington was the kind of man who looked all right standing up in a boat and who would have been inspired if he stood on his head in it.

Did you ever see a picture of Washington sitting down? I never did. He didn't have time to sit down in those soul-trying days and if his soldiers had seen him in repose they would have thought he was sick.

You have a truckload of paintings on the walls that are truly great masterpieces, and yet they do not mean a thing to the average man. For instance, there is "The Hon. Henry Vane with his Guardians, Inigo Jones and Charles Blair," by Sir Joshua Reynolds. It is a great work of art, but not caring much about the Vane, Jones and Blair boys, I would give Washington the call over them if it came down to a question of wall space.

If technical inaccuracy in any way influences the removal of the Washington painting, I might say that any art gallery is loaded with masterpieces that would not stand checking up on minor details. You take Rubens' "Wolf and Fox Hunt." I will lay you ten grand to a dozen doughnuts that no fox hunt like that ever took place unless the wolves were doped.

If you think the walls have too many nautical views, I suggest that you keep Washington in place and sidetrack a few like Manet's "In a Boat," a masterpiece, no doubt, but all it shows is a bored looking man in a straw hat out for a sail with an old-fashioned girl. I dare say the painting is flawless in execution and correct in every detail, but it doesn't show that they were bound on a mission that would ever run fifth to Washington's trip across the Delaware.

Of course this is none of my business, and I apologize for taking it up, but I still think there is room in any museum in America for the most famous painting in American history.

Yours, truly,

STOCK PRICES CLOSE HIGHER IN LAST HOUR

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The stock market caught its second wind today, and on a sprightly afternoon rally closed 1 to 5 points higher. Nearly half of the day's business, amounting to 1,973,200 shares in all, took place in the last hour.

Wall street looked within the market itself, rather than outside, for an explanation. The advance seemed to conform closely to the "line of least resistance" pattern; and there were widely circulated reports that a number of prominent professional operators had undergone a change of heart, however temporary, which had put then on the long side, presumably for a turn. The average net rise was 2.7 points so that in three successive days of rising prices the market has picked up 8 points.

If it was hard to find anything outside the stock exchange on which to base strength, the undercurrent of sentiment toward future developments remained distinctly cheerful, as was evident in the firm resistance to early profit-taking.

Rail Wage Cut.

Acceptance of a wage cut by 4,500 New Haven Railroad employes brought another group of carrier workers into line with the course which the executives hope will eventually be adopted by all.

The advance in most stocks fell short of Wednesday's, but the leadership displayed by market favorites stimulated bullish operations considerably. U. S. Steel climbed 3 points to 43¾ and finished near the top. American Telephone crossed 120 and returned a net gain of just 5 points. Radio was strong, joining Westinghouse, General Motors, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, National Biscuit, New York Central, Woolworth, North American and International Telephone in an upturn that amounted to more than a point net. Bethlehem, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Western Union, Northern Pacific, American Tobacco "B," Pullman and American Ice were up 2 to 3. Auburn had its own special move, closing 10 points higher.

Trade Upturn Reported.

Weekly mercantile reviews reported some improvement in trade, even though most lines are comparatively inert. Clearance sales are helping distribution. Spring business thus far is the lowest in years, but Dun's pointed out that stocks were unusually incomplete. Bank clearings for the week, according to Bradstreet's compilation, showed a larger than seasonal gain, but were 41 per cent under a year ago.

Wheat and corn closed before the stock market had made its best showing and final prices of both grains were fractionally off. Weakness in Liverpool, larger shipments from the Southern Hemisphere and a smaller export demand influenced wheat. Cotton, however, felt the strength of securities, closing 40 to 50 cents a bale higher.

Foreign exchanges were mixed, with French francs reactionary and sterling firm. The yen rallied with Japanese government bonds.

BOND PRICES SWING TO NEW HIGH LEVELS

Federal Issues Alone Prove Exception, With Declines; Rails Lead Rise.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Railroad bonds again took the lead in a vigorous upswing of prices which carried the securities market to new high levels for 1932.

The only cloud on an otherwise bright sky was in the United States Government list. In the face of buoyancy in other sections, both liberties and treasuries declined throughout the day, most of them finally reaching new lows.

The depression in Federal obligations was attributed to a report that debentures of the proposed reconstruction finance corporation, now before Congress, might be issued at 4 per cent for five years, tax free. There was no confirmation of this report, however.

Voluntary acceptance of a 10 per cent cut in wages by 4,500 New Haven employes aided the transportation liens in view of the fact that executives and union leaders will hold a joint conference in Chicago next week to settle the wage reduction question generally. It is now believed an agreement will be reached.

Low-priced rail liens attracted most of the buying today. From 1 to 9 points advance were registered by some bonds of Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, St. Louis & San Francisco, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash.

Industrial loans advanced prices along with the rails, but trading was in smaller volume. The utilities also sold higher.

Foreign bonds were firm, Japanese Government 6½s advancing in the face of the resignation of the cabinet following an attempt to bomb the emperor. German 7s lost nearly 4 points at one time, but rallied to close unchanged. The 5½s gained 1¼ points under the heaviest trading of the session.

Bond sales for the day totaled $15,-897,000, around $2,000,000 over yesterday.

Austria Makes Record In Circulation of Notes

Vienna, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A record high total of discounted bills, amounting to 908,000,000 schillings ($127,120,000) and the biggest note circulation in the history of the bank—1,300,000,000 schillings—are shown in the national bank report for the last week of 1931.

There was a further shrinkage of 9,000,000 schillings in foreign exchange, and the note coverage dropped off 1 point to 24.2 per cent.

General Motors Sales Increase in December

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—December sales of General Motors Corporation to dealers showed a sharp increase over November, totaling 79,529 units, against 29,859 in the previous month and 80,008 in December, 1930.

Sales to consumers in the United States were 53,588 cars, compared with 34,673 in November and 57,989 a year ago. Sales to American dealers amounted to 68,650 units, against 23,716 in November and 68,252 in December, 1930. For the entire year sales to all dealers totaled 1,074,709 cars and trucks, compared with 1,-174,115 in 1930.

Quoted Values of Bonds Drop $9,536,317,083

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange made public today a tabulation showing that the market or quoted value of all bonds listed on the exchange declined $9,-536,317,083 during the past year.

The par value of 1607 issues listed on January 1, 1931, aggregated $50,-072,879,807 with a market value of $47,384,805,889, on January 1, this year. There were 1601 listed issues with a par value of $52,360,023,801, with a market value of $37,848,488,-306. The average price for all bonds on this date was $72.29 per $100 bond. The decline in the quoted value of all listed issues during the final month of the year amounted to $1,-663,909,801.

Seaboard Air Line Bond Owners Guard Rights

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Seaboard Air Line Railway Co. underlying bondholders committee today sent letters to all holders of underlying bonds, setting forth various problems involved in the receivership of the railway and urging deposit of certificates with the committee.

Approximately 50 per cent of the outstanding bonds already have been turned in, committee members said. The letter urged upon bondholders particularly that "every effort be made to prevent displacement of the underlying first lien" by receivers certificates, which have been issued to cover operating expense.

The underlying committee is headed by Edwin G. Baetjer, and includes Joseph B. Kirby, Austin McLanahan, A. H. S. Post, Baltimore bankers and W. H. Sargeant, president of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co.

GALLAUDET'S FIVE WINS BY 28-17

Jensen, Brown Star as Md. State Normal Quintet Bows.

WILBUR JENSEN and George Brown proved a highly proficient scoring combination for Gallaudet College's quintet last night and between them accounted for 22 points, or more than were scored by the Blues' opponents, the embryonic teachers of Maryland State Normal. The final score was 28 to 17.

Normal, as in two previous appearances here, had little to show in the way of organized attack, and but for the fine individual work of Duke Duhan, center, would have absorbed a worse beating. Duhan tallied 13 points from five field goals and three fouls.

The Jensen-Brown combination began clicking in the second quarter after Normal had taken a lead of 6 to 5 on Duhan's close shot from scrimmage. Jensen tied the score at 7 to 7, and then sent Gallaudet ahead for the balance of the route with a successful shot from the charity line. At half time the Blues led by 13 to 7.

The Teachers drew up to 15 to 12 terms shortly after the start of the third quarter, when Dugan and Duhan scored a foul and fielder, respectively. But Jensen and Brown once more went into the pass-and-shoot specialty, to place the game beyond the visitors' recall.

In a preliminary, the Gallaudet Reserves defeated the Marion Athletic Club, 42 to 9.

SHORT WILL JUDGE ALEXANDRIA BOUTS

ular with the fans. Though he conducts a business in Baltimore, boxing promoters as far distant as New York and Cleveland call upon his services in the third-man role.

Short therefore will render the decision in the Midget Wolgast-Billy Landers match which features the 32-round program scheduled by the Day Nursery for next Tuesday night. Wolgast is recognized as world's flyweight champion by the New York and Pennsylvania commissions. He is the first top-flight boxer to be secured for competition in the Capital area in ten years, but his title will not be at stake inasmuch as both he and Landers will weigh above the flyweight limit of 112 pounds.

The management yesterday closed a match between Buster Brown, of Baltimore, and Sammy Braunstein, a Marine stationed in the Washington Navy Yard, for the semifinal, which like the main attraction is listed for eight rounds.

Brown has fought in major league circles for the past two years, meeting among others two world's champions—Jackie "Kid" Berg and Benny Leonard. He extended Berg when the latter held the junior welterweight championship and battled ten rounds with Benny Leonard former lightweight king, when Leonard inaugurated a comeback a few months ago in the welterweight division.

HOWARD VARSITY WINS.

Scoring almost at will, the Howard University Varsity Basket Ball Team turned back the Veterans by a score of 44 to 20 yesterday. Hall shone for the winners, while Beasley was best for the Vets.

Receives Washington Post Trophy

The Washington Post Cup to be presented the winning team in the Automotive Duckpin League tournament now under way at the Lucky Strike Alleys is given to Joseph Cooksey, of the Skinker Motor Co., vice president of the league, by James A. Howard, of The Post advertising staff.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE Howard Campbell Sweepstakes will be inaugurated tonight with the rolling of the first block of five games at the Lucky Strike Alleys at 7:30 o'clock. While all of the entries have not yet been received, it is believed that approximately 45 of the city's leading duckpinners will be in line for a crack at the pot of gold that awaits the winner.

Ollie Facini, Reds Megaw, Astor Clarke, Brad Mandley, Joe Harrison and Maxie Rosenberg, are rated as the outstanding favorites, but to quote an old saying, there's always room for another.

It will be youth against veteran, bowler against ball player when Nick Altrock and Sam Rice, two of the most popular members of the Washington Baseball Team, match wares with Ouncie Harrison and Al Baer in a special match at the Arcadia Alleys. The opening game is scheduled for 8 o'clock. The weekly Arcadia Sweepstakes, open to all with $1.80 in cash, will follow at 8:20 o'clock.

A gentleman by the name of Bell won top honors in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike last night when he splintered the wood for a game of 154 and set of 391. His team, Gibson Bros., also shared in the glory with a set of 1,703. The high team game honors were accorded Potomac Electrotype with its 593. Byron Adams' boys rubbed three games out of Haywood, and the Gibson Bros. duplicated the feat in their match with Central Printing. Judd & Detweiler, National Publishing, and Charles H. Potter won the odd games from Potomac Electrotype, Washington Typo and National Capital Press.

Ollie Webb and Hokie Smith staged a little party of their own as Takoma Park won two from Lucky Strike in a close National Capital League match at the Strike drives. Ollie nosed Hokie out of the game prize with a score of 149 to his rival's 145, but Hokie came right back and beat Ollie to the set honors by ten pins, rolling 380 to his opponent's 370. Takoma's scores were 568, 607, 586. Lucky Strike rolled 597, 601 and 575.

Hokie also rolled in the District League with his King Pin cronies, and this time he had the stage all to himself. He sent the maples spinning for a game of 133 and set of 361, but at that failed to save his mates from a 2-1 trimming at the hands of the Fountain Hams. The latter's games were 531, 590 and 564 to the King Pinners' 543, 514 and 561. Ray Von Dreele's game of 128, and Tony Santini's set of 351 topped the Hams' efforts.

Four one-game victories and four clean sweeps were recorded in the Jewelers' League at Columbia. The R. Harris Seniors, Pirrone, Art Metal and Hellar Plating teams defeated Gault No. 2, R. Harris Juniors, Pearson, Crain and Limon in all three, and Goldsmith, Bluestein, Castleberg and Jewel Shop took the odd one from Baumgartner, Gault No. 1. Desio and Kahn. R Harris Seniors bagged the team honors with a game of 549 and set of 1,540. Grasso's 342 set and Duchering's 140 game were high for the individuals.

With Hazel Jarrett leading the way, the Meyer Davis quintet rolled to a 2-to-1 win over the King Pin five in the Ladies' District League at King Pin. Miss Jarrett had a game of 141 and set of 326 to her credit.

Three clean sweeps featured the action in the Quartermaster Corps Men's League at Columbia. Power piled up a set of 1,589 and a game of 559 as it took Design for all it was worth. Construction was three better than Washington Depot, and the Mechanics sprayed the Engineers with a nice, thick coat of whitewash. Supply oddgamed a victory out of Transportation in the other match. Simpson, of Power, copped the individual prizes with his set of 356 and game of 126.

Rugs, which you naturally would expect all the others to walk over, took a new lease on life in the Arcade-Sunshine loop at Lucky Strike and won all three from the Hat Department. Cold Storage took two from Service, and the Laundrymen won all three from Dry Cleaning on a forfeit. Maloney, of the lowly Rugs, had a game of 143, while Whiting, of Cold Storage, rolled a set of 347. Cold Storage won team game honors with 539, but the Laundrymen were best in the long run with their 1,497.

Law, of the Attorneys (now there's a name that fits like the skin on a ripe tomato), and Bartel, of Traffic, monopolized the limelight in the Interstate Commerce loop at Arcadia. Law pinched the bottles for occupying the same corner too long and the fine mounted up to 129 pins. Bartel shoved 375 of the pesky sticks off the boards for the set laurels. Valiation came through with a game of 554 and not far behind was Traffic, which jammed the pins for a set of 1,663.

The newly-organized Washington Golf Clubs League made its debut at the Silver Spring alleys last night, with seven teams in line. The eighth, Washington Country Club, forfeited to Manor. Columbia was three up on Argyle at the conclusion of its match, and Congressional outlasted Chevy Chase to garner the deciding tilt. Indian Spring, with Sullivan at the helm, rolled a game of 559 and set of 1,642 to sweep its set with Beaver Dam. Sullivan negotiated the three games in 372, numbering among his efforts a game of 140. Its a great game for the dub bowlers and if they bowl like they play its going to be tough sledding for the club champs.

The unemployed and five members of the Building Contractor's League are a bit richer today, all because the Contractors held their annual sweepstakes at Arcadia last night. W. C. Kiesler, of Rosslyn Steel, led a large field across the finish line with a score of 652. Mike Vitale, of Minte Paint, was second with 650; Frank Miller, of D. C. Butcher, third, with 644; William Kline, another Butcher boy, tied for fourth at 641, with Adolph Dries, of Southern Asbestos. The unemployed benefited when one-half of the sum collected in entry fees was turned over to the committee in charge of relief work.

Census, Patent Office Fives Win in League

Using 14 players, Patent Office pulled something of an upset last night when it decisively defeated the Naval Hospital quint in a Government League tilt at V Bolling Field, 27-18. Behind at the half, 9-7, the play of Keisel, Wallenstein and Levin completely changed the outlook during the final period.

Census Enumerators increased their hold on first place at the expense of Department of Interior, 20-10, and held their victims without a single point during the first 20 minutes. Approximately 150 fans viewed the two games.

MRS. KEEFER HOLDS GOLF OFFICE

Reelected for Third Term by District Women's Group.

MRS. FRANK R. KEEFER, who for two years has served efficiently as the president of the Women's District Golf Association, was yesterday reelected for her third term at the annual meeting of the association held at the Chevy Chase Club.

The nominating committee reported a ticket headed by Mrs. H. A. Knox, Congressional, for president, but when Mrs. Keefer was nominated from the floor the delegates by a majority vote decided that she had earned continuance in office.

The ticket also named Mrs. J. W. Beller, Columbia, and Mrs. Tom Moore, Indian Spring, as vice presidents, but although they were elected they withdrew in order to allow the delegates freedom in the matter of voting. Mrs. J. F. Gross, Indian Spring, was then elected first vice president. The first ballot for second vice president, with Mrs. Harrison Brand, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Fred Holtzman, Army-Navy, as the nominees, was a tie, but as Chevy Chase was already represented in the election of Mrs. Keefer, the second ballot resulted in favor of Mrs. Holtzman.

Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, unattached, and Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, Beaver Dam, were elected secretary and treasurer without opposition.

Group to Revise Constitution.

It was decided to hold another meeting in March when a program for the season will be discussed and Mrs. Hugh Nicolson, Washington Golf and Country; Miss Katharine Pike, Bannockburn, and Miss Harris were appointed a committee to revise the constitution. There was considerable amusement when, after the meeting had adjourned, it was proposed to hold a bachelor maids' tournament for a cup which will be offered.

Under the provisions of the constitution each member club is entitled to one voting delegate, although all members of all the clubs are welcomed. The representatives delegated by the clubs and in attendance yesterday were as follows: Army-Navy, Mrs. W. A. Angwin; Army War College, Mrs. Henry C. Jewett; Bannockburn, Miss Katharine Pike; Beaver Dam, Mrs. Alma on Steiner; Chevy Chase, Mrs. Frederick G. Pyne; Columbia, Mrs. Frank Tomlinson; Congressional, Mrs. J. F. Dowdall; Indian Spring, Mrs. J. F. Gross; Kenwood, Mrs. Otis Glenn; Manor, Mrs. E. M. McClelland; Washington Golf and Country, Mrs. Hugh Nicolson; Womens National, Mrs. J. P. Robinson; Woodmont, Mrs. Theodore Peyser.

Swavely Prep Defeats Devitt Quintet, 27-23

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Jan. 8.—In the fastest and most exciting basket ball game witnessed on the local court this season, Swavely Prep defeated Devitt Prep, of Washington, D. C., by a score of 27-23. It was the first defeat suffered by the visitors in five games. Devitt assumed the lead at the outset of the fray and was ahead by a 7-5 score at the end of the first quarter. Swavely rallied, however, and forged to the front at the half and was never headed. The play of R. Kelly for Devitt, and Robertshaw for Swavely, was outstanding.

Artie Boyd to Handle Vic's Game on Sunday

Broadway Theatricals, of Philadelphia, and Vic Sport Shop semipros, who tangle Sunday afternoon on the Silver Spring Armory floor, will obey a whistle handled by Artie Boyd, coach of Tech High's basket ball team.

Boyd has decided to cast his lot with the officials during spare time and to that effect has entered an application for membership on the approved D. C. board of arbiters. In the meanwhile he will work for the Vics.

The Theatrical quint will risk a record of thirteen wins in fourteen starts against Coach Dave Keppel's Vic proteges Sunday.

St. John's High Wins From Boys Club, 28-16

St. Johns stopped the habit the Boys Club Big Five has of beating local high school teams last night at St. Johns gym, when the Cadets downed the Big Five, 22-16, showing a good defensive game and a couple of good shots in Breen and Scanlon.

The Cadet guards suppressed all but one of the Boys Club team, Perruzzi, who scored 10 points before he was through. The winners led from start to end.

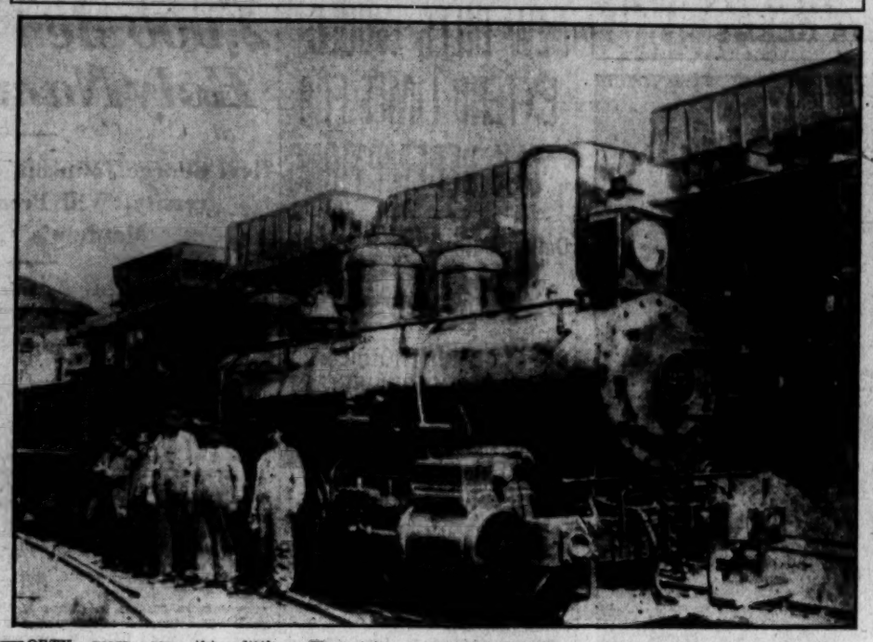
When Washington Was Younger—No. 158



FORTY years ago this little "dinkey," not donkey, was used in the Washington Terminal switch yards to make up trains and back them into the station and freight houses at Trinidad or Ivy City, Montello avenue and Mount Olivet road.

Today, huge many-ton locomotives are required to move the massive steel coaches about the terminus yards.

The elevated platform just back of the engine was the old coal tipple. Coal cars were pushed up on this platform and their contents dumped into the bins below. From there the coal was loaded into the coal tenders of the locomotives piying the lines using the terminals.

At the far right the terminal penstock may be discerned. There the dinkeys and iron horses came to drink. Many of the railroads today have installed apparatus enabling fast trains to take on water without stopping.

FEDERAL WORKERS TOLD FIGHT MUST BE PUSHED

Launch Membership Drive, With 100,000 as Goal, to Battle Emergency.

The campaign to cut Government salaries is an "attack on the American standard of living, as applied to all wage and salaried groups of this country," the executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employes declared in a statement made public yesterday.

The attack, the council said, seemingly "is being waged by the economically powerful to avoid the necessary taxes on excess profits, inheritances and expensive luxuries."

Warning that there must be no let-up in the fight to maintain Government salaries as a bulwark of American living standards, the council called on Government workers throughout the Nation to cooperate in bringing the membership of their organization up to not less than 100,000 workers.

Many Seek Membership.

Back of this membership drive launched by the council has been a steady in-pouring of new members whose applications have been largely spontaneous since the beginning of the split with William Green president of the American Federation of Labor.

Luther C. Steward, president, and Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the employes federation, informed the council that 7,000 new members had been admitted to the organization in the last few weeks and that hundreds of other applications had been rejected because the applicants were not within the jurisdictional lines of the organization, as these lines have been established in the past.

The council warned that the action of the House committee on expenditures in executive departments, under the chairmanship of Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, in tabling pay-reduction bills, was not a final victory.

Outcome Yet in Doubt.

"In the present state of uncertainty, fear and depression it is impossible to predict the outcome," the council said in its call to arms to workers.

"The attack on the wage standards of Federal employes is virtually an attack on the American standard of living, as applied to all wage and salary groups of this country," the statement continued.

"When times were good the pay schedules of Government employes lagged far behind others and even now, the assumption that the decrease in living costs makes Federal workers a peculiarly favored group is erroneous; for the Government's own index numbers show that the present salaries of thousands of Government employes are still below those of 1913, measured by the purchasing power of the dollar in that year. It is, therefore, obvious that the attack on Government salaries is unwarranted.

"Seemingly an unreasonable offensive against the very modest salary standards of the Government employes and other salaried and wage workers is being waged by the economically powerful to avoid the necessary taxes on excess profits, inheritances, and expensive luxuries.

Calls Attacks Unreasonable.

"The wages of Federal employes and other working people, groups economically weak, are again, as repeatedly in the past, subjects for the unfair and unreasonable attacks from the financially strong and their legislative representatives.

"Federal employes are really never secure. Eternal vigilance is the price of maintaining what little economic liberty they possess. Their only hope lies in effective organization. Owing to the present critical emergency, a membership appeal should now be carried to every nonmember."

The council, composed of federation officers from all sections of the country, began a two-day session yesterday morning which will be concluded today, in the course of which plans not only for combatting efforts to slash salaries but also to further remedial legislation for the Government personnel will be worked out.

GUARDING AGAINST DIPHTHERIA GERMS

Edith Page, a second grade scholar at the Wheatley School, is making certain that she will not be a victim of diphtheria. She is being inoculated by Dr. Howard Fisher, of the District Health Department, assisted by Mrs. Walter C. Jones, of the P. T. A. More than 100 Wheatley pupils received the treatment yesterday. Behind Edith are Dorothy Bridges and Winnifred McCullane, awaiting their turn for inoculation.

NEW BILLS WOULD EXTEND LIMIT FOR TAX REDEMPTIONS

Delinquents Would Be Allowed Three Years to Recover Property.

COPELAND INTRODUCES OLD-AGE RELIEF ACT

Would Permit Welfare Body to Extend Aid to City Septuagenarians.

Bills to extend by one year the period in which tax delinquents could redeem property sold for back taxes were introduced in both House and Senate yesterday.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, sponsored the measure in the Senate, and Mrs. Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the House District committee, offered the bill in the House.

The bills contain the identical provision that "hereafter the owner or owners of any property sold for taxes shall be entitled to redeem the same within three years after last day of sale." The present period is two years.

Bills Suggested by Duke.

Earlier Senator King had indicated that his bill would provide a much longer period of grace and make other revisions in the present law.

The King and Norton measures are modeled after a bill suggested by Jesse C. Duke, local attorney, at the last meeting of the House District committee. Immediate drafting of the bill was blocked by a point of order.

Unlike the so-called "moratorium" proposal of Mrs. Norton, which would have forestalled sale of property for taxes next week, delaying sales a year, the new measures merely provide an additional year of grace in which delinquents, by paying taxes and interest at 1 per cent a month, could get their property back.

District Officials Unopposed.

Both Corporation Counsel Bride and District Tax Assessor Richards said they have no objection to the new bills, although they opposed the Norton "moratorium" proposals.

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to the House District committee another measure regulating the manner in which tax sales are made.

Two other bills affecting the District were introduced in the Senate yesterday. Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, introduced an old-age relief measure that would enable public welfare officials to give monetary or other aid to needy septuagenarians. Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, asked to change the name of the Acacia Mutual Life Association to the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. The bill would broaden the company's insurance activities.

2,000 Men Will Attend Holy Name Feast Rite

Rev. George Johnson, Professor of Catholic University, Will Preach at Service in St. Matthew's Church Tonight.

More than 2,000 men will attend the annual celebration of the Feast of the Most Holy Name of Jesus tomorrow night at St. Matthew's Church.

With diocesan and regional executives of the Washington section of the Baltimore Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies in attendance, the services will begin at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. George Johnson, associate professor of education at the Catholic University and director of the department of education, National Catholic Welfare Conference, will preach. Many members of the out-of-town clergy and laity will attend.

The Right Rev. Edward L. Buckey, pastor of St. Matthew's, will celebrate solemn vespers in honor of the feast. The church choir, under direction of Malton Boyce, will provide an elaborate musical program.

By arrangement with the American Broadcasting Co., the services will go on the air through Station WOL. This is the first time that a Holy Name demonstration has been broadcast.

Many non-Catholic men have signified their intention of being present. The service is for men alone. The Rev. Edward H. Roach, assistant pastor of the church, is in charge of arrangements.

Invitations have been extended members of the Third Order of St. Dominic, the Knights of Columbus, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Catholic Knights of America and male members of the Curley Club.

The Right Rev. Eugene L. Connolly, pastor of St. Peter's Church, will celebrate solemn Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament and will lead the assemblage in the recitation of the Holy Name pledge.

Assisting Father Roach are the following committee members: Brig. Gen. Michael J. Lenihan, Caesar L. Aeillo, John F. McCarron, P. Frank Hannan, Francis A. McCann, William J. Neale, Francis J. White, A. J. Oliver, John T. Broaderick, M. E. Rogers, John P. Cole, Joseph A. Kuhn, James R. Wintera, John H. Doyle, Dr. Frank T. Marsden, Lieut. Col. William L. Peak, Louis Williams, John L. Callan, Cornelius Ford, sr., and Sir Patrick J. Haltigan.

4 MAPES TAX BILLS SENT TO EFFICIENCY BUREAU FOR REPORT

District Revenue Measures Referred Over Protest of Senator King.

AUTHOR IS QUESTIONED BY GROUP AT HEARING

Committee Seeks All Light Possible, Capper Says, but Is Not Bound.

The four Mapes taxation measures, increasing the District's tax burden $4,000,000 annually, were referred to the Bureau of Efficiency yesterday by the Senate District committee, over opposition of Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah.

Further consideration of the bills was postponed pending the bureau's report, which will in no way dictate committee action, Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, announced.

Along with the four bills, providing District income, inheritance and automobile weight taxes, and boosting the gasoline tax two cents a gallon, Senator Capper sent to the Bureau of Efficiency the House bill to repeal the old 60-40 Federal-District fiscal relations law.

Mapes Is Surprise Witness.

Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), Michigan, chairman of the special committee which drafted the bills, was an unexpected witness at yesterday's meeting.

He defended the House action, the report of his own committee, and the course of the committee in completely rejecting Bureau of Efficiency recommendations. He declared his appearance at the meeting was accidental; that he came primarily to confer with Senator Capper.

Earlier, when Senator Capper proposed to refer the bills to the Bureau of Efficiency, the procedure was questioned by Senator King, who has introduced a bill to abolish the bureau.

The Utah senator, who previously had gone on record indorsing the Mapes report, declared the bureau unqualified to pass on tax legislation.

Seeks All Possible Light.

Senator Capper replied that his plan is in line with efforts to shed all possible light on the bills; that the bureau's report will not bind the committee in any way.

Mr. Mapes walked into the committee room shortly after Dr. George C. Havenner reported the Federation of Citizens Associations' emphatic opposition to the tax bills rushed through the House.

Senator King had commented that Mr. Mapes and his committee should be called on to testify whenever hearings are held. Chairman Capper promised this would be done.

The chairman of the group charged with "railroading" the bills through the House spoke briefly:

"The report of the committee speaks largely for itself. The members went into their subject thoroughly. We reported what we thought was desirable legislation."

Misunderstanding Is Claimed.

Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, asked Mr. Mapes if he got a report from the Bureau of Efficiency on the tax question.

Mr. Mapes replied there had been a "misunderstanding" about this part of the investigatoin and the bureau had "brought up to date" an old report on the subject of fiscal relations. The committee, he said, did not consider it could follow the recommendations.

He reiterated that the committee had made a comparative study of its own and found the District had the lowest tax rate of any city of comparable size.

Senator Gore asked if the per capita rate here had been considered, and Mr. Mapes replied it had not. He said the committee believed it would not prove of much benefit.

After the session, Chairman Capper said he did not think he would call George Lord, of Detroit, who made the comparative study for the Mapes committee, when the Senate holds its hearings.

Three Bills Recommended.

Three bills were favorably sported by the committee—a bill to qualify the District tax assessor as an expert in condemnation proceedings; a bill to admit pay patients to the Gallinger Hospital contagious ward, and a bill for the protection of union labels.

John J. Manning, union label trades department of the American Federation of Labor, testified on the merits of the latter.

A. J. Driscoll presented the Mid-City Citizens' indorsement of the bill to increase the regulatory powers of the Commissioners, action on which was deferred. Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride said he wanted to review the legislation before it was passed on.

MELLON PAYS FARE OF MAROONED IDLE

276 Stranded by Departure of Army Get Train Ride; Father Cox Confident.

The marooned rear guard of the jobless army, 276 men who were left here without transportation, went back to western Pennsylvania last night at the expense of Secretary Mellon.

Who their benefactor was, they did not know, but at the Union Station yesterday, bedraggled but happy at the prospect of returning by train, they cheered him lustily.

"All we know," one said, "is that they told us some senators and representatives chipped in. Whoever did is a swell guy."

Efforts to Get Fares.

Thursday night, the group who missed the return trip of the long motorcade, slept at the National Guard Armory. Bewildered authorities wondered how they were to get home.

The District Unemployment Committee, which provided $1,053 to feed the 10,000 Thursday, refused to advance any funds for their transportation.

Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, asked for special railway fares. At $4.50 a person it was to cost nearly $1,000. At that time there only were 200 men asking for the transportation.

Mellon Pays Bill.

Kelly, with a colleague, Representative Erk, of Pittsburgh, called the Secretary of the Treasury. Mellon promised to pay. The 76 other men appeared. Mellon was called again and took the total bill of $1,242.

Six day coaches were attached to two trains, one Baltimore & Ohio and the other Pennsylvania. The men cheered when the trains hauled them out of the station.

The Salvation Army in Cumberland and Harrisburg provided coffee and sandwiches for the men when the trains stopped there.

Father Cox Is Confident.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Cox's Army was mustered out tonight with the assurance of their leader that they had focused the attention of the Nation's leaders on the need for unemployment relief.

Weary from four days of shepherding his flock of 15,000 destitute men, the Rev. James R. Cox retired within his church to say a mass as soon as he had disbanded the group that followed him to Washington and back.

Father Cox said he believed Congress soon would take action to relieve distress among the unemployed.

1 Hurt, 1 Held As Result of Triple Crash

A pedestrian was slightly injured and a resident of Baltimore was arrested by police of the Fifth Precinct and charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants last night, following a tripie collision at Rhode Island avenue and Lincoln road northeast.

The accident occurred, according to police, when a machine driven by Herbert E. Close, of Baltimore, crashed head-on into the automobile of William B. Johnson, 1820 Newton street northeast. Johnson said he was preparing to make a left hand turn into Lincoln road, when his machine was struck.

Close's car then careened along the center of the street, witnesses declared, and crashed into an automobile driven by Horace D. MacCloughan, 2960 Thayer street northeast. A pedestrian, John Bruce, 51 years old, of 320 John Marshall place northwest, who was attempting to cross the street, was pinned between the two machines.

Witnesses were unable to explain how Bruce happened to get caught between the cars. At Casualty Hospital it was said he suffered only a slight injury to his left knee. The three cars were badly damaged.

Close was arrested. A passenger in his machine is said to have fled from the scene following the accident.

SLAYER OF GIRL, 14, IS SENT TO ASYLUM

Riverman, 70, Who Killed Young Sweetheart, Found of Unsound Mind.

William Owens, 70-year-old riverman, will not have to face trial on an indictment charging him with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of his 14-year-old sweetheart, Elsie Bryant, at 456 M street southwest, last July.

Brought before a lunacy jury in Justice F. D. Letts' court yesterday, Owens was palpably of unsound mind. He uttered strange and incoherent sounds and he apparently was unable to grasp what was going on. The jury deliberated only a few minutes after Dr. D. Percy Hickling, District alienist, testified that in his opinion Owens was of unsound mind and should be committed to Howard Hall, ward for the criminally insane at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Owens shot Miss Bryant when she spurned his attentions. He fired several shots into her body and then kicked her as she lay on the floor. Not many weeks ago he came into court and attempted to get the permission of the Chief Justice to go to his Maryland home and look for a $15,000 "pot of gold" he claimed he had hidden there.

Attorney John P. Mullen asked that Davis be examined a month ago. His request was refused and the gold was never found. His aged wife stood guard over the house for some time, armed only with a pot of boiling lye solution.

PRESCRIPTION DRIVE TO CITE 35 DEALERS

Violation of Federal Law Is Charged Following Finding of Errors.

Prosecution of 35 Washington druggists for unsatisfactory filling of prescriptions in violation of the Federal Food and Drugs law is being planned, the Department of Agriculture announced last night.

The proposed action is the result of an investigation in which 100 prescriptions from 100 local drug stores were analyzed by chemists in the Food and Drug Administration.

Paul Pearson, president of the Washington Druggists Association, said last night that he knew the investigation had been made and that several druggists had been cited to appear before the drug administration. However, he said that he had not heard the results and would not make a statement until he was more acquainted with the action which is proposed.

67 of 100 Unsatisfactory.

According to the analysis, 67 of the 100 prescriptions were, in one way or another, unsatisfactory. W. G. Campbell, director of regulatory work in the department, said that in 37 of the 59 prescriptions for United States Pharmacopoeia products, there was a shortage or an excess of active ingredients.

In the 67 cases where the prescriptions were not satisfactory, about 35 showed variations which officials considered worthy of prosecution.

Hearings have been given before officials of the department and the 35 cases will go to the solicitor's office. There the cases will be prepared and, if Secretary Hyde approves, will go to the Department of Justice which will prosecute.

Jail Terms Possible.

Such trials are heard in the District Supreme Court. Penalty for the violation carries a maximum fine of $500 or a maximum jail sentence of one year for first offenders.

For the second offense, the maximum fine is $1,000 and the maximum sentence a year, or both.

The drugs present in the prescriptions were of satisfactory quality, the chemists reported, but the errors were in the quantity.

One prescription showed 90 per cent shortage of one active ingredient.

Reasons Given for Errors.

Reasons for the inaccuracy were assigned to carelessness, inaccurate weighing balances and the misreading of the prescriptions.

The mere fact that the prescription is unsatisfactorily made up is sufficient for prosecution, officials stated. Intent does not enter into consideration.

The hundred stores which were selected for the survey and from which prescriptions were purchased by Federal inspectors were picked at random and included both chain and independent concerns.

WELFARE OFFICIALS' QUIZZING IS OPPOSED

Bowman Would Curb Hearing by House Group on Edith Riley Case.

Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, will oppose examination of District welfare officials by the special House subcommittee named to consider the need for probing the Edith Riley case, he told The Post last night.

"You would not ask a criminal to testify before a grand jury sitting on his case," he said. "In my opinion, District officials responsible for neglect in the Riley incident bear the same relation to this subcommittee."

Members of the group were in some confusion as to how far they should go in carrying out directions of the House District committee. Minutes show the subcommittee was ordered to consider necessity for an investigation, and report back to the whole committee.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the District committee, said she was under the impression the subcommittee could go farther and summon District officials and other witnesses if they wished to.

These differences will be ironed out when the group holds its first meeting, at the call of Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland. Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, is the third member of the subcommittee.

Representative Bowman, sponsor of the resolution which led to appointment of the special subcommittee, said he was convinced the body would be ready to report its finding to the whole committee by next Wednesday, its next meeting date.

Analostan Island Sale Is Completed

Roosevelt Memorial Group Pays More Than $363,000 for Potomac Site.

Formal acquisition of Analostan Island was made yesterday by the Roosevelt Memorial Association. The group will erect a memorial there commemorating Theodore Roosevelt.

Although contract for the sale of the island was signed last October, it was necessary to search the titles and dispose of mortgages before the sale could be consummated. Yesterday a check for $363,000 was paid to the Washington Gas Light Co. by William Loeb, vice president of the association.

It now is up to Congress to pass a bill accepting the island as a gift from the Roosevelt Memorial Association with the proviso that the association be allowed to erect a memorial at some future date.

Hyattsville Man Asks $25,000 in Libel Suit

Claude C. Bowers, of Hyattsville, Md., yesterday brought suit in the District Supreme Court against the Beauty Culture Publishing Co., for allegedly libeling him in an issue of the Barber's Journal, a publication of the company.

The suit asks $25,000 because in a story appearing in the Journal he was connected with the possession of a quantity of alcohol. Bowers formerly was connected with the Capitol Beauty & Barber Supply Co., at 720 Ninth street northwest, but, he said, he had not been with the company for several months before the property was sold at auction and a quantity of alcohol found on the premises.

Capper, on Radio, Presses Arms Bill

Senator Urges Widespread Adopiton of Weapon Legislation.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, yesterday asked widespread adoption of firearms legislation similar to the drastic District law he proposed in the Senate, in a speech over the National Broadcasting System.

Urging State authorities throughout the country to give his measure careful study, he emphasized that the need for firearms regulation is not confined to Washington.

Under his bill, he pointed out, it will not be possible to obtain a weapon in a single brief transaction. Forty-eight hours must elapse after the date of application. The bill provides heavy penalties.

"The bill is not as strong as some folks would like to see it," said Senator Capper.

The P. O. Visible Lunch Room, at 727 North Capitol street, was robbed early yesterday morning by bandits, one of whom was armed. James Loampropoulas told police he was alone when the two entered. One held him at the point of a pistol while the other took $50 in bills and change from the cash register.

The shoes were stolen from the feet of Wesley E. Stubbs, of 2238 Eleventh street northwest, he reported to police yesterday. He said a colored man placed a knife at his ribs as he was walking in Cedar court northwest and took his shoes and overcoat.

Man Gets 10 Years On Assault Count

Leroy Morrison, colored, yesterday was sentenced to ten years by Justice F. D. Letts on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The man already was under three-year sentence following his conviction before Justice James M. Proctor on a similar charge two months ago. Testimony was given showing that while he was out on bail in the previous case, Morrison had shot another person.

Assistant United States Attorney Walter M. Shea told Justice Letts that Morrison was a "menace to society;" that he had shot at no less than six persons within six months, and that he had a long prison record.

7-Foot Eagle, Shot, Flies To Attack Upon Policeman

A huge bald eagle with a wing-spread of 7 feet, was proudly displayed at the First Precinct Station last night by Private W. C. Williams, who killed the bird after a hard fight in the swamps of Stafford County, Va.

Private Williams is known to his fellow policemen as "Turkey," because he is an expert at hunting the Thanksgiving bird. He was out for turkeys Thursday when he saw a large bird alight in the top of a tree. Thinking he had sighted his favorite game, the policeman took careful aim and fired.

He was surprised when the bird, instead of falling at his feet, flew directly at him. Private Williams saw then that he had become tangled with an angry eagle. He fired again and part of the load struck the bird, but did not kill it instantly. The eague flew at the policeman's face, but Private Williams held the shotgun in front of his eyes and the eagle clamped down on the barrels. It clung there in its death struggle and Private Williams said he was forced to pry the bird loose to regain the use of his weapon.

Home of Caraways Will Be Auctioned

Late Senator and Widow Named in Suit Over Calvert Mansion.

The late Senator T. H. Caraway and his widow are named as defendants in foreclosure proceedings instituted against their former home in Riverdale, Md., the historic Calvert Mansion.

The ancient house will be sold on the steps of the Marlboro Courthouse to satisfy a mortgage of $30,000, which was loaned on it in 1926. The proceedings were started by Attorney T. Howard Duckett, assignee of Percy W. Pickford, who held the lien originally.

At the time of Senator Caraway's death, Mrs. Caraway said that she intended to return to Arkansas to live. She has since succeeded him in the Senate.

Idle Times Hard On Shoes, Salvation Army Learns

Unemployment certainly is hard on shoe leather.

That was the opinion expressed yesterday by Ensign Gilbert Decker, welfare officer of the Salvation Army, who said that in the first six days of 1932, which included Sunday and one holiday, his office had given out 96 pairs of new shoes to persons in need, a supply which last year would have lasted for a month. There also were 26 pairs of shoes repaired in the same period.

In the same six days the Army took care of 1,371 white homeless men and 910 colored, another record for such a period.

"It looks as though the Salvation Army will need every penny allocated to it by the Community Chest this year," Maj. James Asher, commanding the District of Columbia Division, said yesterday. "In fact, if the increase in demands for aid continues at the present rate, I am not sure the chest allocation will be sufficient to meet it."
